Would-Be Skyjacker

Releases Child, Surrenders

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — A man surrendered to an FBI agent early today after holding his 17-month-old daughter hostage at knifepoint and threatening to kill her in an abortive attempt to hijack an American Airlines jet, police said.

The FBI said the man, identified as Charles Smith, 23, of Buffalo, agreed to give up after being assured that police would not harm him.

According to the FBI and local police, the entire episode began with a stabbing incident in Buffalo's inner city during the early morning hours.

Richard Ash, special agent in charge of the FBI office here, said Smith boarded the unoccupied jetliner as it stood near a terminal gate about 5 a.m. at Buffalo International Airport.

He demanded that the airline provide a pilot for the craft and said he would kill the child if his demands were not met.

"He apparently decided he was not going to get out" of the airport, Ash said, describing how Smith put down the knife he was carrying and walked down the ramp of the plane 2½ hours later, carrying his daughter. He was accompanied by an unidentified FBI agent who had sneaked aboard the plane.

The child, identified as Jetuan Smith, was not injured, Ash said. Ash said blood on the infant's clothing was Smith's from a wound he suffered earlier.

Ash said Smith would face a charge of attempted hijacking.

Police said Smith had allegedly stabbed the girl's mother and a man earlier in Buffalo. The woman was reported in critical condition, the man in fair condition, at Deaconess Hospital.

Police said Smith apparently slipped aboard the unoccupied jet about 5 a.m. and demanded that American Airlines provide a pilot for the craft.

"I want a pilot," he shouted to police and FBI agents who surrounded the plane as it stood at a terminal gate.

A group of FBI agents and police gathered near a ramp to the plane, using a baggage cart as a barricade.

A man and woman took turns using a bullhorn to call up to Smith. The woman, identified by an FBI agent as Smith's mother, walked part way up the ramp at one point, talked with Smith, then returned.

Smith and the girl were visible just inside the plane.

Scores of airline passengers passed through the terminal as usual. Many seemed unaware of what was happening at the American gate.

Burden Posts $10,000 Bond

NEW MADRID — Alex Junior Burden, 24, of St. Louis Tuesday posted $10,000 sheriff's bond and was released from custody pending filing of charges of manslaughter by automobile, careless and imprudent driving by excessive speed and failure to exercise care.

Burden was fleeing from police Sunday when his automobile slammed into the rear of a car being driven by John Edward Cooper of St. Louis, who had slowed for a roadblock on Interstate 55 north of Highway 162 interchange. Cooper and four others died in the car after it burst into flames.

Six Hurt In 16 SeMo Accidents

Independence Day set the scene for 16 automobile accidents and six injuries on Southeast Missouri roads, the highway patrol announced today.

Patrol spokesmen said Troop E District had a total of 76 accidents during the four-day holiday period with 53 injuries and five fatalities -- all in one accident on Interstate 55 near Portageville Sunday. The period began at 6 p.m. Friday and ended at midnight Tuesday.

Accidents and injuries Tuesday included:

A one-car mishap at 4:20 p.m. on Route D east of the Parma city limits occurred when a car driven by Willie Bradley, Jr., 22 of Portageville struck a bridge and went out of control. A passenger in the car, Bobby Austin, 27, of Portageville received minor injuries Both men were treated at Pemiscot County Memorial Hospital and released.

On Route T seven miles west of Fredricktown at 2:45 p.m. a two-car collision resulted in injuries to Patricia Weisner, 21, of St. Louis. She was a passenger in a car driven by Phillip Weisner, 21, also of St. Louis. An auto driven by Joe Shackleford, 21, of Lamesa, Texas, sped out of control, weaved across the highway several times and hit the Weisner vehicle. Mrs. Weisner was taken to Madison County Hospital in Fredricktown with possible broken ribs.

Four were injured at 5:35 p.m. on a gravel road one mile west of Perryville when a car driven by Marvin Pease, 44, of St. Louis went out of control, left the road and hit a tree stump.

The driver suffered internal injuries. Passengers injured were Irma Clifton, 78, of St. Louis, leg and internal injuries; Joseph Clifton, 47, of St. Louis, internal injuries and severe facial cuts; and Ima Pease, 39, of St. Louis, leg and internal injuries.

All were taken to Perry County Hospital in Perryville.

Licenses for Sunny's Tavern were approved.

Appeal To Sikeston Council

Pilots Urge Airport Improvements

Two members of Sikeston Pilots Association told the City Council Monday night that the airport is in need of improvements.

Dave Keenan and Bill Swann said the most needed improvements are extending and resurfacing the runway. Swann said the runway should be extended to 5,000 feet so modern high-performance business aircraft could use the airport. He said some visitors to Sikeston have to land at Cape Girardeau or Malden airports where runways can handle their planes.

Swann said the runway should have a paved surface instead of the present stone-imbedded asphalt. Swann said stones work themselves loose and damage planes. Loose stones are especially dangerous to jet aircraft because they can be sucked into the engines.

One small jet reportedly has received engine damage from runway stones.

Other proposed improvements included sweeping of the runways and taxiways at weekly intervals with the city sweeper and improved lighting.

Keenan told the council that a good modern airport is necessary to attract new industry. He said federal grants are now available to help finance local airport improvements. Under the program, the federal government pays 50 per cent of the cost, the state 25 per cent and the city 25 per cent.

City Council members expressed interest in the idea but said they didn't know where they could get the money for the city's share of the cost. They pointed to the city's tight financial situation and said there is just no money available.

In other action, the council decided to sell the old City Administrative Building as by the Circuit Court, rather than carry the legal battle further in a new trial.

Councilmen said the reason for their decision was that the Chamber of Commerce, one of two origional bidders for the structure, has moved its offices from the building and no longer wanted it. Council members added that the city could use the extra money the sale would bring.

The council voted to override objections of a group of residents on William Street who do not want the street paved from Carroll Street to Coles Subdivision. Councilmen said the road would have to be paved sooner or later, and decided the disputed section should be paved at the same time as the rest of the street.

The council decided to back the tax bills for the improvements of Alabama and Washington Streets. The contractor had refused to do the work until the city backed the bills.

Sun To Eclipse Monday

Sikeston residents will be able to see about 60 per cent of the eclipse of the sun coming up Monday. According to the American Museum-Hayden Planetarium in New York City the eclipse will begin at 2:22 p.m. Central Standard Time, reach its maximum at 3:42 and end at 4:45.

The thousand mile an hour shadow will dip down at the Sakhalin Islands off northern Japan, then race across the coast of Siberia, northern Alaska, Canada and Maritime Provinces.

All of the United States except Hawaii will be able - weather permitting - to see a partial eclipse.

Because the eclipse will be partial for viewers in the 48 states, millions will be exposed to the dangers of looking at the sun with the naked eye. "Looking at the unshielded face of the sun with the naked eye or through any optical device, such as the viewfinder of a camera, can seriously damage the eye," says a warning from eye specialists.

A person must use a filter to look directly at the sun. It must be a filter that will not only reduce the visible energy of the sun but will also reduce sufficiently the invisible ultraviolet and infrared radiation, which can cause instant eye damage including blindness, without the viewer being aware of it. Such a filter can be made

Steele Man Arrested In Shooting On 4th

HAYTI -- After receiving a telephone call Tuesday at 6:45 p.m. advising them of a "shootout," city police and highway patrolmen investigated and arrested Quitman Carter, 24, of Steele Route Two in connection with the shooting of Wade Holland of Hayti.

Police Chief Fritz McKay said Carter reportedly drove into the Tex-Gas Service Station on Highway 61 South where Holland is an attendent and demanded service. After efforts to calm Carter failed, Holland apparently tried to subdue him and was shot twice with a small pistol. Chief McKay said reports state that Carter was drunk at the time of the shooting.

Holland, who was shot twice in the neck, was treated at Pemiscot County Memorial Hospital and released.

Carter is being held in city jail pending charges of felonious assault.

At New Madrid

Weed Control Ordinance Passed

NEW MADRID — In a brief Independence Day Eve meeting Monday night, the city Council passed two ordinances, heard a report on power plant construction, authorized a letter of commendation and discussed other matters.

A weed control ordinance was passed, permitting the city to assess the cost of cutting weeds as a tax bill against property owners. The ordinance provides that weeds may not be allowed to grow more than 12 inches in height and, on violation of the ordinance, property owners will be given 10-day notice of a hearing by either the city administrator or city marshal.

During the 10-day period, property owners may either cut the weeds or appear to show why they should not be cut. On failing to appear or cut the weeds, an additional five-day notice is filed with the city clerk, after which the weeds will be cut by the city and cost assessed against the property. These costs would be a tax lien against the property and will draw eight per cent interest until paid.

A second ordinance was passed to set out truck routes for commercial trucks and limit truck weight on residential streets to a gross of 12,000 pounds, except for trucks making pickups and deliveries.

A resolution of commendation for Russell Ellis, city administrator, who resigned, effective Friday, was introduced by Councilman Bob Blom and was unanimously approved by the council.

Power plant construction bills totaling $523,108.68 were ordered paid. Approved were construction payrolls for the week ending June 23 for $309,728.79 and June 30 for $237,025.27.

In a report to the council, Bill Jerome of Associated Electric Cooperative, Inc., which is in charge of construction and will manage the plants upon completion, told the board that operating tests were being made and that a trial run under load would be made during the next several days. The plant is expected to be in full operation by the end of the month.

City Administrator Russell Ellis told of a tentative proposal by Cotton Belt Railroad to close the depot at New Madrid and to handle all New Madrid traffic from the Malden office. If adopted, New Madrid customers would be allowed to sign their own bills of lading.

Ellis also told the board that construction of new streets in the northeast section of town should be placed on the construction list for next year.

Patrol To Inspect More Sikeston Sites

City officials seem to be growing increasingly confident that Sikeston will be the new home of the Troop E headquarters of the State Highway Patrol.

Col. E. I. (Mike) Hockaday of Jefferson City, superintendent of the patrol, will return to Sikeston soon to inspect additional sites. Hockaday has already looked at two 20- acre sites near the Interstate 55 and 57 interchange on which the city has options and at a third site on which the city does not.

The city offered to provide the land free complete with all utilities. It makes the same offer on the new property Hockaday will be coming to see.

"We've made the patrol an offer they can't pass up," Mayor Frank Ferrell said Monday.

Other cities, including Dexter, Poplar Bluff, Cape Girardeau and Jackson, have also made offers, although none appear to be as attractive as Sikeston's. Cape Girardeau has not even offered a specific site.

"From a practical standpoint," Ferrell said, Sikeston is a better location for the highway patrol."

Sikeston is believed to be the only location in the country outside of metropolitan areas where two interstate highways intersect. A major portion of traffic in the Bootheel already passes Sikeston and, with the opening of bridges at CAiro, Ill., and Caruthersville, traffic volume is expected to skyrocket.

Ferrell pointed out that traffic control is the patrol's major concern.

Ferrell said other pluses for Sikeston include the airport. The sites here would be only two and a half miles driving distance from the airport on four- lane highway. The Poplar Bluff site is much farther from the airport and troopers must travel on crowded two- lane roads.

Ferrell also said Sikeston is the communications and postal hub for the area.

In addition, the city has an excellent school system and hospital, and its recreation facilities are undergoing major expansion.

THE COST OF THE FOURTH

Have you ever wondered what happened to those men who signed the Declaration of Independence? Five signers were captured by the British as traitors, and tortured before they died. Twelve had their homes ransacked and burned. Two lost their sons in the Revolutionary Army, another had two sons captured. Nine of the 56 fought and died from wounds or the hardships of the Revolutionary War.

What kind of men were they? Twenty- four were lawyers and jurists. Eleven were merchants, nine were farmers and large plantation owners; men of means, well educated. But they signed the Declaration of Independence knowing full well that the penalty would be death if they were captured. They signed and they pledged their lives, their fortunes, and their sacred honor.

Carter Braxton of Virginia, a wealthy planter and trader, saw his ships swept from the seas by the British navy. He sold his home and properties to pay his debts, and died in rags.

Thomas McKeam was so hounded by the British that he was forced to move his family almost constantly. He served in the Congress without pay, and his family was kept in hiding. His possessions were taken from him, and poverty was his reward. Vandals or soldiers looted the properties of Ellery, Clymer, Hall, Walton, Gwinnett, Hayward, Ruttledge, and Middleton.

At the battle of Yorktown, Thomas Nelson Jr., noted that the British General Cornwallis, had taken over the Nelson home for his headquarters. The owner quietly urged General Washington to open fire, which was done. The home was destroyed, and Nelson died bankrupt. Francis Lewis had his home and properties destroyed. The enemy jailed his wife, and she died within a few months.

John Hart was driven from his wife's bedside as she was dying. Their 13 children fled for their lives. His fields and his grist mill were laid waste. For more than a year he lived in forests and caves, returning home after the war to find his wife dead, his children vanished. A few weeks later he died from exhaustion and a broken heart. Norris and Livingston suffered similar fates.

Such were the stories and sacrifices of the American Revolution. These were not wild- eyed, rabble- rousing ruffians. There were soft- spoken men of means and education. They had security, but they valued liberty more. Standing tall, straight, and unwavering, they pledged: "For the support of this declaration, with a firm reliance on the protection of the Divine Providence, we mutually pledge to each other, our lives, our fortunes, and our sacred honor."

LUMPS IN THE
FEDERAL GRAVY

According to the Tax Foundation, a nonprofit research organization that keeps tabs on government spending, more money was collected in federal taxes in 21 states in the last fiscal year than was returned to them in the form of federal grants.

In a typical county in Ohio, for instance, every dollar that came from Washington for welfare, education, health, housing, highways, urban renewal, etc., actually cost the local taxpayers $1.55.

At the same time, of course, 29 other states received more in federal aid than they paid in federal taxes. In other words, money from the wealthier states is distributed to the less wealthy, which is only right. This is, after all, one country.

But would it not possibly make more sense if that Ohio county were permitted to keep its dollar and send only the 55 cents to Washington? Likewise all other counties in the same taxes vs.- benefits situation?

Think of the dollar loss due to "friction" as money is shuttled back and forth between the states and the federal government.

Ah, but then think of all the federal jobs that would be lost if things were simplified, and start dreaming about something else.

CHAVEZ: MASTER
OF DECEPTION

When labor historians take a look at the 1970's, farm union boss Cesar Chavez probably will be remembered as the union chieftain most practiced at giving the American public the touch of melodrama it seems to thrive on, the man who best realized that most Americans are push- overs for a sad- eyed con man with a fast tongue and a good song- and- dance.

A harsh judgment, Chavez fans might say, but the sad truth is that Cesar Chavez is probably the greatest flimflammer organized labor has ever known.

Take a look at what happened recently in Arizona.

A new state farm labor- relations act was passed by the legislature and signed by Gov. Jack Williams, guaranteeing Arizona agricultural workers the right to join or refuse to join a labor union and still hold their jobs. This and other provisions opposed by Chavez resulted in his going on a 24-day protest fast, which in turn resulted in his much publicized "live and in color" hospitalization via ambulance with screaming siren.

The eyes of the nation were focused on Chavez, while commentators everywhere closely scrutinized the new Arizona law from the union boss' standpoint. All the while, Chavez must have been chuckling to himself, because the very law he was dramatically protesting left the door open to Chavez' union hiring halls, the one thing above all others that he needed to put a stranglehold on Arizona's farm labor force.

So while all eyes were on Chavez, in sympathy, a law was passed that denied him the right to force union membership on farm workers by law, but at the same time gave him extra legal power to circumvent the Right to Work laws, as construction union chieftains have been doing for years.

Workers don't "have to" join the union, unless they want to work. That's the way of life in the construction industry, and every other industry (such as longshore) that has the hiring hall. The fact that the law gives non- members the same hiring rights as union members doesn't mean union bosses do.

Without the hiring hall, Chavez could not hope ever to control the farm labor force and the farm industry. With it, he will.

He may not have won all that he wanted, but he certainly got what he needed.

Author Ralph de Toledano said in his 1971 book, Little Cesar ($1 from Anthem Books, 1052 A National Press Building, Washington, D.C. 20004), that Chavez' war on California grape pickers had tremendous potential "for propaganda and obfuscation." And Chavez established himself as a master.

Now he's pulled off another fast one. And the push-over American public has been duped again.

PEOPLE CAGES,
ANIMALS ROAM

A drive-through wildlife preserve scheduled to open this summer in West Milford, N.J., is representative of a new trend in zoos.

Called Jungle Habitat, the preserve is the first of its kind in the northeastern United States and is designed to give the more than 1,500 animals and birds living there, the freedom to roam at will in a natural environment. The 1,000 -acre site consists of land features similar to those found in the wilds of Africa, the native homeland of many of the species.

"By using only natural and hidden barriers to contain the preserve's wildlife and separate predators from their prey,what we've really created here is a 'non-zoo,' " says R. Brian Hunt, president of the venture.

As in other such facilities visitors will be asked to remain within the safety of their "people cages" (their automobiles) in the extensive drive-through areas of the preserve. One of the main attractions will be the excitement of not knowing what animal will be waiting around the next curve on the trail. Eyeball - to - eyeball confrontations with lions, tigers and other beasts will not be uncommon.

People in cages and animals left free to roam. Animal lovers will agree that that's the way a zoo ought to be.

TOO NEAR
REGULAR SESSION

If, as reported, Governor Hearnes is considering calling an extra special session of the Legislature in September, we hope he reconsiders and doesn't do it.

In the first place, most of the Representatives and Senators and many others running for state office, will be in the thick of the fall campaign. This fact, together with the regular duties most have back home, will limit the time they have to devote to legislation and be a burden on them.

It is also so near the time for the regular session in January that we can't think of anything that is too urgent to wait until then.

It would be an injustice to the legislators and an unneeded extra expense for the taxpayers to call an extra session. We also doubt that any good legislation could come out of it, if it didn't get attention in the session just ended. — Paris Appeal.

DISMAYING MALAISE
OF YOUTH'S SPIRIT

Every schoolboy knows — or used to know — the story of how the Greek mathematician Archimedes calmly continued drawing figures in the sand even as Roman troops broke into the city of Syracuse, Sicily, in 212 B.C.

In a somewhat more modern setting, a scene from a work of fiction but nevertheless true to life, the beloved Mr. Chips continued instructing a class of boys in Latin even as German bombs exploded outside.

Such Archimedean or Chipsian detachment and inner calm and determination to let nothing interfere with the really important things used to be considered admirable.

Today, Mr. Chips' Latin class would hoot the old dodderer out of the room with choice Anglo-saxon expletives.

"That's Gratitude!"

This spring a writer railed in the Daily Californian, the student newspaper at the University of California in Berkeley, about those professors:

"... who refuse to be flexible, who refuse to allow their students to reconstitute (that is, take over) their classes, who in the face of napalm and National Guard killings in Kent and Augusta, Ga., have the irresponsible self-righteousness to demand that they be allowed to continue to teach Shakespeare and calculus."

Undoubtedly, this student, assuming he has ever heard of Archimedes or Mr. Chips, would point out that the first was run through by a Roman sword and that the second deserved to be for teaching a subject even less "relevant" than Shakespeare.

Yet what time hasn't been a time of crisis, and when hasn't it been "irresponsible self-righteousness" to demand that learning go on as usual? No matter how much upheaval there is outside the ivory tower, someone has to mind the store of mankind's accumulated knowledge.

From another campus, however, the word seems to be that it is a waste of time.

In an article in the New York Times magazine on the 1970 graduating class at Harvard, several students suggest that they already know all there is to know, that there is nothing more to strive for, that society's problems are insurmountable, and that there is no alternative but to await the end, which is coming not with a bang but a whimper.

"I mean," says one, "there's this feeling that it's all over. I don't mean in the sense of an apocalypse or a revolution. But really everything is just groaning to a halt. The environment's going up in smoke. We can't deal with 200 million people. How can we deal with 300 million?"

"In the four years that we've been here," says another, "every major rule has been removed. Nobody believes in work, nobody does final drafts of papers... Everybody's bored. A professor can't keep people interested for 60 minutes if he does a song and dance act."

This year's Harvard graduating class, to hear them tell it, has been everywhere and done everything. Four of them have had books published, all dealing, of course, with various aspects of the campus revolt. They have not only slept with girls but have lived with them. They are both too soon smart and too soon old. In place of guts, they are filled with self-pity.

It was Voltaire, when asked what he would do if he knew he were going to die that afternoon, who replied that he would simply finish hoeing his garden.

A dismaying number of young people today have no gardens to hoe. Their souls are deserts.

ARE WE ABOUT TO SUFFER a terrible defeat in Southeast Asia? There has been no will to win the war, and every effort made to take our men out and leave our ally, South Vietnam, to face the enemy alone. And that enemy is backed by Russia and China. We read last week the number of South Vietnamese soldiers who were deserting and running away. They can't be blamed for the supposedly strongest, bravest, wealthiest nation in the world has 85,000 deserters and draft evaders on foreign soil, and there is great feeling here that they should be forgiven and invited home with just a minimum of penalty. We liked that incident where a group of deserters were faced by loyal troops with leveled guns and told to get back into battle of die right there. They went back. — Shelbina Democrat.

SETTING THE STAGE

Conceivably, the country is now approaching a time when a combination of circumstances could lead to extension of authority of a dictatorial nature. Such is the danger seen by noted columnist Stewart Alsop, in a recent discussion of a growing tendency to ignore or defy the law.

Writes Mr. Alsop,"...the danger is not immediate. But the disintegration of the authority of the 'established government' could produce an authoritarian regime, if it were combined with a severe economic depression. That combination could happen here. " Mr. Alsop's view is strenthened by a late public opinion poll which shows that 30 per cent of the people believe the U. S. lacks "strong leadership." All of which coincides uncomfortably with an increasing dependence on government for solutions to most problems.

UNHOOKED AND WHAT A WAY TO GO

All it takes is a little will power to kick the habit, as any ex-smoker can tell you and probably has — again and again.

But other factors can help, too. For many who have stopped smoking, a change of scene or break from the daily routine was the thing which, combined with determination, helped them over the first high hurdle.

Like a Caribbean cruise, for instance?

This fall, would-be ex-smokers will participate in just such an experiment sponsored by the Institute for New Motivations. The institute, headquartered in New York City, is a unique service dedicated to the proposition that the creation of special environments can help individuals deal with a variety of personal problems. Initial emphasis will be directed to the smoking habit.

The program is built around Caribbean cruises lasting about two weeks. The first two cruises will leave New York on September 18 and November 20 of this year aboard the 20,000-ton Santa Paula, chartered from Prudential-Grace Lines by the institute, with stops in Aruba, Caracus, Port au Prince and Kingston.

Cigarettes will not be available on the ship, says Joseph A. Blasko, managing director of the institute, and all passengers and ship's personnel are pledged not to smoke during the cruises.

Self-help will be stressed, but a number of professionally developed techniques will be available to assist passengers, including lectures, group discussions and self-hypnosis. A team of psychiatrists, psychologists and other institute personnel will also be there to lean on.

Even if some of the passengers don't reach their final destination, freedom of the smoking habit, just trying to get there ought to be half the fun.

MOBILIZING FOR PROGRESS

The space effort has been even more than an epic of exploration. It has marked a turning point in the art of mobilizing knowledge and putting it to work. Many industries today operate on the same principle that put men on the moon. They draw together the skills and brains of many individuals to achieve results for the benefit of mankind that could never be achieved in any other way.

No better illustration of this scientific mobilization can be seen than in the U. S. prescription drug industry. The lifesaving drugs on the market today are a result of teamwork in the lab. A striking booklet, published by one of the largest prescription drug firms tells the story. It says, "... the process of invention in pharmaceutical science is not done as many people visualize -- with an Ehrlich or a Pasteur holding up a test tube and proclaiming a great discovery. The day is gone when the development of a modern drug is the produce of one man. Individual effort still is very important. But it takes a team of highly trained specialists to muster the technical and intellectual resources that can solve the questions posed by the different chemical and biological sciences. Pharmaceutical research today is a systematic, cooperative venture of many individuals over a period of years."

The scientific mobilizing ability of the nation's leading drug houses have paid off handsomely. Of the 70 most valuable compounds introduced to medicine in this century, 60 have been discovered and developed in industrial research laboratories. And 95 per cent of the hundreds of new drugs discovered since World War II have come from these labs. Under the impetus of this new style scientific teamwork, which is an evolutionary outgrowth of private inititative, the horizons of human advancement have become virtually limitless -- if the heavy hand of political interference and the antiscience cult can be held at bay.

A man walking his dog one evening, noticed a man get out of his car and leave the doors open. Trying to be helpful, he closed them. The owner came bounding down from the porch and opened them again. He said, politely, "You wouldn't know, but I'm trying to sell this car. I want the lights on when the family comes out to look it over. I always leave the doors open when I show a car at night."

IN RETROSPECT

Mayor Sam Yorty of Los Angeles cut through to the heart of the Vietnam matter the other day when he said that some of the leading politicians of the U.S. at the national level had changed sides on the war issue and that the whole thing could have, and should have, been ended with a victory for Freedom several years ago. The Mayor would remove the war from current campaigning for the Presidency and have the nation unite in foreign policy efforts. This makes sense. Mayor Yorty is talking like a professional statesman and the comments here are non-political since he is for all practical purposes eliminated as a contender for Presidential candidacy nomination.

The Admiral in technical command of all our operations in the Pacific theater told Mayor Yorty, he disclosed, that the war could have been won in the mid-1960s had the military been given the go-ahead to strike Haiphong and other North Vietnamese cities. The Admiral's comments were made back in those years when the U.S. was getting deeply involved in the conflict on the side of the South Vietnamese. Mayor Yorty said he talked to President Lyndon Johnson about it at the time. The President, Yorty said, listened to the politicians in the Senate instead of the military. Thus the chance to win the longest war in U.S. history slipped away, probably forever.

History will hold the timid of those years to strict accountability. When the secrecy of present-day summitry is bared by history, it may show that we were forced to go to the citadels of communism, Moscow and Peking, for a helping hand in getting out of the war, all because we lacked the courage to win it in the 1960s. We won't have to wait on history to know that we financed the war through deficit spending. HLH.

NEW YORK (AP) — Memory is man's most faithful companion.

No sultan ever had a more loyal servitor, no soldier a more helpful comrade.

Without memory to sustain and console him, man would be unable to bear the troubled midnights of the soul that every human being must confront at times.

You've come a pretty far piece down life's highway if you can look back and remember when—

Stonewall Jackson was the favorite military hero of almost every kid in America.

No matter how many glass marbles you had, you didn't amount to much in the schoolyard gang unless you owned one or two made of agate. A real "aggie," as they were called, seemed to juvenile eyes more lustrous than the Hope diamond.

There still were more outdoor than indoor toilets in the nation, and only the very rich had homes with two or more bathrooms. A man felt completely acceptable socially if he remembered simply to take the regular Saturday night bath that custom dictated.

A top restaurant was one that charged 10 cents instead of five for a cup of coffee.

Practically everyone thought that the nickel glass of beer and the two-bit haircut were U.S. institutions that would last as long as the flag flew.

A man was in the height of fashion if his wardrobe contained at least one pair of spats with pearl gray buttons. Spats became quite controversial. Realists said they were even more useless than cravats. Defenders replied that spats helped keep a man's feet warm, but eventually they went the way of the bustle.

Children's bedrooms were so cold at night that thoughtful mothers would sometimes warm the sheet with a fireheated brick.

A family's standing in the community rose considerably as soon as it could afford to install a furnace in the house and get rid of the messy coal stove in the living room.

A woman who smoked cigarettes in public was regarded as a brazen hussy.

A man who tried to swim in a public pool in a suit that didn't cover his chest would be promptly ordered out of the pool by the outraged lifeguard.

It was hard to find a large family that hadn't lost at least one of its members to tuberculosis.

A girl was ashamed to get sunburned or tanned. The ideal feminine complexion was a classic pallor from which freckles were banished by regular applications of lemon juice.

Those were the days—remember?

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON -- It happens every four years. A national election turns into a national free-for-all

According to the old math of American politics, everything during an election is reduced to its lowest common denominator. Candidates become cartoon-like caricatures; issues become simple-minded rallying cries; the presidency is streaked with mud.

But we might remind our readers on this July Fourth holiday that the candidates are also capable of rising above campaign pettiness. We have learned that America's two veteran antagonists -- Hubert Humphrey and Richard Nixon -- on occasion have put integrity first and their political ambitions second.

As Vice President during the 1968 campaign, Humphrey read the secret diplomatic cables from Saigon. He learned from these cables that high-ranking Republican fund raisers were pressuring President Thieu in South Vietnam to boycott the proposed peace talks until after the election. This prevented the Democrats from softening the war issue, which Nixon was using against them.

Humphrey acknowledged to us that he had seen the cables, but said he had refused to use them against Nixon.

"A scandal like this would have clouded the Vietnam issue and divided the country unnecessarily," he said. "I was convinced that Richard Nixon knew nothing about what was going on in Saigon."

NIXON'S SECRET

Earlier, following the 1960 election, Richard Nixon was furnished evidence that Democrats had stuffed the ballot boxes in three crucial states -- Illinois, Missouri and Texas. This gave John Kennedy 61 electoral votes, the margin he needed to win the presidency.

Republicans uncovered numerous irregularities. In Chicago, thousands of Democrats supposedly turned out in districts wiped out by new superhighways. In St. Louis, seven Republican wards somehow turned Democratic overnight and voted heavily against Nixon. In numerous small towns in Texas, Democratic ballots outnumbered citizens two to one.

Republican leaders were pressing for a court fight that would have dragged on for months and left the country's leadership in doubt for the duration.

Ten days after the election, John Kennedy, the apparent winner, visited Nixon in Key Biscayen, Fla.

"Well, I guess we really don't know how this thing is going to be resolved," said Kennedy.

"Yes we do," said Nixon. "You won."

STORY KILLED

Meanwhile, Earl Mazo, the chief political reporter for the New York Herald Tribuen, began a 12-part series exposing Democratic election shenanigans. After the fourth story, Nixon called Mazo into his office.

As Mazo remembers the incident, "I told him that the election had been stolen out of his eyeballs. He laughed. Then he got serious. He said it was important that I stop my articles."

Then Nixon confided why he had refused to contest the election. "Our country at this time can't afford the agony of a constitutional crisis," he said, " and I am damn well will not be a party to creating one just to become President."

Such incidents emphasize that politics is not always an end in itself. Even the most ambitious men have served their country worthily.

Footnote: Senator George McGovern gave up a night's rest and went 200 miles out of his way recently so that three teen-age constituents could visit their parents in the hospital. McGovern found the youngsters late one Friday night stranded in he Minneapolis Airport after they had been bumped off the last connecting flight to their hometown of Wagner, S. D. The youngsters told the senator that their parents had been in an automobile accident. McGovern quickly offered to fly the threesome to Wagner in his chartered plane, even though McGovern's destination was Aberdeen, 235 miles to the north.

PEACE BREAKTHROUGH?

President Nixon continues to twist and pull at the knobs of the great American war machine in Indochina, trying to find the right combination to bring this endless war to a halt.

His national security aide, Henry Kissinger, has alerted congressional leaders that there may be a possible breakthrough in the peace negotiations. Kissinger has asked them privately to restrain their statements for a few days to avoid upsetting the delicate negotiations.

The President, meanwhile, has pulled all the combat units out of Vietnam.

At the same time, of course, he has quietly increased our air power in Indochina, to an all-time high.

Somehow, the enemy has managed to replenish itself. Battered, bombed and now even mined, the enemy has always seemed able to find the necessary resources to continue that conflict.

Secret intelligence reports reveal that 7,000 new North Vietnamese recruits will move South next month for combat in Vietnam and Cambodia. It was only two years ago that Nixon launched a major invasion into Cambodia to drive the enemy out of their sancturaries. Today, the enemy is back in Cambodia in full force, controlling more territory than ever before.

Intelligence sources also confirm that 100,000 new emeny soldiers have entered the war since January to replace the dead and wounded. An enemy buildup has been spotted south of Saigon in the swampy Mekong delta. American advisers, however, see no threat to the city of Saigon.

Objection To Soft Drink Tax Petition

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Petitions to put a constitutional amendment on the November ballot in Missouri for a broad expansion of conservation activities to be financed with a one-cent tax on soft drinks were filed with Secy. of State James C. Kirkpatrick today.

They were met with an immediate legal objection by Rep. Thomas D. Graham, D-Jefferson City, who said he was acting as an attorney for opponents of the plan. He declined to reveal the names of his clients, saying that would come out later.

Soft drink bottlers have been fighting the proposal for months.

The petitions filed by the Citizens Committee for Conservation were reported to carry 163,620 names, believed to be the largest number ever filed for an initiative proposal. They were scattered among eight of the 10 congressional districts.

Kirkpatrick said he would have his own lawyers examine the petitions for their validity and study the legal objection by Graham.

"This thing is going to wind up in the courts anyway," he said.

Ed Stegner, executive secretary of the Conservation Federation of Missouri, said the federation's lawyers had examined the petitions and concluded they met all the requirements of the law.

Graham's objections were four-fold.

He said the petitions carry no enacting clause, that they contain more than one subject — imposition of a soft drink tax and the appropriation of funds, that they seek to appropriate money imporperly and that the proposal doesn't carry any title, as required for all laws.

He asked Kirkpatrick to hold a hearing to determine whether the petitions comply with the Constitution and the statutes.

The four boxes containing the signed petitions were sealed at once and Kirkpatrick said they would be placed in his vault until the legal questions are settled.

Koepp - Steck

CAPE GIRARDEAU — The United Methodist Church at Benton was the scene of the afternoon wedding June 10 of Miss Susan Frances Steck and Keith David Koepp.

The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. J. Carl Frame before an altar adorned with gold flower stands holding arrangements of orchid gladioli, spring flowers and greenery. Miss Phyliss Fortner was the organist.

The bride's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Frank Steck, 1212 North Henderson, and Koepp is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Koepp of Jefferson City.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of ivory Dacron organza over bridal taffeta. A sheer yoke, ruffled neckline and bishop sleeves were all features of the gown. The A-line skirt ended in a chapel - length train which was outlined with a ruffle of Chanti-lace. Her shoulder-length veil was held by a wreath of silk, roses and mixed flowers in shades of purple, orchid, pink and ivory. She also carried a nosegay of pink roses, pink and purple asters, mixed spring flowers and baby's breath.

Serving as matron of honor was Mrs. Joe Hurley, who wore a formal gown of orchid dacron organza. The empire bodice was of embroidered Schiffli lace with a scooped neckline. She also wore a white lace hat with orchid satin ribbon and purple rose trim, and carried a white wicker basket of orchid and white daisies and baby's breath.

Philip M. Adams of Springfield, Ill., was the best man, and ushers were Thomas L. and Frank Steck Jr., brothers of the bride.

A buffet reception followed at the Steck home where pink and purple flower arrangements decorated the buffet table. Miss Daphne Koepp, the bridegrooms's sister, was guest book attendant.

The bride graduated in 1971 from Southeast Missouri State College, and is employed by Charmin Paper Products Co. Koepp, a 1969 graduate of the same college, is employed by the State Division of Health.

Homecoming Show Set For Sikeston Musicians

A special kind of homecoming in which two Sikeston natives, Don Stewart and Alan McClellan, will sing for their supper is planned July 15 at the American Legion Hall.

Guitarists Stewart and McClellan head an acoustical group that has appeared on national television three times and has taken a firm hold on entertainment lovers in the St. Louis area.

In addition to the network shows, "Detroit Tube Works" and CBS's "Magic People," "Cloud" has appeared on numerous radio stations.

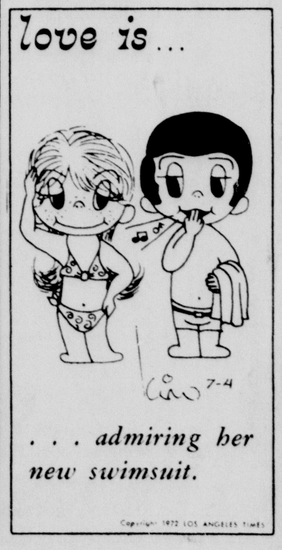
Stewart and McClellan were launched at Louis IX, one of the most popular entertainment coffee houses in the St. Louis area. They were auditioned in December of 1971 at Louis IX and were hired.

Shortly afterward, they were asked to do an hour broadcast and a live interview on a St. Louis radio station. Their first national TV appearance came quickly--in February.

At each stop, Don and Alan express their pride in Sikeston and sing the praises, literally, of their home town.

Success has followed success and now they are in heavy demand for concert engagements. "Cloud's" future is anything but cloudy based on their acceptance thus far.

In fact, one observer, Joseph Beck, music director at Webster College in St. Louis, describes "Cloud's" close vocal harmony as being almost impossible to achieve even with years of practice.



Ann Landers

Love Scenes Win Out Over Violence, Death

Dear Ann Landers: I have never written to a newspaper before but I am so perplexed about a matter that touches so many of us that I decided I must express myself.

I have just listened (for the 20th time) to a radio commercial for a movie which is "guaranteed to raise goosebumps, make the hair on the back of your neck stand up and upset your stomach." It promises scenes of torture, never shown before on the screen.

This movie is rated P.G. --- which means parental guidance suggested. All ages admitted. Other pictures are rated R (no one under 17 without parents) because they have some love scenes --- often tastefully done, I might add.

What is the matter with our values when we permit children unrestricted viewing of violence and death but we will not permit them to see scenes of love? I am not talking about rape scenes or homosexual activity. I refer to tender and beautiful love between a man and a woman. I would have no trouble choosing between the love scene and the murder scene for my own children. Speak out, please Ann. ---Cincinnati J.

Dear J: The movie you are referring to has been denounced by Jack Valenti, President of the Motion Picture Association of America for "deceptive advertising." It was NOT rated by the MPAA.

Mr. Valenti is now trying to marshal the film industry to shore up the voluntary rating program by being honest with the public in all advertising. He says its a tough battle but he is determined to win it.

Dear Ann Landers: This is for "Shaky Lady" --- the woman who is planning to marry a man who is so crazy about her that he is jealous of any male who gives her a second look. She was beginning to have doubts about what life will be like when she is his wife. Well --- hold the phone, Honey. I can tell you. I was married to the same kind for nearly five years, and if you think you're shaky NOW --- just wait a while.

You won't have any friends because your husband will be sure that the male number of any couple you get friendly with is trying to get you into bed. He will be suspicious of the mailman, the grocery boy, the cop on the corner, the bus driver, your doctor and minister. If you spend much time on the phone with any one woman, he'll begin to get funny ideas about HER, too.

If you are five minutes late for an appointment you'll get the third degree. If you are ten minutes late you'll get called some unprintable names. The strange part of this whole lunatic setup is that while you are breaking your neck proving you are faithful, he will be slipping around like crazy. After you crack up and go for professional help you'll learn that the reason he was treating you so rotten was because of his own miserable guilt. I know because -- I've been There

Dear I.B.T.: You aren't the only one, Lady. At least 100 women wrote to describe what life is like with an excessively suspicious man. The sad part is that most of these accusatory males are psychologically disturbed and won't admit it. Some have brain deterioration which could be diagnosed if they'd go to a doctor --but they won't go. Life with amate like that can be hell. I say "mate" because sometimes it's the wife who has the screw loose.

Discover how to be date bait without falling hook, line and sinker. Ann Landers' booklet, "Dating Do's and Don'ts, "will help you be more poised and sure of yourself on dates. Send 35 cents, in coin along with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope and your request to this newspaper.

Woody-Cazadd

CAPE GIRARDEAU — White daisies entwined in twin candelabra adorned the Baptist Student Union chapel on Southeast Missouri State College campus May 20 when Miss Barbara S. Cazadd, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. B. Cazadd of Florissant, and Kenneth Alan Woody, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Woody of Dexter, were married.

The Rev. Clinton Woodfin performed the double- ring ceremony, and Miss Sharon Quatmann of St. Louis was organist. Charles McGinty Jr. was soloist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of white organza over taffeta with a semi- high crown collar, fitted bodice and long bishop sleeves with a reembroidered Alencon lace and pearls. The skirt fell into a train, and her reembroidered Alencon lace bonnet held an attached chapel- length mantilla with a matching lace edge. She carried a bouquet of orchids, daisies, roses and chrysanthemums.

Miss Debbie Cazadd, sister of the bride, was maid of honor, and Miss Cindy Rosenthal of Edwardsville, Iil., and Miss Kathy Donahoe of Florissant were bridesmaids.

Attendants wore gowns of light pink with long sleeves and white picture hats with pink ribbons. Each carried a basket of pink and white daisies.

Joe Mike Jones of Jackson was best man, and Larry Sockey of Oklahoma and Paul Smith of St. Louis were groomsmen.

UMKC School Of Medicine Adds Indiana Professor To Faculty

KANSAS CITY — Dr. B. L. Martz, director of the Lilly Laboratory for Clinical Research, Indianapolis, Ind., has been named to the faculty of the School of Medicine of the University of Missouri-Kansas City as a docent.

The appointment of Dr. Martz, who also has been a professor of medicine at Indiana University School of Medicine since 1967, was effictive July 1.

The docent is the principal factor in the academic plan of the pioneering UMKC School of Medicine. He functions as a teacher, administrator, evaluator, ombudsman, counselor, program planner and "presciption writer" for each student's curriculum needs. He also heads a docent team that includes three additional docents, a visiting docent, pharmacist, nurse, clinic and inpatient staff, psychiatrist, residents and allied health personnel.

The docent team approach enables students to understand the psychological, medical, sociological and economic problems of a patient and how a team works to solve them. Students remain with the same docent and team throughout their final four years.

The UNKC Medical School, which is completing its first academic year, offers a six-year program in which students are accepted just after graduating from high school. Studying 11 months during each calendar year, students receive combined bachelor's and medical degrees. The first two years they pursue liberal arts studies 75 per cent of the time and medical courses 25 per cent. The remaining four years students concentrate on medical studies three quarters of the time, while continuing with liberal arts the other one quarter.

ECOLOGY-MINDED — Fashion designers crusade for clean air and water by sprinkling ecology-inspired motifs on spring and summer sportswear. Maid of Cotton Debbie Wright lends her influence to the move in a cotton knit pullover emblazoned with ecology symbols. The top can be paired with straight pants as shown or worn alone as a short dress. In turquoise, yellow, and green, it's by Charlie's Girls.

SALUTES ST. PAUL

NEW YORK (AP) — Although Judaism has long considered the early Christian missionary, Paul, as an apostate from his Jewish faith, Rabbi Dr. Richard L. Rubenstein portrays him as a Jewish mystic whose insights have universal relevance.

In a new book, "My Brother Paul," (Harper & Row), Rabbi Rubenstein, of Florida State University, says that Paul's vision transcended the Christianity he helped found, paralleling the findings of 20th century psychoanalysis and other insights into human depth.

White Convicted In Marshal Slaying

JACKSON — William Roscoe White was found guilty of first- degree murder Friday night after taking the stand in his own defense and affirming most of the prosecution's testimony regarding the murder of Lutesville Marshal Clive McGee.

Following the trial, White was released by Cape County Circuit Judge W. O. Statler on $5,000 bond, pending application for a new trial. He was given 45 days to file.

White was found guilty of being involved in a robbery at the home of Dr. John J. Myers in Lutesville Oct. 6, 1971, following which Ralph Chaney — with whom he was involved — shot Marshall McGee to death.

The jury deliberated about 40 minutes before returning with its verdict of life imprisonment shortly before 8 p.m.

White was the only witness in his own defense. Chaney, who previously pleaded guilty, had been brought from the State Penitentiary to testify but was not called.

White said he, Chaney and Morse left Hammond, Ind., about noon Oct. 5 — the day before the killing — to drive Morse to Poplar Bluff. He said it was the first time he and Chaney had been in this part of the country and they arrived about 8 that night.

He said he had $835 when he left town in his car. He had until shortly before that time owned a tavern and had recently sold it.

When the trio left Hammond, he stated Chaney and Morse had been taking some kind of pills but at that point he had not. En route, he said he learned Chaney was carrying a .38- caliber revolver and Morse had a .32- caliber automatic which he sold to Chaney, White, who has a prior conviction for carrying a concealed weapon, said he was unarmed.

In Poplar Bluff, he said they got a motel room and went out to a tavern for awhile.

On the morning of the murder, White said the three of them went to a tavern where Morse knew a girl. He said Morse also arranged for a girl for Chaney.

He said several hours were spent at the tavern, during which he spent most of his time playing shuffleboard with the bartender while the others talked.

He said they left after Chaney hit a drunk over the head with his revolver. Reason for the incident was not related.

(In a statement given by Miss Sheila Wilson before she pleaded guilty to robbery she indicated that the robbery of Dr. Myers home was planned at this tavern.)

White said he was unaware of any plans for a robbery. "I don't think I said 10 words to them while we were in there."

When they left the tavern, he said they were going to a tavern in McClure, Ill., that served mixed drinks, one that Morse and the women knew about, the Why- Not Club.

They went by way of Lutesville, however, and White said Miss Wilson was let out at Dr. Myers home to get "some pills." He said he waited for her at a tavern and she returned with a prescription for "kidney pills"

The three men and two women then went to the Why-Not Club where White said they spent perhaps two or three hours.

He said he, Chaney and Morse left the club to change clothes.

"I told Ralph (Chaney) we wouldn't need a motel room, that we could change at a filling station. He said we'd run over and get some pills first."

White said when they arrived at the doctor's home it was his understanding that the doctor would sell them pills, but Chaney said he intended to take the pills if the doctor wouldn't sell them.

He said Chaney was still wearing the .38-caliber revolver and took the .32- caliber automatic out of the trunk and gave it to Morse, telling him to wait outside.

He said he followed Chaney to the door, trying to pursuade him that they'd already had enough pills.

When the door was opened, he said Chaney forced his way in and ordered the doctor's granddaughter and Lonnie Brown into the bedroom of Mrs. Myers. Chaney then ordered White inside.

"He pointed the gun at me and told me to come on in and close the door."

White described the time inside the Myers residence as seeming like a week or 10 days. He said he tried to leave once and was made to come back. At one time he helped the doctor back into bed after Chaney had beaten him.

Outside, he said he offered to let Chaney take the car, but Chaney forced him to drive at gunpoint. He said Chaney was furious that Morse had not waited and cursed him and said he'd kill Morse when he found him.

When Marshal McGee flashed his red lights behind them, he said Chaney wanted to try to outrun him but he persuaded Chaney they had to stop.

He said Chaney got out of the car, as did the marshal from his patrol car, and the two talked between the cars for a moment. Then they came toward the driver's side window but for some reason the marshal returned to his car.

White said Chaney knocked on his window and he rolled it down. "It's going to be all right," White quoted Chaney.

He said Chaney then went back to the marshal's car and while he (White) was changing shirts, apparently shot the marshal.

White said he did not hear the shot and the next thing he knew Chaney was hurrying back to his car.

"Everything's fine, let's get out of here," White quoted Chaney as saying, and they left, going south on Highway 51.

White said he continued to question Chaney and Chaney finally said he'd shot the marshal. White said he asked if Chaney had killed him and Chaney said he had shot the marshal in the head.

White said he then drove at Chaney's direction and they became lost on side roads, finally coming out on Highway 34 about 15 miles west of Lutesville.

Not far from there, he said they stopped on a side road to change clothes and he told Chaney he was getting out. He said Chaney argued that they should stay together, but let him go.

He said he walked some distance to a house occupied by Denver Moyers and asked for a ride to a bus station. (Denver Moyers, who testified earlier, was on parole and could not be out late at night.)

White said Moyers took him to another house, that of Ezra Yount. After some discussion Mr. Yount agreed to take White to Fredericktown to catch a bus to St. Louis. (Mr. Yount also testified to the events.)

White said they were en route to Fredericktown when the Yount car was stopped by the highway patrol and he was placed under arrest.

White said he told neither Moyers nor Yount about the events earlier that night.

"I was scared to death. All I wanted to do was get out of there."

But the jury did not accept his account.

In his summation, Bollinger County Prosecuting Attorney Kenneth Shrum raised several discrepancies in the testimony of the trial.

He pointed out that contrary to White's statement that he was a bystander in the robbery, Miss Myers and Brown had testified to actions taken by "the small man," although they could not identify White. White is smaller than Chaney.

Shrum also questioned how White could not have heard the gunshot that killed the marshal when his car was only two car lengths ahead.

He further questioned why White did not simply drive away while Chaney was out of the car and why he did not call authorities when at last he and Chaney parted.

In his closing remarks, defense attorney Joe W. Howlett said there are always discrepancies in testimony because of human error.

Howlett called Chaney "one of the meanest men in the United States today," and described White as "the patsy," "the little man," "the only one without a girl."

"Bill White wasn't the only one who was afraid of Chaney. Morse took off the minute he got a chance," Howlett said.

Howlett also contended that the robbery had been completed before the marshal pulled in behind them with flashing red lights. He contended that for White to be an accomplice in his murder, he and Chaney would have had to talk it over.

G. M. O'Neal, an attorney from the attorney general's office assisting Shrum, said in his closing remarks that the robbery was not over — that the men had not completed their getaway.

Court was adjourned at 6 and the jury had supper before beginning its deliberations about 7:15 p.m.

29 Die In Missouri Accidents Over Holiday

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

At least 29 persons died in Missouri traffic accidents over the four- day holiday weekend — five more than were killed during the three- day holiday period last year. Four Chillicothe men were killed in two separate accidents Tuesday as the counting period drew to a close.

Five persons perished late Sunday when their car was struck from the rear by a car being pursued by a Pemiscot County sheriff's deputy. The car in which the five died was slowing down for a roadblock set up at Portageville. It burst into flames in a series of collisions set off to climax the chase.

The victims were John Edward Cooper, 24; John Henry Jackson, 2; Ann Jentte Jackson, 2, and Frank Canady, 21, all of St. Louis, and Janice Mae Thompson, 12, Shelby, Miss.

Alex Burden, 24, of St. Louis, was arrested on charges of manslaughter and careless and imprudent driving, police said.

Eleven persons were killed Tuesday, including four Chillicothe men, Harry Forrest Hill, 38, and Joseph B. Roney, 19, were killed in a two-car crash on Livingston County Rt. V two miles east of Chillicothe. And Orvell Hibdon, 30, and Odean Evans, 37, were killed in a one- vehicle accident north of Meadville on Missouri 139.

Shortly before midnight, Robert Clarke Borden, 61, Independence, Mo., was struck by a car on U.S. 24 in Independence.

Others who died on the Fourth were James Kenneth Ritter, 20, of Higginsville, and Paul Raymond Straatman, 18, Villa Ridge, Mo., in separate accidents involving their motorcycles and trucks; Mrs. Edna Gillis, 68, Oregon, Mo., in a headon collision south of Fillmore in Andrew County; Mrs. Wanda Lucille Barnett, 29, struck by a car while crossing Missouri 7 in her hometown of Climax Springs; Pauline Stumfoll, 52, Weir, Kan., in a twocar collision on U.S. 54 west of Deerfield and Robert Lehr, 22, Manchester, Mo., in a one-car accident on U.S. 40 in West St. Louis County.

Earlier in the weekend, accidents claimed the lives of Mrs. Vernon Heath, 37, Breckenridge Hills, Mo.; Silas Pfifer, 22, an airman stationed at Whiteman Air Force Base; Eugene Davis, 23, and Marion Stoneking, 21, both of Kahoka.

Center Opened To Help Rape Victims

WASHINGTON (AP) — For brutal experience of being local women who suffer the raped, advice and comfort often from other rape victims, now is just a telephone call away.

Staffers say the month-old Rape Crisis Center is receiving about 20 calls daily from current and past rape victims and their families who seek medical and legal advice and, sometimes, just sympathy.

The dozen or so women who organized the center include several former victims of rape. To the best of their knowledge, the center offers the first such private service in the nation.

An example of the center's operation: A woman who has been raped may be too embarrassed to notify police or may not want to go through a long court procedure.

With a phone call, she'll be given the name of a medical center in her area and information on venereal disease. But the staffers provide a list of lawyers and psychologists for victims who need them.

"We have staffers who will accompany a woman to the hospital," said one staffer. "The staffer will explain hospital procedures to the woman so she isn't shocked or upset by them."

One piece of advice from Liz, who, like the other center staffers, declines to give her name:

A rape victim should not act calm and controlled when she enters a hospital because "if you go in hysterical, people in the emergency room will pay more attention to you."

One staffer estimated that more than 50 per cent of the women who call the center do not report to police that they were raped.

Most are looking for someone to talk with about their attack, she said.

For women who want to report an attack to police, a staffer will explain police procedures and questions, offer psychological support and accompany victims to station houses.

"We hope that by having another woman present that we can discourage the 'dressedlike-that-what-did-you-expect' attitude," Liz said, claiming that such an attitude was sometimes apparent among police.

A police spokesman said Washington had 615 forcible rapes in 1971, an increase of more than 50 per cent over 1970.

He added there is no way to tell how many more go unreported.

In a recent session at the center, the question of self-defense was discussed.

"We try to encourage women to learn self-defense, to be aware of their surroundings and know how to get out of tight situations," said Karen, a fresh-faced 28-year-old from Chicago. "If a woman is trained in self-defense, she won't be afraid to walk the streets alone. Hopefully, it will give her more self-confidence and control of her body."

Across the street from the center, out of sight of passersby, the women are fixing up an area wherethey say a belted karate expert will give lessons in self-defense.

WATER AND SEWER FUNDS ARE VITAL TO MISSOURI

This month Missouri's 18 rural area regional planning commissions released a comprehensive study of the water and sewer needs of rural Missouri in order to call attention to their magnitude.

The study estimates that over one-half million Missourians now live in small cities and towns without water and/or sewer systems. It pointed out that there is a backlog of 75 applications for federal water program funds and 99 for sewer funds, with potential applications for a hundred more each. The total amount of federal funds which would be needed to fill these requests exceeds $61 million.

Missourians who live in rural areas know without statistics the importance of water and sewer facilities to the life of their communities. Beyond the primary health hazard of a contaminated water supply is the growing pollution of Missouri's rivers and streams caused by the dumping of untreated sewage.

The revitalization of rural America, now hailed from all sides as a national priority of the first rank, slows to a halt when lack of an adequate water and sewer system discourages industry and developers from binging the jobs, new homes and supportive services which could add so much to the quality of rural life.

FUNDING INCREASED

The results of the study only document what my contacts with constituents on trips to Missouri and through correspondence have made clear to me for a long time — that these projects are a major priority in Missouri and other states, too.

Responding to a clear need, Congress this year voted substantial appropriations for water and sewer projects-not adequate to do the complete job, but much greater than in the past. This year's appropriation contained $300 million for insured loans and $100 million for grants.

The grant figure was $58 million above the President's budget request for the program, an increase decided on by Congress because we fully realize how difficult it is for many rural communities to undertake a project without grant assistance.

WON'T SPEND THE MONEY

The Office of Management and Budget, the President's fiscal arm, has refused to spend the additional $58 million we appropriated, and from their budget request for the fiscal year beginning July 1 it seems they will try to keep the spending at the same low and insufficient level for the coming year.

The effect of the imbalanced ratio of loan to grant funds has been a critical one for the many Missouri communities which have waited years for water and sewers. Missouri's federal share this year was $9 million for loans and 5 million for grants.

This ratio has kept some of the neediest communities from beginning projects for lack of grant assistance. Even though their need may be much greater they are forced to step aside for younger communities with larger tax bases which can build the systems without grants.

DISTORTS PROGRAM

When this happens-and it does all the time now--the whole purpose of the program is distorted.

Each week I am forced to respond to the pleas of mayors and ordinary citizens of these communities with the information that the money we appropriated is not being spent. The answer from the Office of Management and Budget to my pleas has been a flat refusal.

As the fiscal year drew to a close, I wrote OMB one last time in an effort to impress upon them the serious needs that are presented to me almost daily by Missourians who must live with unsafe or inadequate water supplies. I urged as strongly as I was able that the money be made available before the fiscal year ends so that many communities could begin work.

If we are to fulfill our promises of a better life for rural America, we must begin to deliver on those promises.

? Consumer's Question Box ?

By Margaret Dana

Q.: In buying instant coffee I have wondered if it is really all coffee, or does it have all kinds of special additives? How can I tell from the label?

A.: All the brands of instant coffee I have checked, both the regularly processed and the newer freeze-dried, have labels which say either "pure coffee" or "100 per cent coffee." The meaning is clear--the product is all coffee, with no additives. If any one of these products should prove to have an undeclared ingredient it would then be illegally labeled. Since the Food and Drug Administration checks and inspects processed foods at intervals, I think we can assume they would have checked these labels by now.

Q.: Suppose we want to report something to the Food and Drug Administration, such as finding foreign matter in food, or mislabeling, etc. How can we do it best? Do we write to the agency in Washington, or do they have branches?

A.: The FDA does have regional branches with addresses and phone numbers. Since they differ, and your area would be located within a specific region covered by a branch, I suggest you send to the Consumer Product Information, Washington, D.C. 20407, and request a copy of the free leaflet titled "How the Consumer Can Report to The Food and Drug Administration." The index number is 7700-021. This will tell you how to report suspected safety hazards, false labeling of food, drugs and cosmetics, etc.

Q.: Have you any suggestion as to a collection of recipes which would use the cheaper foods and still supply a good filling meal? I don't mean cheaper meats only, but recipes for using dried beans, eggs, and so on.

A.: I have a limited supply of a recipe booklet titled "Money-Saving Main Dishes" which the U.S. Department of Agriculture prepared several years ago. This edition was 20 cents. For a copy, send your request to me with 20 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope. For the newer edition, up-dated in 1970, which is priced at 30 cents, send your request to Consumer Product Information, Washington, D.C. 20407, including the catalog number 0100-0841, and the 30 cents. This booklet includes such recipes as "sausage with sweet potato and apple" (using only ½ pound of sausage), "fish-cheeseburgers," "Mexican scrambled eggs," "savory bean stew," (using ½ pound ground beef), etc.

Q.: Please indicate if anything is being done about all the camera and movie equipment being imported here from abroad. Whenever my cameras need service or new parts I am told, "sorry, not available." When I need more information than is supplied in the directions with the camera, I am told the same thing. My camera outfit cost me $1,000, yet when I asked for specific information on its wide-angle and telephoto lens, my supplier just said none could be had from the maker. What can we do?

A.: More and more foreign makers of goods sold in this country are trying to provide centers for service here. This is increasingly true, of course, of automobiles. But smaller companies, and especially those without much international know-how, are still behind in dealing with this problem.

I would suggest not buying until you first make sure what service is available, and then checking to see what a domestic manufacturer offer. The service may outweigh the lower price the import may have.

Q.: We have been using gasoline to pour over our briquettes to start our barbecue grill. It works very fast. Is this harmful in any way to the food cooked over it?

A.: It would not be harmful to your food, but it could be very harmful indeed to you and your family or guests. Using gasoline to start any fire, anywhere, is highly dangerous and should never be done.

Many people are not fully aware of the hazards of gasoline, both as a fluid and a gas, and although many people have used the same technique you are using to start all kinds of fires, including logs in a fireplace, it is strongly opposed by experts in fire prevention. Using rolled sticks of newspaper to get your briquettes going is much safer and need not take too long.

Q. I have a complaint that I share with countless others. The turkey necks inside a turkey! How many times I have cut, bruised and scratched my hands trying to get that neck out of a turkey when getting it ready to roast. Who eats or needs the neck anyway?

A.: The poultry industry must wonder if all of us are capable of seeing only one side of a problem. Along with your letter come others complaining just as loudly that too often they can't find the turkey or chicken neck which should be inside the fowl with the giblets.

They value the neck, which makes ecvellent soup or gravy, and resent not getting it. As for it being inside the turkey or chicken, I understand this is to make sure the giblets and neck don't get mislaid, as can happen, when they are paced seperately. But some poultry packers do put the neck, liver and gizzard in a small separate bag, sometimes within the turkey cavity, sometimes outside. When the turkey is fully thawed the small parts can be easily removed from the cavity.

The Daily Standard
Sikeston, Mo. 63801
Gentlemen:

The article in tonight's paper regarding possible legal action against the showing of "Clockwork Orange" has prompted me to write this letter.

Granted, the movie is full of sex and violence -- I haven't seen it, but I read the novel. But it also speaks for our time. And beyond that, it is a movie masterpiece. The acting and filming technique alone is worth seeing, if you can believe the reviews of it. And I really think there must be something there— after all, it didn't win those awards for nothing.

And, may I also point out that no one is being forced to see the movie? And it is certainly not going to affect the impressionable minds -- the movie IS rated "X". I'm sorry if the film violates someone's sense of good taste -- things violate my sense of good taste, too, but I stay away from them.

I hope Mr. Alley sticks to his guns about showing the film. I think it very unfair if 50 phone calls could prevent this film from being shown in Sikeston. "Tobacco Rudy" I could understand -- at least a little better than this - but "Clockwork Orange"?

Sincerely,
Laretha Harris

SEATTLE— James A. Cunningham, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Cunningham of Tieton, Wash., Route One has been commissioned a second lieutenant in the U.S. Air Force upon completion of the Air Force Reserve Officers Training Corps program at the University of Washington in Seattle.

Cunningham's parents are former Sikeston, Mo. residents.

Lt. Cunningham received his bachelor of arts degree in psychology and was named in AFROTC as a distinguished military graduate.

He also received the Daughters of the American Revolution Award for outstanding leadership ability, academic achievement and military excellence.

He is being assigned to Vandenberg AFB, Calif., for training as a missile officer.

Lt. Cunningham graduated in 1968 from Highland High School in Cowiche, Wash., where he was a member of National Honor Society.

Admission Forms Urged For Collegians

CAPE GIRARDEAU -- A call was issued today for area students who plan to enter Southeast Missouri State College for the first time this fall to get their admission forms right away.

"We feel, from past experience, that there are at least 120 recent high school graduates right here in this vicinity who plan to enter college in the fall, but who have not yet submitted their admission forms," said Lyman Evans, director of admissions at Southeast Missouri State.

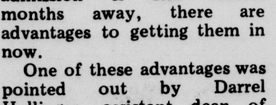
Evans noted that, while the deadline for submitting application forms for admission is still several months away, there are advantages to getting them in now.

One of these advantages was pointed out by Darrel Hollinger, assistant dean of students and the administrator in charge of the college.s summer orientation program.

Admission applications submitted now can be processed in time for the student and his parents to be scheduled to attend the orientation program, Hollinger said. He said one of the main sessions of orientation, from the student point- of- view, is the period during which he pre-enrolls.

Students who do not submit their applications until the last minute run the risk of not getting into courses they want to take, Hollinger, said, since they will not enroll until Aug. 28.

By then, many courses freshmen normally take may be filled by students who have participated in orientation. The orientation program runs through July 21.



Best bumper sticker of the month: "If you can read this, you're driving too %&$#* close."

Fighting Fire at Battle Flats

Army Task Forces Fight Arizona Fire

FT. HUACHUCA, Ariz. (ANF) -- Two Army task forces provided U.S. Forest Service officials with some valuable assistance as Arizona suffered its worst forest fire damage this year, near Prescott.

A total of 185 men and 75 vehicles provided support for special Forest Service fire fighting personnel during the huge fire in the area called Battle Flats.

Vehicles sent to Battle Flats from Ft. Huachuca, 282 miles away, included large trucks, a wrecker, an ambulance and water tankers.

The soldiers were sent May 15 when a request came from the Forest Service for more help. Two task forces working in different areas helped to prevent the blaze from spreading even further.

The blaze eventually consumed more than 26,000 acres of forest. Total damage is estimated by Forest Service officials at more than $29 million.

Men and equipment dispatched came primarily from the 11th Signal Group. Also sent were personnel from the post medical activity and Headquarters, Ft. Huachuca. The Army Electronic Proving Ground and the Army Security Agency also furnished vehicles.

Army support to domestic disasters such as the Battle Flats fire is provided for through continuing agreements between the Army and the responsible agencies.

The troops were supplied with mechanical parts and equipment, while on the scene, from Forest Service planes which flew over daily.

"Negligence," says George T. Keene, a photographic engineer, "will result in almost certain damage to the retina of the eye. It is possible that only one second of carelessness can result in permanent blindness." So, beware, all you would-be-viewers of the eclipse.

The safest method of viewing is indirect: look at the reflection in a pool of water, or stand with one's back to the sun and project the suns image though a tiny hole in a cardboard onto a screen 10 feet away, or point the large end of a telescope or binoculars toward the sun and focus the image onto a sheet of white paper or cloth held a foot or two from the eyepiece.

An eclipse of the sun occurs when the moon moves between the sun and the earth. The moon, casting a cone-shape shadow 232,000 miles onto the earth, travels at 2,100 miles per hour.

Subtracting the 1,040 mile per hour rotation of the earth, at the equator and traveling in the same direction, the apparent speed of the shadow is 1,060 miles per hour, which increases as the eclipse path moves away from the equator.

Ford Recalls 4 Million Cars

DETROIT (AP) — Ford Motor Co., in its biggest safety recall campaign to date, has called back 4.04 million vehicles to replace two shoulder belt grommets that cost only pennies apiece.

According to P.E. Benton Jr., Ford's customer service division general manager, a small percentage of the grommets, which fit on the stud that attaches the shoulder harness to the lap belt, have broken with repeated usage.

Breakage prevents the user from clicking the harness into a locked position, but the company said Thursday that no reports have been received of injuries because of this problem.

Rain Saves McLain

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It rained all over Denny McLain's parade but the moisture left Leo Durocher a lot more upset than it did Atlanta's newest resident.

McLain, making his National League debut, was tied 3-3 in the eighth inning Tuesday night as the Braves tried to sweep a baseball doubleheader from the Durocher's Cubs. Atlanta had taken the opener 5-1.

Jose Cardenal, who had homered off McLain earlier, and Don Kessinger opened the Chicago eighth with singles and suddenly, Denny had runners on first and third with none out.

Just as suddenly, the Atlanta skies opened up with an enormous downpour. The rain hit so swiftly that the ground crew was unable to get the tarps down over the infield. Soon, it was a swamp and the game had to be called, rescuing McLain from a precarious situation and leaving Durocher rather agitated.

Leo decided that the Braves' ground crew didn't move quite as fast as it might have if the two runners on base were wearing Atlanta uniforms and formally protested the rainout.

National League President Chub Feeney said he would give careful consideration to the protest and ruled that the game could not be rescheduled until he ruled on it.

Elsewhere in the NL Tuesday, New York split a doubleheader with San Diego, winning the opener 2-0 on Tom Seaver's one-hitter, but dropping the nightcap 4-2, Cincinnati dropped St. Louis 6-1, Philadelphia edged San Francisco 21, Montreal slugged Los Angeles 7-3 and Houston shut out Pittsburgh 6-0.

In the American League, Boston shut out Minnesota 2-0, Cleveland blanked Texas 2-0, Kansas City shut out Detroit 10, Baltimore nipped Chicago 21, Milwaukee dropped California 4-2 and Oakland took New York 4-2.

A crowd of 50,597 showed at Atlanta Stadium for a gigantic July 4 fireworks display and McLain's debut. They gave Denny an ear-shattering standing ovation as he walked out to the mound to start the second game.

"I've never experienced anything like that," said McLain, "not even in Detroit. This tonight was unbelievable. I could have got the saints in heaven in that first inning after that."

All he had to do was get the Cubs of Chicago and for three innings, he did that easily.

The Cubs started nibbling away at McLain in the middle three innings and by the eighth, he had given up nine hits, the last two to Cardenal and Kessinger.

The Braves won the first game of the doubleheader, scoring four runs in the seventh inning on homers by Paul Casanova and Mike Lum to crack a 1-1 tie.

Casanova opened the inning with his first NL homer and Lum added a three-run shot as Ron Reed picked up the victory, scattering seven hits.

Seaver took a no-hitter into the ninth inning and retired the first San Diego batter before Leron Lee cracked a broken bat single for the Padres' only hit.

"It was a good pitch," said Seaver, "down and in, but it came back over the plate a little bit. I was certainly disappointed. No doubt about that. But my immediate thoughts were that Nate Colbert was coming up."

Seaver got Colbert on a game-ending double play but the Padres' slugger did hit one out in the eighth inning of the second game to tie it at 2-2. Then Derrell Thomas' ninth-inning single drove in two runs, giving the Padres the victory.

The Mets picked up one-half game with the split when Houston shut out Pittsburgh, shaving the Pirates National League East lead to one game over New York. Larry Dierker hurled an eight-hitter for his fifth shutout of the season. He also drove two runs in with a squeeze bunt and a single.

Cincinnati remained one-half game in front of the Astros by ending St. Louis' seven-game winning streak.

Pete Rose doubled home three runs in a five-run second inning for the Reds as Ross Grimsley, 6-3, earned the victory.

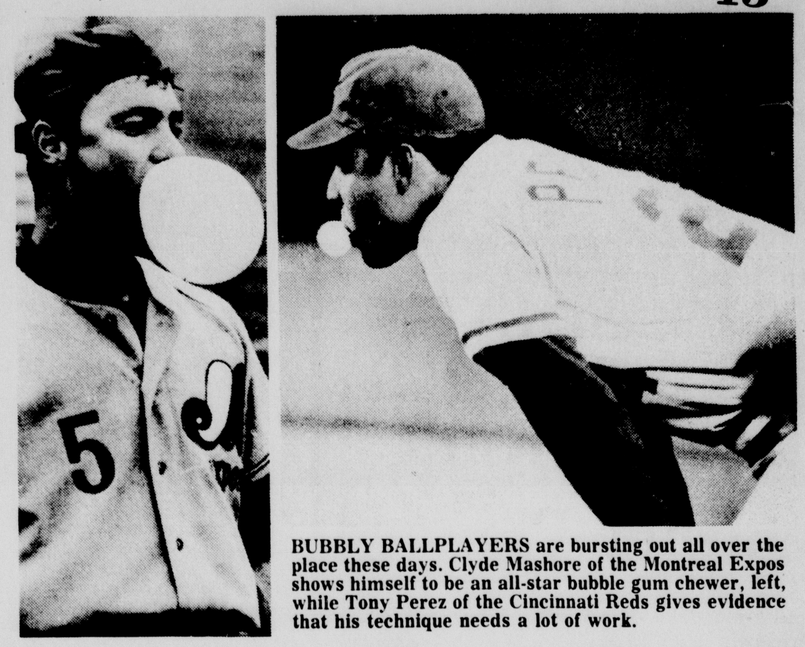
The struggling Dodgers were beaten by Montreal with Ron Woods and Ron Fairly homering for the Expos.

LA starter Tommy John surrendered three runs in the second inning, two of them on Bob Bailey's single and the third on a triple by winning pitcher Carl Morton.

Willie Davis and Duke Sims homered for the Dodgers.

Jim Barr allowed just three hits, pitching San Francisco past Philadelphia.

The Giants scored both their runs in the seventh inning when Dave Kingman opened with a double. Dave Rader's single scored Kingman and then long flies by Alan Gallagher and Tito Fuentes got Rader home with the deciding run.



BUBBLY BALLPLAYERS are bursting out all over the place these days. Clyde Mashore of the Montreal Expos shows himself to be an all-star bubble gum chewer, left, while Tony Perez of the Cincinnati Reds gives evidence that his technique needs a lot of work.

Camaro Tops Peak

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — Bob Silvers ran his Camaro off the twisting mountain road twice but couldn't even remember where after winning Tuesday's running of the annual Pikes Peak Hill Climb.

The Colorado Springs racer, in his second year at the hill climb, credited the independent rear suspension on his 1972 stock car for the victory. He completed the 12.42 bumpy miles in 13:45.9, just five seconds off Bobby Unser's record 1969 pace.

Second was Bill Daniels of Colorado Springs, timed in 14:00.4 in a 1971 Chevrolet, and third in a 1969 Chevelle was Ralph Bruning of Lawton, Okla., in 14:05.4.

Silvers said he was pushing for the top so hard he really couldn't remember where his car had skidded off the gravel road to the peak.

A similar accident resulted in bruises and possible head injuries to Rickey Manka of Colorado Springs, whose motorcycle ran off the road about two miles up the mountain during a preliminary race.

Sports Briefs

HAARLEM, The Netherlands (AP) — The Grand Rapids Sullivans beat the Alaska Gold panners 8-7 Tuesday night for their third straight victory in the Haarlem Baseball Week tournament.

The team from Grand Rapids, Mich., which had only lost to unbeaten world amateur baseball champions Cuba, came from behind to win in the ninth inning. With two men out and the bases loaded, Ron Delong doubled home two runs.

MARION, Mass. (AP) — Jeff Lenhart of San Diego held a commanding lead in the Finn class and Glenn Foster of New York led in the Tempest class today in the final trials of the U.S. Olympic sailing competition on Buzzards Bay.

Lenhart had a low total of eight points. In the Tempest competition, Foster had 5.7 points.

WALTHAM, Mass. (AP) — Ruth White, a New York University senior from Baltimore, is the U.S. women's fencing champion for the second time.

Miss White regained the championship Tuesday night. The 20-year-old co-ed won 22 of 23 matches in winning the title easily and gaining a U.S. Olympic berth.

American League

Pitchers Muffle Bats

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Three comeback pitchers, two rookies and one 20-game winner kept the July 4 fireworks to a minimum in the American league Tuesday.

—Pat Dobson, one of Baltimore's four 2-game winners last season, hurled the Orioles into sole possession of first place in the American League East with a three-hit, 11-strikeout 2-1 victory over the Chicago White Sox.

—Detroit skidded into second place when Kansas City's Roger Nelson, fighting back from two years of arm miseries, blanked the Tigers 1-0 on four its for his first complete game and first triumph as a starter since 1969.

—Rookie Lynn McGlothen notched his first major league triumph with a three-hitter that propelled Boston past Minnesota 2-0.

—Oakland's Blue Moon Odom, recuperating from a 1971 elbow operation, posted his sixth victory with eight-inning help from Darold Knowles as the A's downed the New York Yandees 4-2.

—Jim Lonborg, the AL's Cy Young Award winner with Boston in 1967 but a much-injured hurler since, won his fourth straight baseball game for Milwaukee, blanking California until the ninth when Frank Linzy came on to preserve a 4-2 triumph.

—Cleveland rookie Dick Tidrow took over for the injured Mike Kilkenny in the third inning and completed a 2-0 shutout over Texas.

In the National League, Cincinnati defeated St. Louis 6-1, Houston blanked Pittsburgh 6-0, the New York Mets shaded San Diego 2-0 but dropped the nightcap 4-2, Montreal trimmed Los Angeles 7-3, San Francisco edged Philadelphia 2-1 and Atlanta turned back the Chicago Cubs 5-1 before the second game was halted by rain in the eighth inning tied at 3-3.

Baltimore's Dobson surrendered a first-inning home run to Dick Allen and second-innings singles to Rick Reichardt and Mike Andrews but kept the White Sox hitless thereafter.

The Orioles tied the game against Stan Bahnsen in the fifth on Bobby Grich's single and Dave Johnson's triple and scored the winning run in the sixth on consecutive singles by Paul Blair, Boog Powell and Merv Rettenmund.

Kansas City got Nelson the only run he needed against Detroit in the first inning on Amos Otis' bunt single, a stolen base and John Mayberry's infield hit, which loser Bill Slayback threw wild to first base.

Boston's McGlothen, a 22year-old right-hander, held the Twins to Eric Soderholm's double in the second inning and singles by Danny Thompson in the third. Rookie shortstop Juan Beniquez accounted for one of the runs off loser Ray Corbin with his first major league homer.

About the only fireworks were in Oakland, where Sal Bando hamered a grand slam home run off New York's Mel Stottlemyre in the fourth inning and the A's put on a gaudy pyrotechnic display after the game.

John Lowenstein provided the offense with a two-run homer.

Sets New World Pole Vault Mark

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — Tears streamed down Bob Seagren's face. The handsome Olympic champion sat in the light of a setting sun and simply, quietly cried.

He had just set the world record in the pole vault, something he had done four times previously. So why the emotion?

The 25-year-old Southern California Strider athlete suffered a severe knee injury in a horseback riding accident late last year and surgery was performed. He came back, however, and made what appeared to many a futile attempt to get back into shape for the 20th Olympic Games this year. His progress was slow.

"He worked so hard," said Verne Wolfe, head track coach at the University of Southern California, where Seagren was graduated and began his comeback. "He's always been dedicated, but I really didn't think he'd come back this fast."

"When I got to Eugene, I was relaxed," Seagren said. "I was happy with my progress." He had regained a share of the world mark at 18 feet 4¼ inches and was considered the old pro of the event.

"Then I started thinking, 'The guys are good. What if my pole slipped? What if I didn't qualify'? and then I got nervous.

"I couldn't sleep. I walked around my room at night. I didn't have any concentration."

The competition started last Sunday at Hayward Field and "everyone was so hot. Everyone looked so good I got nervous," he said. Then he warmed up by clearing the bar at about 18-3.

"That relaxed me for a minute," he said. "But they looked so good at 17-8½, and then again at 18," he said.

The others who cleared 17-8½ were Dave Roberts of Rice, Jan Johnson of Alabama and Steve Smith of Long Beach state. Then all but Roberts made 18-0½. And Seagren tightened up once again.

Seconds after celebrating his 18-5¾ leap with a whoop Seagren broke down.

"The pressure of the injury, the operation, the long comeback. And then the nervousness of this competition—just to get a trip to Munich. I guess it all just collapsed on him," said George Ambrose, a close friend of Seagren for years.

"He was carrying a lot of weight around. I guess the pressure's off now," said Ambrose.

Spinks Has Trouble

CINCINNATI (AP) — Scipio Spinks, trying hard to overcome a Cincinnati Reds waiting strategy that cost him five runs, lost all the marbles Tuesday when he bowled over Johnny Bench at homeplate in the St. Louis Cardinals 6-1 losing effort.

Reds catcher Bench, thanks to his shin guards, suffered only knee bruises in the third inning collision in which he dropped the ball. But Spinks was taken out with an apparently torn knee ligament.

Spinks was scheduled for hospital treatment in St. Louis today.

"You have to make Spinks throw strikes," said manager Sparky Anderson of the Western division leading Reds. "That's why we tried to wait him out."

In the second inning, Tony Perez singled, Joe Hague walked, Denis Menke lined a single off Spinks' leg, and with the bases loaded, Spinks walked Dave Concepsion and Joe Morgan bringing in two runs.

Then Pete Rose slammed a line drive double to left center off the glove of Lou Brock scoring three runs.

"It seemed funny coming up to bat with men on base," laughed Rose. He has been switched from leadoff to batting second in the lineup for several games.

"I'm real pleased with the 5-1 road trip," said Cards Manager Red Schoendienst. "This just simply was not our day. We hit the hell out of the ball but we couldn't put them together.

The Cards outhit Cincinnati 95 and split the two game series.

"This is as wild as Spinks has been all year," said Schoendienst, "But I'd have kept him in there if he hadn't, been injured in that collision."

Spinks, who singled in the third, came home from first on a double by Luis Melendez.

The loss snapped a seven game winning streak for the Cardinals who have won 22 of their last 27 games.

Winning pitcher Ross Grimsley, 6-2, said it was his poorest performance but "it was one of those lucky days and I'll take it.

Pros Sale Lacks Response

MEMPHIS, Tenn. — Despite a dismal proxy response, the sale of the Memphis Pros to Charles O. Finley will be brought to a stockholder vote Thursday night at 7:30 in a special meeting at the Christian Brothers College auditorium.

Officials of Memphis Area Sports, Inc., reported yesterday that proxies totaling 30,000 votes of approval have been sent to the Pros' office. However, for the sale to be finalized, about 61,000 votes will be needed by proxies and stockholders voting in person.

Fifty- one per cent of the stock must be represented in order for Memphis Area Sports to hold a legal meeting, and two-thirds of that representation must approve the sale to Finley, who signed a contract to purchase the American Basketball Association franchise June 14.

"I'm very disappointed in the lack of response of the stockholders in getting their proxies to the Pros' office," said John 'Buddy' Leake, chairman of the Pros' board. "We have to make a last-ditch effort to contact the stockholders to get these proxies in. It is all- important that we have 51 per cent of the stock represented at the meeting. If we don't, we can't even vote on the sale of the club to Finley.

"The board of directors has acted in accordance with the idea that the stockholders want to keep basketball in Memphis and receive the best possible value. We believe we have done this, and at this time we want to appeal to the stockholders to deliver their proxies to the Pros' office or attend the meeting so we can accomplish our goal."

The franchise was purchased by Memphis Area Sports in February of 1971 after 4,618 persons bought about $628,000 in stock.

"The people who purchased this team should attend the meeting and voice their opinion," said Avron Fogelman, president of the club. "This will be a completely open meeting, and we'll be there to answer any questions or allow stockholders the floor for any statements."

Finley is expected to return to Memphis in the next several days and has said he will name a coach upon his return. Bob Bass, the former Floridian coach, has been in Chicago meeting with Finley and remains the prime candidate for the position.

Meanwhile, the contest to rename the club continues. About 3,300 entries have been received. The person selecting the best name will get $2,500, and the next five top entries each will receive two season- tickets.

Olympic Tryouts At Field House

Preliminary tryouts for the regional Junior Olympic Wrestling to be held at Jackson Saturday will be held tonight at 6.30 p.m. in the field house. Boys in the Sikeston area 10 and under and 11 to 18 years old are eligible to enter.

Jr. Babe Ruth Tourney Planned

Sikeston will host a Junior Babe Ruth baseball tournament at VFW stadium, beginning July 28. Boys eligible must have been born between Aug. 1, 1956, and July 31, 1959.

Plans call for as many as 16 teams. Openings still are available and anyone wishing to enter a team can contact Leonard Campbell, 215 North New Madrid, or call 471-1212.

Buys Improves

Greg Buys last week continued to show improvement in his pitching performances for the Kinston, S.C., Class A farm team of the New York Yankees.

The Kennett product worked eight innings, allowing three hits and six walks and striking out five to lower his earned run mark to 5.35. He had a slow start which is reflected by his 2-7 season record. The righthander has worked 69 innings, allowed 73 hits, walked 46 and struck out 56.

Mark Littell, the headline-grabbing star from Gideon, worked only one inning last week, striking out two. His season totals are 4-3 in the won- loss column. The tall righthander has worked 65 innings, allowing 51 hits and 28 walks and fanning 80 for a 3.32 ERA with the Kansas City Royals' Class A Waterloo, Iowa, club.

Gary Owens continued to find base- hits hard to come by as he went 0 for 1 and has only six hits in 39 at bats for the Fort Lauderdale Yanks. The Vanduser native has a .154 batting averrage on the season.

ST. LOUIS — Lou Brock, Bernie Carbo Donn Clendenon, Jose Cruz, Luis Melendez, Ted Simmons and Joe Torre — they'll all compete in a home run-hitting contest during the Family Action Base-ball Clinic July 15.

The annual clinic will be at Busch Stadium at 3 p.m., before an evening game with Cincinnati.

Under the direction of manager Red Schoendienst, the Cardinals also will run through a series of fielding drills and a hittig workout.

Tickets for the free hour-long clinic are available at The Globe-Democrat's public relations department, 12th at Delmar Boulevard, St. Louis, 63101, and at KTVI-Channel 2, 5915 Berthold Ave., St. Louis 63110.

Tickets may be obtained over the counter or by sending a stamped self-addressed envelope to The Globe-Democrat or KTVI.

Seating is on a first-come -first-seated basis, so spectators are urged to come early. Gates will open at 2 p.m.

Flood Sighted

MIAMI - Curt Flood, controversial former baseball star who dropped from public sight several weeks ago, now is living on the island of Majorca off the coast of Spain, a Miami sportscaster said Friday.

"I found him in a bar called the Rustic Inn," said Bob Sheridan of radio station WGBS. "That has become his daily hangout. A picture of him hangs on the wall."

Flood had not been publicly heard from since the U.S. Supreme Court turned down his plea for eradication of major league baseball's reserve clause earlier this month.

"Curt was very kind, but refused to tape an interview or talk about the case," Sheridan said. "I had searched many cities in Europe, during my vacation, looking for traces of Flood. Finally, I came to Majorca and there he was."

Sheridan said Flood told him that he is writing a second book which deals with his legal battle against major league baseball. His main objection to baseball contracts is that they allow a team to "own" a player, hampering his bargaining power.

Sheridan and Flood drives around the island in a red sports convertible and is popular among the natives.

"He seems to be loafing and doing a little writing," Sheridan said. "American tourists haven't overrun the place and he can manage to hide. It's like he was in exile."

Coaching Changes

It's back to the game of musical chairs in the high school coaching ranks. After two seasons of relatively few changes, the list of new coaches in the district has grown.

When football season gets underway this fall, Tom Telle will head the Poplar Bluff Mules, Pete Cirrintano the Sikeston Bulldogs and a new coach will be named at Charleston.

In basketball ranks, Stan Whitson will be the new coach at Risco; Randy Benson will head up Delta C-7; Harold Persful will be the new Richland coach and Larry Joplin will head up the Doniphan cagers. Matthews and Portageville also will have new coaches.

Golf Comments

By Riggs Wesley
SEMO Golf Association Secretary

The annual July Fourth Golf Tournament presented some "soggy" competition Saturday and Sunday at Poplar Bluff Country Club. Play was halted Saturday because of rain, and Sunday the scores of wet but determined golfers braved the conditions and completed the 36- hole individual contest. Contenders had been preclassified into four divisions by Riggs Wesley.

Ken Lanning of Rolla traveled south to take the win in the championship round of the competition with a low score of 138. Buddy Godwin of Poplar Bluff shot a 142 to place second in the class. A 144 by Bob Johnson also of Poplar Bluff was third best.

Dave Estes of Desloge was top man in A class after shooting a 141. Ray Ferguson of Poplar Bluff came up with a 144 to follow. Ron Whittier of Desloge had a score of 149 for third place. Gary Wilcutt of Poplar Bluff took fourth with 150. Jim Godwin, Norman Carringer and Leonard Jones, all of Poplar Bluff, had 152's to share fifth place honors.

Paul Porter of Poplar Bluff topped competition in B class with 146. Second went to Marion Parks of Poplar Bluff with a score of 148. Frank Ward of Piedmont shot 150 for third. Jim Hall of Dexter and Mike Wilcutt of Poplar Bluff tied for fourth with 152 each. Hall took the position a coin flip, handing Wilcutt fifth. Francis Carron of Festus placed sixth after a flip of the coin in which Don Lincoln of Dexter was given seventh place, after both shot 153's. John Lawson and Jack Cope, both of Poplar Bluff, shared eighth, shooting scores of 154.

The rank in C class was dominated by all Poplar Bluff golfers and went as follows: 1. Jim Wilkerson- 153. 2. Randy Livingston - 157. 3. Archie Morgan - 164. 4. Dave Fowler - 165. 5. Frank Tinsley - 166. 6. Eddie Aud - 168 7. Clyde Lasswell- 169 (flip). 8. Charles Love - 169.

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (AP) — With the temperature in the low 80s, skiers from across the country participated Sunday in the 24th annual Lake Placid Summer Ski jump, sliding on 40 tons of cracked ice saved for the occasion from winter's covering of the lake.

Jay Rand of Lake Placid and the University of Colorado jumped 108 and 113 feet to win the senior division. Joe Lamb of Lake Placid placed first in the junior division with two jumps of 95 feet each.

Meat Prices Climbing, AP Survey Indicates

Consumers warned by supermarket officials to expect higher meat prices are finding the warning all too true.

An Associated Press survey of about two dozen cities shows that grocery bills — particularly for the better cuts of beef and for pork — have increased anywhere from a dime a pound on up in the two weeks since the latest warning was issued.

Cabinet officials scheduled a meeting in Washington today with officials of food chains and called in farmers for a Thursday session to help in preparing a food prices report that President Nixon has requested by July 10.

Shoppers, meanwhile, were issuing their own reports.

"The food prices are just terrible now," said a woman in a Seattle, Wash., supermarket. "I know how much the prices have gone up because I just started shopping regularly a year and a half ago when I was married."

"Prices are out of sight," said a man in a Kansas City store. "The very first thing the government should have done in its economic program was to put controls on food prices."

Supermarket executives warned consumers on June 16 to expect a rise in prices, particularly of meat. They said that wholesale costs have been going up and the retail outlets no longer could absorb the increase.

The AP checked prices in a dozen cities on June 16, then checked again two weeks later to see if there had been any change.

Among the findings:

In Seattle, the prices of 10 items were checked. Five went up, one went down and four remained steady. Increases included veal round steak, which went from $2.25 to $2.39 a pound, and rib pork chops, up two cents to $1.09 a pound. Stable items included peanut butter crackers, fruit juices, cheese, mayonnaise, butter and milk.

In the Chicago suburb of LaGrange Park, pork loin end cut went from 79 to 85 cents a pound and jumbo eggs increased from 59 to 65 cents a dozen. Sirloin steak dropped from $1.59 to $1.39 cents a pound, but the manager said the decrease was temporary, due to a holiday special.

In Los Angeles, ground beef went from 73 to 78 cents a pound, sirloin tip steak from $1.49 to $1.67 a pound and a Swiss steak TV dinner from 63 to 67 cents. Items that were unchanged included round steak, chicken legs, russet potatoes, lettuce, onions, liquid cleaner and aluminum foil.

A store manager in Los Angeles said, "It's hard to tell what is happening to food prices because they go up and down continually. We do know that our prices are going up and our profits are going down."

GOV. WARREN E. HEARNES, seated, has proclaimed July 16, 23 as Prevention of Juvenile Delinquency Week and set July 17-18 as dates for the Governor's Conference on Prevention of Delinquency which will be held at the University of Missouri- Columbia. Witnessing the signing of the proclamation are, from left, Dean Arthur W. Nebel of the UMC school of social and community Services; Circuit Judge Alvin C. Randall of Kansas City, chairman of the Missouri Law Enforcement Assistance Council's Juvenile Delinquency Task Force; Mrs. Phyllis Hausfater of St. Louis, chairman of the Governor's Committee on Children and Youth; and William L. Culver, executive director of the Missouri Law Enforcement Council which, with UMC, will sponsor the Governor's Conference.

Court Orders Further Credentials Proceedings

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Circuit Court here today reversed a District Court's decision to uphold the controversial Democratic Credentials Committee decisions on California and Illinois delegations to the party convention and ordered the lower court to conduct further proceedings.

The brief order of the appeals court carried no reasons for the action. The judges were expected to file opinions later in the day. The District Court ruled Monday that the federal judiciary had no place in the debate over delegates from the two states.

The Credentials Committee had issued decisions that stripped Sen. George S. McGovern of 151 California delegates and told Mayor Richard J. Daley and 58 other uncommitted Chicago delegates to stay home.

The committee decisions were likened to a "self-destruct button" by the party's lawyer Tuesday even as he fought to uphold them before the appeals court.

Party counsel Joseph A. Califano told the three judges that federal courts have no business in the party's business. His argument echoed the decision of a U.S. District Court which prompted the Fourth of July appeal.

Many of the dissents concern issues raised by the mandate from the reform commission originally headed by McGovern: that women, young people and minorities be represented at the convention in proportion to their population.

Arguing for McGovern forces in the California case, attorney Joseph L. Rauh Jr. said the party reforms recently instituted specifically do not bar winner- take- all primaries. He claimed the committee had acted arbitrarily and unconstitutionally.

Truman Still Satisfactory

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Former President Harry S. Truman remains in satisfactory condition at Research Medical Center, where he is hospitalized for tests relating to what doctors say is a "lower gastrointestinal ailment."

Hospital officials report the 88- year- old Truman has been resting comfortably and was visited Tuesday by his wife, Bess.

Truman, admitted Sunday, has taken several walks

What's The Law?

Case Of Attack Upon Motherhood

By Jack Strauss, LL. B.

Flighty Flora, a member of the United States Air Force, was shot down by a regulation that required the immediate discharge of any gal who become pregnant. And Flora, full blown, was as pregnant as any gal could get.

Fighting her discharge in court, Flora attacked the validity of the regulation as being discriminatory against women.

"Men aren't bounced from the service when they become papas," she protested incourt. "So why should women be discharged for becoming mamas."

"Because in an emergency," was the answer, "pregnant women can become more of a hindrance than a help. What's more, caring for pregnant servicewomen just isn't in the Air Force budget. The regulation prohibiting storks from landing on our air fields, consequently, is perfectly reasonable.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you approve of FlightyFlora's discharge?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that the regulation is discriminatory in that it forces a woman to choose between motherhood and her career. A restriction upon procreation, observed the judge, must be viewed very carefully. And, in this case, it is unreasonable and invalid. When a woman is pregnant, she can be assigned to a nonsensitive area where there are no hazards and no likely emergencies. As for the cost of carrying pregnant women, concluded the judge, the additional cost is an insufficient reason for the Air Force to deprive a WAF of her personal rights And, mother-hood is a respected personal right. (Based upon a 1972 United States District Court Decision)

APPEARING NUDE causes no hangups for actress Valerie Perrine. She left confining life in Scottsdale, Ariz., as a teen-ager for Las Vegas stage and some nude appearances and now dresses the screen in movies such as "Slaughterhouse-Five."

Weynand To Command U.S. Viet Forces

SAIGON (AP) — The new commander of U.S. forces in Vietnam, Gen. Frederick C. Weyand, was pegged as a rising star in the Army long before he was first sent to Vietnam six years ago.

He proved his battle prowess as a battalion commander in the Korean war. And he demonstrated a talent for diplomacy from 1962 to 1964 in one of the most delicate Pentagon assignments — representing the Army on Capitol Hill as chief of legislative liason.

Even then Weyand's colleagues were picking him as a future chief of staff, a fine performance for an ROTC graduate who never went to West Point. On Wednesday President Nixon gave him a big push toward the Army pinnacle when the White House announced that the 56- year-old native of Arbuckle. Calif., would succeed Gen. Creighton D. Abrams in the top American military post in Saigon.

If he follows the trail blazed by Abrams and his predecessor, Gen. William C. Westmoreland, the next step for Weyand will be Chief of Staff.

Weyand has fought the Vietnamese Communists on the battlefield and sparred with them across the Paris conference table. He recently told friends that the Viet Cong "are as tough in suits and ties as they are in black pajamas."

The Viet Cong might say the same thing about the 6-foot 5-inch blond officer who steered the 25th Infantry Division into South Vietnam in 1966 and three years later turned up in Paris as the cool, articulate military adviser to the American delegation at the peace talk.

Weyand admits that he learned about Vietnam the hard way.

"When I left the 25th in 1967, I was sure the war was won," he told a reporter a few months after his promotion to commander of Field Forces 2. "But then I realized there was a war we hadn't even begun to fight — the war with the Viet Cong amongst the people."

In his new post, Weyand can be expected to work much more closely with top Vietnamese officers than any of his predecessors. As Abrams' deputy since September, 1970, he has concentrated on Vietnamization at the highest level, cutting through red tape by establishing close personal ties with Vietnamese generals who for years were suspicious of the Americans.

Book Review

ONE GENERATION AFTER
by Elie Wiesel
256 pp.)

In a rare tribute to a living writer, NBC-TV assigned an eight- man camera crew to location work in Europe and the Middle East to film a full hour television special on the life of Elie Wiesel. It will be telecast March 19, 1972, to coincide with Avon's publication of ONE GENERATION AFTER.

"Twenty- five years. A quarter- century. And we pause, trying to find our bearings, trying to understand what and how much did these years mean?"

So begins ONE GENERATION AFTER, Elie Wiesel's searching look backward, probing human awareness as it has evolved in the generation since the holocaust of World War II.

Elie Wiesel was born in Hungary and deported to Auschwitz with his family when he whe was still a boy. He was also held at Buchenwald where his parents and a younger sister died.

A central concern of ONE GENERATION AFTER is the account of Wiesel's return to Sighet, the village of his European boyhood. He goes back to search for a bar mitzvah watch he buried before he was imprisoned. The watch is found, but Wiesel reburies it, leaving behind in the earth this tangible proof of his existence.

Wiesel has said, "I write in order to understand as much as to be understood." S. N. Behrman describes him as "a writer on a plane almost entirely uninhabited except by him." The New York Times wrote, "Not since Camus has there been such an eloquent spokesman for man" and Saturday Review says, "After we have listened to what Wiesel has to say, other literature seems meaningless."

SCIENCE IN YOUR LIFE

By Bob Jones

MISSOURI farmers and city dwellers with crop or garden problems can get better help now that the state has been divided into five climatic areas. These area boundaries have been adjusted so that within each area the seasonal patterns of temperature, precipitation, evapotranspiration, and water run-off are similar.

"The definition of these areas will help us to work with soil-plant-climate systems," say scientists C.L. Scrivner, department of agronomy, and J.D. McQuigg, department of atmospheric science at UMC.

Climatic area No. 1 is a triangle in the northwest corner of Missouri made by a line which starts at the Missouri River just upstream from Kansas City and runs northeast to the Iowa line. Area No. 2 includes the rest of north Missouri except for a portion lopped off by a line from Columbia to Hannibal.

Area No. 3 includes all of the area south of that to a line roughly east and west through the Lake of the Ozarks. Area No. 4 is all of the rest of Missouri except for a 10-county block in the southeast corner. That area, which includes the Bootheel, is No. 5.

Using this new map, we can quickly see that the weather of Louisiana, Mo., is more like Clinton's than Macon's. Weather in Chillicothe is more like Lexington's than St. Joseph's. Rolla's weather is closer to Neosho's than it is to Jefferson City's.

You know those smoky diesel exhausts. They are very annoying. However, Emil E. Gutwein, Purdue University, suggests that diesel smoke is more of a nuisance than a peril.

Various organiztions have suggested the addition of barium carbonate or sulfonate to the diesel fuels to reduce the smoke. Rats breathing the barium additive developed numerous illnesses, suggesting to Gutwein that the smoke is the lesser of the two evils.

The citric acid in your orange juice or in other foods looks just like NTA to most chemical testing devices. NTA is nitrilotriacetic acide, a compound that is being recommended as a replacement for the phosphates in household detergents.

Since NTA may cause serious problems in water purification it is important to be able to identify its presence and measure the concentration.

Dr. Walter A. Aue and a group of colleagues in the agricultural chemistry department at the University of Missouri in Columbia have developed a process which permits accurate analysis for NTA and citric acid. And they have pushed this detection to a sensitivity of one part per billion of either acid.

For the first time, scientists will be able to make quick, accurate measurements of the amounts of NTA passing through sewage processing plants and into our streams and rivers.

Scientists are changing. No more do scientists withdraw entirely from the world around them and concentrate their thoughts only on their specific research projects. This may be good, it may be bad.

Take the American Psychological Association, for example. The board of directors of that group of more than 34,000 psychologists has passed a resolution expressing "its profound distress with the continuation of the killing and the uprooting of the Indochinese population and the devastation of its society and countryside."

Seven other organizations representing more than 65,000 mental health and social work progessionals last month released a statement condemning the escalation of the Viet Nam war as psychologically damaging to young Americans.

These groups say the example of violence being set by the conduct of the war is being adopted by young people acting in gangs, as assassins, and in other acts of violence.

The soil in central Missouri is stingy with water. C.E. Marshall of the UMC agronomy department has been studying water use. He finds that rainfall in that area may run off, evaporate, or remain in the surface soils, but less than one inch in 20 will soak through to underground outlets.

Congress Faces Big Workload

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress will have lots of work left when it reassembles July 17 following a two-week recess.

When they adjourned Friday, the legislators had completed six months of the 1972 session. Many of President Nixon's key legislative recommendations remained pending.

Work still facing Congress included:

—Nixon's $5 billion revenue sharing bill, which has passed the House and has had a friendly reception in the Senate Finance Committee.

—Welfare reform, which Nixon has termed his most important domestic proposal. It's fate is uncertain.

—Nixon's government reorganization plans, to reshuffle several Cabinet departments. Support is lacking in Congress.

—Antibusing bills which appear to have been stalled. Republicans say they will offer them as amendments to other legislation.

—The foreign military aid bill which has been encumbered with an end-the-war amendment. Administration supporters will try to kill the amendment.

—A proposed minimum wage hike from $1.60 to $2.20 hourly. Nixon favors $2.

—Gun control legislation already approved by the Senate Judiciary Committee.

McGovern Compares Bombing Of Indochina To Hitler's Campaign

WASHINGTON (AP) — Comparing U.S. bombing of Indochina to Hitler's campaign to exterminate Jews, George McGovern says President Nixon has boxed himself in on the Vietnam war, even if he ends it by election day.

If Nixon can end the war by November he could have stopped it during his first months in the White House, the South Dakota senator said in an interview with The Associated Press. That "should be clear to every American above the level of first-grader's intelligence."

McGovern, the favorite to win the Democratic presidential nomination, also said in a wide-ranging interview: Democratic Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington is among those being left behind by the party's shifting center; McGovern's new welfare and tax-reform plan will benefit most Americans earning between $4,000 and $20,000 per year, and he is boning up on monetary and economic issues.

Here are the questions and answers:

Q. What are your chances of beating President Nixon?

A. I think defeating men like Ed Muskie, Hubert Humphrey and George Wallace for the nomination is a much more complicated and difficult task than it will be to defeat Nixon in the fall, where the issues can be more sharply drawn.

Even assuming the President ends the war by election day, it should be clear to every American above the level of a firstgrader's intelligence that he's timed that for political purposes, that he's accomplishing nothing new that he couldn't have accomplished the first few months he was in office.

Q. Is there no way then that the President can avoid those charges from you, regardless of what happens in the war?

A. There's no way. Some 20,000 Americans have died during his administration and scores of others have gone to prison.hHundreds of those who were sitting in those cells four years ago have sat there another four years under the Nixon policy. We've blown up another $75 billion.

The Nixon policy on Vietnam is worse than the Johnson policy on Vietnam because Nixon had the advantage of watching the failure of that policy under Presi dent Kennedy anc President Jo hnson from the sidelines for eight years.

Beyond that, the slaughter of the innocents in Vietnam is a blot on American history.

Q. If Muskie or Humphrey could win the nomination, how would their chances to defeat Nixon compare to yours?

A. I think it's possible that either Muskie or Humphrey could defeat Nixon. They're both very able campaigners. I think they could address the economic issues very effectively. But I honestly believe I could do better than either one because of my long-standing differences with Nixon on the war policies.

Another sharp issue that I draw with Nixon that would not be drawn by Muskie and Humphrey is the urgent need to substantially move spending away from the military sector to building up the country.

Q. Do you foresee any danger at all of any kind of walkout during the convention or sitout during the campaign by any sizable elements of the party?

A. I don't think so.

You see, what has happened, as I said sometime ago, the old establishment center has collapsed. It's just gone ... The old bipartisan Cold War policy is dead as a doornail. The old concept of allocating most of the budget to the mi litary is dead. The notion that the rich and the powerful should be able to avoid paying taxes is gone. It's just a whole new ball game.

Q. Summarize your plan to end the war and get the prisoners back.

A. I would halt the bombing the moment I was sworn in as president.

Secondly, I would notify Saigon, Hanoi and the Provisional Revolu tionary Government and other interested parties that I was setting a definite date for withdrawal of all American forces within 90 days' time of the inaugural.

Simultaneously I would announce the termination of all military aid to the governments of Laos, Cambodia and South Vietnam. I would journey to Hanoi if necessary on behalf of the early release of those prisoners.

It's my opinion that probably the prisoners won't be released until our forces are withdrawn and all military aid to Saigon is terminated. But I'm confident I can negotiate that kind of an understanding.

Q. Under President Nixon, inflation has slowed down compared to the final months of the Johnson administration, and total employment is up. How might this affect your campaign?

A. Even if I were to accept those assumptions, the American people want economic policies that work more than once every four years.

I think the Nixon economic policies have been a failure. Inflation is entirely too high. He has not solved the problem of unemployment. He has aggravated it. He permitted the farm parity levels to skid during the time he's been in office and accentuated the trend toward big conglomerates, monopoly business, mergers and sweeping out of small businessmen.

The balance-of-payments position has worsened. We've had a trade deficit for the first time since 1888, last year.

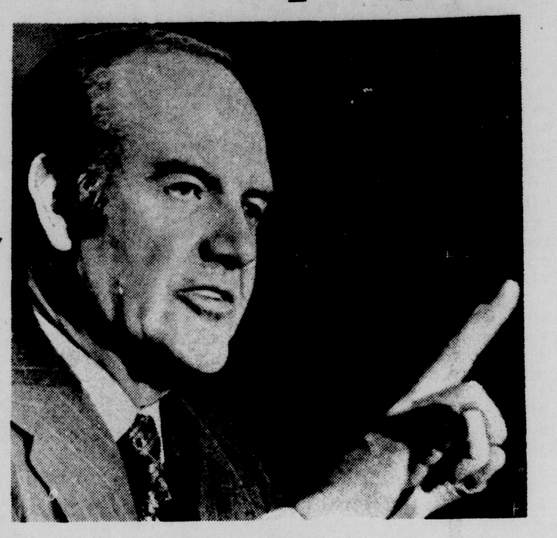
Q. Do you agree with your biographer, Robert Sam Anson, who says you are either unwilling or unable to cope with the technicalities of economic details?

A. I've spent more time trying to broaden my understanding of economics than any other field. I really feel that I know the foreign policy and national defense issues, tax-reform questions, quite well. But it is true that I find the monetary and economic issues difficult.

Q. What can you say about your soon-to-be-announced revised version of your own welfare-reform plan?

A. That's going to become a tax-credit system under which most people will benefit in the form of tax credits.

The people in an income bracket from $4,000 up to about $20,000 will benefit from the program through a combination of either cash grants or tax credit. The whole program will be administered through the Internal Revenue Service.



George McGovern

Q. Did you vote against your conscience in 1967 when you opposed repeal of Section 14b of the Taft-Hartley Labor Act?

A. Yes. I think that was a mistake.

Q. Why shouldn't right-towork be left to the states?

A. I don't think labor laws should be left to the states at all. I think that particularly where you're dealing with interstate commerce, you can't provide for certain exemptions from labor laws by the states.

Q. But when it comes to moral decisions such as abortion, that is within the purview of the states as you see it?

A. Yes. The abortion legislation has always been state law. There has never been federal intervention in that field. I don't advocate any.

Q. Other than the Taft-Hartley vote, is there any other Senate vote or speech you wish you had not made?

A. I wish I had not voted for the Gulf of Tonkin Resolution, although I thought at the time it was the thing to do. I thought it would undercut Goldwater's efforts to brand President Johnson as a softie. I wanted to reinforce Johnson on what I thought was a policy of restraint.

I just regret having ever given the President what he later interpreted as a blank check do so what he wan ted to do in Indochina.

Q. Where would you find more money for the federal treasury besides closing tax loopholes and cutting defense spending?

A. I think a full-employment economy will generate tens of billions of dollars of additional revenue that will come from taxpayers as a whole. Not because of higher tax rates but because of higher income.

Q. What about federal cutbacks in other departments?

A. Oh, I'm sure there's waste and we'll be alert to that.

Q. As president, what would you do about Cuban relations?

A. I would hope that we could open up relations with Cuba with some of the same kinds of things the President's now doing with Peking. I really can't believe that it's more important to isolate Cuba than it is Peking.

You could begin either by invit ing Castro or some designated person to Washington, or vice versa. Whether they would permit an American embassy there I have no idea. But at least we ought to keep that door open. I've never understood the theory that you're safer by not maintaining relations with a country than you are when you maintain diplomatic contact.

Q. Senator, you refer specifically to "hard drugs" when you speak of drugs. What about marijuana? Would you legalize it?

A. No. I would not legalize marijuana in the light of what we now know about it. But neither would I send anybody to the penitentiary. I think that does more damage to the person than any possible damage that could come from the use of marijuana. I would treat it as a misdemeanor rather than a felony.

But on the hard drugs I think there ought to be a dramatic increase in our efforts to put these people behind bars. And I think drug addicts oughtto be apprehended and forced to undergo treatment. It ought to be compulsory to undergo treatment. We shouldn't let drug addicts run around loose.

Nixon Still Favored Over Demo Rivals

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP)— President Nixon continues to be favored by voters over his possible Democratic rivals, according to a recent Gallup Poll.

The results of the survey released Sunday indicate Nixon would gain 53 per cent of the popular vote if his opponent in the presidential election were South Dakota Sen. George McGovern. The survey showed McGovern receiving 37 per cent of the ballots with 10 per cent of the voters undecided.

Against Minnesota Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, the poll showed the President with 55 per cent of the vote, compared with 33 per cent for Humphrey and 12 per cent undecided.

According to the spokesman, the statistics were based on interviews June 16-19 with 1,159 registered voters in 300 communities.

Bond Lists 1,544 Donors To Campaign

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Names of 1,544 donors who gave $129,172 to the Republican governorship campaign of State Auditor Christopher "Kit" Bond were disclosed today.

Alfred C. Sikes, Bond's campaign director, said the average contribution las about $83. The list contained the names of 932 persons who gave $50 or less.

Sikes said he was pleased with the response to the "Bucks for Bond" appeal to broaden the base of the campaign funding.

Sikes said the names of additional contributors will be made public five to 10 days before the Aug. 8 primary election.

SENATE ACTS TO INCREASE FEDERAL PROBATION MANPOWER

WASHINGTON, D.C.--In an effort to increase the number of Federal probation officers to more nearly meet the needs of parole and probation supervision, the Senate has voted increased funds for the Division of Probation through passage of the appropriations bill for the Departments of State, Justice and Commerce.

The Senate bill, as recommended by the Senate Appropriations Committee, permits an increase of 236 Federal probation positions on a nationwide basis. While it does not meet the full request of the Division for an increase of $7 million to provide for 348 additional probation officers and supporting staff, it is well beyond the House provision of only 100 additional officers and staff.

The bill now goes to a Senate-House conference.

Currently there are 640 Federal probation officers supervising over 45,000 persons on probation or parole in the United States. In Missouri alone, 12 Federal officers were charged with 1,128 cases during the past month of May.

The central responsibility of the probation officer is to provide control, guidance and assistance to released offenders to readapt to society and to prevent their return to crime.

Originally the probation system was designed to give young and new offenders a second chance in order to eliminate their association with veteran criminals in a prison environment. Probation officers soon were given the additional responsibility of supervising all persons on parole from Federal prisons.

The Division of Probation now also makes presentencing investigations for the Courts.

New statutes to the law have further increased the workload of the probation officer. For example, the Narcotic Addict Rehabilitation Act of 1966, charges the probation officer with community supervision of convicted narcotic addicts who have been released following an extensive rehabilitation treatment program.

Chief Federal Probation Officer for the Eastern District of Missouri, J. Alan McDoniels, has written this office:

"Our probation offices are finding that supervision caseloads are increasing at a rapid rate, as are our presentence investigations for the courts. Less and less time is available for adequate supervision and treatment of problems that are very much apparent. Our officers are frustrated, realizing that areas needing their attention are having to be ignored in order to handle emergency situations, that if they had time, would not have occurred."

"Probation officers can make the biggest contribution to stemming the increase of law violations if we have adequate staff with reasonable caseloads."

Probation is also beneficial to the taxpayer; per capita probation costs have consistently been 1/10 of the cost for imprisonment.

Missouri faces a comparable shortage of State probation officers as well.

Charged with similar responsibilities as the Federal probation officer but at the State level, Missouri's 87 probation officers handled 6,873 cases, or approximately 75 cases per probation officer, in May.

State probation officers are funded primarily through the State legislatures, but Federal assistance has been provided through the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, Department of Justice.

During the past year LEAA provided for 31 probation officers in addition to the 87 probation officers funded through the State, and approved all of Missouri's 18 probation grant applications totaling funds of $438,568.

Fiscal year 1973 LEAA funds, also included in the Senate-passed appropriations bill, total $850 million, an increase of $151 million over last year's appropriation.

Hopefully this increase will show up in assistance to the State probation program as well.

Navy Gets Woman Instructor

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — The U.S. Naval Academy at Annapolis has decided to change with the times.

This September, Lt. Cmdr. Georgia Clark will become the first full-time woman instructor at the 600-man academy. Her students will all be male.

"I anticipate no disciplinary problems," the 31-year-old officer said Monday during an interview at the home of her parents here.

Miss Clark said she doesn't know if any other women have applied at the academy, although four other women hold lower administrative positions there.

Academically, she has a master's degree in public administration from the University of Washington and bachelor of science in education and physical education from Drury College, Springfield, Mo.

After attending summer school at Arizona State University here in 1962, she "ran out of money and enthusiasm and remembered the literature a Navy recruiter gave me in college.

"I always was interested in international relations and decided the Navy would give me the opportunity to pursue that and learn other skills," she said.

Within eight years, Miss Clark was made lieutenant commander. During her 10 years with the Navy, she has had two tours in Washington, D.C., and spent two years in Hawaii as a personnel officer and administrative assistant to the fleet air commander.

Activities Of Patrol Outlined

JEFFERSON CITY — E. I.(Mike) Hocaday, the superintendent of the Missouri State Highway Patrol, today released the following information on the activities on motor vehicle inspection for the 1971 calendar year:

Defective vehicles - A sampling by the patrol of 333,070 inspection records revealed that 49,479 or 15 per cent of all types of vehicles which are inspected during 1971 were mechanically unsafe. A total of 84,114 items of defective equipment was discovered on these vehicles. This indicates that 1.7 items of vehicular equipment were defective on each vehicle which failed an imspection. If this data were projected to the approximately three million vehicles which were inspected during 1971, 765,000 items of defective equipment would have been found and subsequently corrected.

Defective items - An examination of the sampled 1971 inspection records also disclosed that of those vehicles which were reported to be defective, 31 per cent were rejected because of inoperative lights, 17 per cent for inadequate brakes, 16 per cent for defective exhaust systems, 14 per cent for unsafe steering, and 22 per cent because of faulty tires, glass, and other safety equipment.

Warnings and arrests - There was a decrease in the number of warnings and arrests made by Patrol officers for vehicle defects during 1971 as compared to the previous year. A total of 38,017 warnings and 2,842 arrests were made for vehicle defects last year. This represents a decrease of 13 per cent in warnings and 11.4 per cent in arrests from the number made in 1970. Defects by category for 1971 indicate that warnings for defective mufflers increased 3.5 per cent; however, arrests for the same violation decreased 13.8 per cent. Warnings and arrests for defective lights each decreased 16.5 per cent. Warnings for defective brakes decreased 17.7 per cent and arrests 7.2 per cent, while warnings for other safety equipment decreased 38 per cent and arrests 16.5 per cent.

Inspection stations and mechanics - Highway Patrol officers made 1,557 arrests for violation of the safety inspection laws and regulations during 1971. The majority of these arrests were for failure to display a certificate of inspection and approval. Last year, 207 mechanic permits and 145 station permits were revoked. During this same period, an additional 1,034 inspection stations were qualified and issued permits while 739 stations discontinued operation for various reasons. The total number of stations in operation at the end of the 1971 calendar year was 4,241. Nearly 18,500 mechanics have been qualifed and issued permits to inspect vehicles since implementation of the inspection program.

COOKING-UP with judy gazette

Some days my pace is slow, and I've come to accept that ... however, of late I tend to lose ground, I think!

Following find a bundle of recipes which were destined to go into our Spring & Summer cookbook. Space was a premium item this year, but these rules are courtesy of many good area cooks and should be shared. Pardon my tardiness, please, in printing them ... .

... and I hope your holiday was just perfectly memorable!

MOUSSAKA (Greek Party Dish)

4 medium eggplants (about 1 pound each)
2 pounds lean beef, ground
3 medium onions, chopped
½ cup butter or margarine, divided
½ cup dry red wine
2 tsp. salt
¼ tsp. coarse black pepper
1 tsp. oregano
2 eggs, lightly beaten
1 cup grated sharp Cheddar cheese, divided
½ cup soft bread crumbs, divided vegetable oil
2 cans (1 pound 1 ounce each) plum tomatoes, drained
6 T. flour
3 cups milk
4 egg yolks, lightly beaten

Peel eggplant, cut crosswise in ¼-inch slices. Sprinkle lightly with salt; arrange in stacks; place heavy plate on top, let stand to drain. Cook beef and onions in 2 tablespoons butter until beef is browned. Add wine, 2 teaspoons salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper and oregano. Simmer until liquid is absorbed. Stir in 2 beaten eggs, 3/4 cup grated cheese, and ¼ cup bread crumbs. Brown eggplant slices quickly on both sides in vegetable oil. Grease large casserole or baking dish (3½ - 4 quart). Sprinkle bottom of casserole with remaining crumbs. Fill with alternate layers of eggplant, meat mixture and tomatoes, ending with eggplant, leaving 1-inch head space. Melt remaining butter; blend in flour; add milk slowly, stirring constantly. Season to taste with salt, pepper, and nutmeg. Pour a little hot milk mixture on egg yolks; return to remaining hot milk mixture. Cook about 2 minutes over low heat, stirring constantly until thickened. Pour sauce into casserole. Sprinkle with remaining cheese. Bake at 350 degrees for 45 to 60 minutes or until top is golden brown and eggplant is tender. Makes 10 to 12 servings.

This dish makes a perfect casserole for a very special buffet for a crowd. Greek women spend a whole day preparing it, but our American version includes some short cuts. You can slice, press, and fry the eggplant, grate the cheese, and make bread crumbs the day before. Or, if you wish, prepare the entire casserole, except for the topping, and store in refrigerator. Be sure to allow a little extra time in the oven, if you do this.

Round out the meal with a tossed green salad. French bread, a light dessert, and lots of strong black coffee.

FRIED APPLE PIES

Basic Dough Recipe
½ cup water
2 cups all purpose flour
1¼ tablespoon double acting baking powder
¼ cup nonfat dry milk
1 tsp. salt
6 T. vegetable shortening

Stir baking powder, dry milk and salt into the sifted flour. Sift all dry ingredients together until well mixed.

Cut fat into flour mixture until all particles of fat are thoroughly coated and mixed until it resembles coarse cornmeal.

Stir water into the dry fat mixture. Stir 20-25 strokes. Turn onto lightly floured board and knead about 15 times. Break into balls slightly larger than a walnut. Roll each ball to pastry thickness. (should be round in shape. This you can guide somewhat as you roll it out). Place 2 tablespoons thickened, sweetened, cooked fruit on one half of the cirlce. Keep fruit from outer edge of the circle. Fold over and seal edges firmly with a fork dipped in flour. Filling should be thick and cold. Canned prepared pie filling can be used. Fry in deep hot fat (350 degrees) for about 3 minutes or until browned, turn once and brown the other side.

I use home canned apples seasoned with a bit of cinnamon. When you prepare this recipe be prepared to repeat it often, as it is a constant favorite at our house.

ICEBOX QUICKIE

1 can Eaglebrand
1 small can frozen lemonade mix ..thawed
1 quart size container of Cool Whip

Mix these three items together and four into a graham cracker crust ... Presto in about three minutes you have a quick dessert. Other frozen juices may be used instead of the lemonade mix.

This is a nice dessert that can be whipped up when unexpected guests suddenly appear. It can be served in individual dessert dishes sprinkled over with cookie crumbs or cracker crumbs.

Coffee Corner by Cherie

My oldest just left for boy scout camp this week and I thought you might be interested in the different lists a boy and a mom make out—I mean after all he is suppose to be roughing it!

Mothers List for 6 Days at Camp

6 pr. of underwear
soap
2 towels and wash cloths
comb and brush
toothpaste and brush
pen, stationery and stamps
flashlight
2 pr. of shoes
sleeping bag and pillow
eating kit
2 full scout uniforms
4 pr. of shorts
5 shirts
raincoat coat
swimming suit and towel
scout manual and medical report
Noxema
4 pr. of socks
book to read

I gave much thought to this list and decided although those were only the barest of essentials he could make out with that if he really wished to rough it a little.

What Lee Took for 6 Days at Camp:

2 pr. underwear
soap, 1 towel and cloth (which I stuffed in amid much protest) comb
flashlight
2 pr. shoes
sleeping bag and pillow
15 pieces of beef jerky
eating kit
2 scout uniforms
2 pr. shorts
3 shirts
1 swimming suit jacket and hat
scout manual and report
Noxema
1 ton of firecrackers
1 empty jar (I presume tor bugs)

The rest of my list he ignored as being unworthy of a young man in the wilderness. All I can say is I sure hope he spends a lot of time in the water and preferably with his much used clothes on!

Toys Recalled

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration today announced the recall of more than 200,000 toys banned as hazardous to children.

Fewer than 10 per cent are estimated to be in retail channels, the FDA said partly beause of the delay in publicly announcing recalls dating back to last November.

The 10 types of toys involved include squeeze dolls, toy lawn mowers, rattles, musical balls, musical typewriters, and wooden toy soldiers with pars that cannalice, puncture, be swallowed or inhaled.

SENSING THE NEWS

U.S.-MEXICO RELATIONS

A little-known feature of the visit of President Luis Echeverria of Mexico to the United States bodes ill for harmonious relations between the two countries. In an extraordinary breach of diplomatic etiquette, President Echeverria held a private meeting in New York City with a group of intellectuals of leftist views and joined them in condemning the United States.

This meeting came after the president of Mexico had been received with pomp in Washington and appeared before a special joint session of Congress. Unfortunately, the New York meeting apparently wasn't reported outside the Washington press.

Two days after concluding his state visit to the nation's capital, President Echeverria took part in a meeting of American writers, actors and journalists. This meeting according to The Washington Post, was arranged by a group of radical writers as I.F. Stone and Michael Harrington. According to the Post, the President of Mexico told the assembly of American leftists that "conservative" U.S. interests were responsible for keeping Mexican students rebellious and ignorant and deprived them of technical training. He criticized U.S. corporations doing business in Mexico and said President Nixon was indifferent to the problems of Mexican migrant farm workers. Mr. Echeverria agreed to call a conference proposed by his guests, and the meeting apparently aimed at criticizing the United States. He also asked the group how to get the mute of U.S. policies could be changed.

President Echeverria's meeting in New York was an abuse of hospitality and furor in Mexico if President Nixon convened a gathering of conservative Mexicans and blasted Mexican policies and society while an official guest in the country.

The meeting in New York City suggests, at the very least, that Mexico has a national leader who is indiscreet and contemptuous of diplomatic usages. This is unfortunate, for U.S. relations with Mexico have steadily improved since the 1930s. Recent presidents of Mexico have been warmly received in the United States, American tourists and investors have been welcomed in Mexico, and both countries have benefited from closer association.

Mexico is still a very poor nation, and economic partnership with U.S. companies is the best way for the land south of the border to make rapid economic progress. Where the countries have problems, as in the case of water quality in the Colorado River, solutions can be found through quiet negotiation.

The visit to Echeverria however, apparently wants to stir trouble. According to some observers, he is interested in giving a new nationalist direction to Mexico's foreign policy. Mexicans would do well to consider the content of Echeverria's new nationalism.

The new trade agreement his government worked out with Castro's Cuba certainly won't help Mexico's economic difficulties, which include a $1 billion trade deficit. The new solution to these difficulties lies in opening new markets in the United States. An anti-U.S. stance by the President of Mexico is likely to cause Congress to be unsympathetic toward Mexico's troubles.

The Institutional Revolutionary Party (PRI), Echeverria's attitude at the Inter-American Development Conference in Chile, will prove a stumbling block for Mexicans who want their country to go the route of 1970s.

Mexico is too great a country to go the route of some of the South American countries that imagine anti-Yankee rumblings are a substitute for collaboration with an advanced capitalist nation. Hopefully, informed public opinion and practical men in his own party will curb President Echeverria's tendency to stress criticism and confrontation instead of cooperation.

SKIRTING THE ISSUES?—Mrs. Vicki Jebsen has launched a one-woman campaign at the U.S. Army Weapons Command (WECOM) and Rock Island (Ill.) Arsenal to get everyone to vote in 1972. Mrs. Jebsen, a secretary, was selected as Miss WECOM Voting—1972 to help her fellow workers concentrate on their responsibilities as citizens. (U.S. Army photo by Spl John Hilliard)

Would-Be Skyjacker

Releases Child, Surrenders

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — A man surrendered to an FBI agent early today after holding his 17-month-old daughter hostage at knifepoint and threatening to kill her in an abortive attempt to hijack an American Airlines jet, police said.

The FBI said the man, identified as Charles Smith, 23, of Buffalo, agreed to give up after being assured that police would not harm him.

According to the FBI and local police, the entire episode began with a stabbing incident in Buffalo's inner city during the early morning hours.

Richard Ash, special agent in charge of the FBI office here, said Smith boarded the unoccupied jetliner as it stood near a terminal gate about 5 a.m. at Buffalo International Airport.

He demanded that the airline provide a pilot for the craft and said he would kill the child if his demands were not met.

"He apparently decided he was not going to get out" of the airport, Ash said, describing how Smith put down the knife he was carrying and walked down the ramp of the plane 2½ hours later, carrying his daughter. He was accompanied by an unidentified FBI agent who had sneaked aboard the plane.

The child, identified as Jetuan Smith, was not injured, Ash said. Ash said blood on the infant's clothing was Smith's from a wound he suffered earlier.

Ash said Smith would face a charge of attempted hijacking.

Police said Smith had allegedly stabbed the girl's mother and a man earlier in Buffalo. The woman was reported in critical condition, the man in fair condition, at Deaconess Hospital.

Police said Smith apparently slipped aboard the unoccupied jet about 5 a.m. and demanded that American Airlines provide a pilot for the craft.

"I want a pilot," he shouted to police and FBI agents who surrounded the plane as it stood at a terminal gate.

A group of FBI agents and police gathered near a ramp to the plane, using a baggage cart as a barricade.

A man and woman took turns using a bullhorn to call up to Smith. The woman, identified by an FBI agent as Smith's mother, walked part way up the ramp at one point, talked with Smith, then returned.

Smith and the girl were visible just inside the plane.

Scores of airline passengers passed through the terminal as usual. Many seemed unaware of what was happening at the American gate.

Burden Posts $10,000 Bond

NEW MADRID — Alex Junior Burden, 24, of St. Louis Tuesday posted $10,000 sheriff's bond and was released from custody pending filing of charges of manslaughter by automobile, careless and imprudent driving by excessive speed and failure to exercise care.

Burden was fleeing from police Sunday when his automobile slammed into the rear of a car being driven by John Edward Cooper of St. Louis, who had slowed for a roadblock on Interstate 55 north of Highway 162 interchange. Cooper and four others died in the car after it burst into flames.

Six Hurt In 16 SeMo Accidents

Independence Day set the scene for 16 automobile accidents and six injuries on Southeast Missouri roads, the highway patrol announced today.

Patrol spokesmen said Troop E District had a total of 76 accidents during the four-day holiday period with 53 injuries and five fatalities -- all in one accident on Interstate 55 near Portageville Sunday. The period began at 6 p.m. Friday and ended at midnight Tuesday.

Accidents and injuries Tuesday included:

A one-car mishap at 4:20 p.m. on Route D east of the Parma city limits occurred when a car driven by Willie Bradley, Jr., 22 of Portageville struck a bridge and went out of control. A passenger in the car, Bobby Austin, 27, of Portageville received minor injuries Both men were treated at Pemiscot County Memorial Hospital and released.

On Route T seven miles west of Fredricktown at 2:45 p.m. a two-car collision resulted in injuries to Patricia Weisner, 21, of St. Louis. She was a passenger in a car driven by Phillip Weisner, 21, also of St. Louis. An auto driven by Joe Shackleford, 21, of Lamesa, Texas, sped out of control, weaved across the highway several times and hit the Weisner vehicle. Mrs. Weisner was taken to Madison County Hospital in Fredricktown with possible broken ribs.

Four were injured at 5:35 p.m. on a gravel road one mile west of Perryville when a car driven by Marvin Pease, 44, of St. Louis went out of control, left the road and hit a tree stump.

The driver suffered internal injuries. Passengers injured were Irma Clifton, 78, of St. Louis, leg and internal injuries; Joseph Clifton, 47, of St. Louis, internal injuries and severe facial cuts; and Ima Pease, 39, of St. Louis, leg and internal injuries.

All were taken to Perry County Hospital in Perryville.

Dexter To Advertise For Water Project Bids

DEXTER — The city has received permission from the Department of Housing and Urban Development to begin advertising for bids for a water improvement project, it was announced Monday during the City Council meeting.

July 24 at 7 p.m. was set for the letting date on bids submitted.

A partial payment of $4,680 to Keener Gravel Company was approved by the Industrial Park Development Project.

The councilmen, upon recommendation by Mayor Willis Conner, approved paying street and water department employes time and one-half for overtime work in cases of storms and other hardship situations.

Effective July 1, the council approved Metropolitan Insurance Company to cover city employes on medical and life insurance.

Annual dues assessed at $903.60 for Bootheel Regional Planning Commission was approved for payment.

A resolution was passed authorizing the city to enter an agreement with the highway department to run sewer lines on the south side of Highway 60.

Two ordinances were passed to pave Memory Lane and one block of Sassafras street, running from Stoddard through East South Main streets.

Mayor Conner appointed a committee with James Williams as chairman to study a contract offered to the city by Tom Stewart, representative of Motorola of Sikeston, to maintian base communication equipment which will be installed in the new fire house now under construction.

Licenses for Sunny's Tavern were approved.

Appeal To Sikeston Council

Pilots Urge Airport Improvements

Two members of Sikeston Pilots Association told the City Council Monday night that the airport is in need of improvements.

Dave Keenan and Bill Swann said the most needed improvements are extending and resurfacing the runway. Swann said the runway should be extended to 5,000 feet so modern high-performance business aircraft could use the airport. He said some visitors to Sikeston have to land at Cape Girardeau or Malden airports where runways can handle their planes.

Swann said the runway should have a paved surface instead of the present stone-imbedded asphalt. Swann said stones work themselves loose and damage planes. Loose stones are especially dangerous to jet aircraft because they can be sucked into the engines.

One small jet reportedly has received engine damage from runway stones.

Other proposed improvements included sweeping of the runways and taxiways at weekly intervals with the city sweeper and improved lighting.

Keenan told the council that a good modern airport is necessary to attract new industry. He said federal grants are now available to help finance local airport improvements. Under the program, the federal government pays 50 per cent of the cost, the state 25 per cent and the city 25 per cent.

City Council members expressed interest in the idea but said they didn't know where they could get the money for the city's share of the cost. They pointed to the city's tight financial situation and said there is just no money available.

In other action, the council decided to sell the old City Administrative Building as by the Circuit Court, rather than carry the legal battle further in a new trial.

Councilmen said the reason for their decision was that the Chamber of Commerce, one of two origional bidders for the structure, has moved its offices from the building and no longer wanted it. Council members added that the city could use the extra money the sale would bring.

The council voted to override objections of a group of residents on William Street who do not want the street paved from Carroll Street to Coles Subdivision. Councilmen said the road would have to be paved sooner or later, and decided the disputed section shouid be paved at the same time as the rest of the street.

The council decided to back the tax bills for the improvements of Alabama and Washington Streets. The contractor had refused to do the work until the city backed the bills.

Sun To Eclipse Monday

Sikeston residents will be able to see about 60 per cent of the eclipse of the sun coming up Monday. According to the American Museum-Hayden Planetarium in New York City the eclipse will begin at 2:22 p.m. Central Standard Time, reach its maximum at 3:42 and end at 4:45.

The thousand mile an hour shadow will dip down at the Sakhalin Islands off northern Japan, then race across the coast of Siberia, northern Alaska, Canada and Maritime Provinces.

All of the United States except Hawaii will be able - weather permitting - to see a partial eclipse.

Because the eclipse will be partial for viewers in the 48 states, millions will be exposed to the dangers of looking at the sun with the naked eye. "Looking at the unshielded face of the sun with the naked eye or through any optical device, such as the viewfinder of a camera, can seriously damage the eye," says a warning from eye specialists.

A person must use a filter to look directly at the sun. It must be a filter that will not only reduce the visible energy of the sun but will also reduce sufficiently the invisible ultraviolet and infrared radiation, which can cause instant eye damage including blindness, without the viewer being aware of it. Such a filter can be made

HAYTI -- After receiving a telephone call Tuesday at 6:45 p.m. advising them of a "shootout," city police and highway patrolmen investigated and arrested Quitman Carter, 24, of Steele Route Two in connection with the shooting of Wade Holland of Hayti.

Police Chief Fritz McKay said Carter reportedly drove into the Tex-Gas Service Station on Highway 61 South where Holland is an attendent and demanded service. After efforts to calm Carter failed, Holland apparently tried to subdue him and was shot twice with a small pistol. Chief McKay said reports state that Carter was drunk at the time of the shooting.

Holland, who was shot twice in the neck, was treated at Pemiscot County Memorial Hospital and released.

Carter is being held in city jail pending charges of felonious assault.

Weed Control Ordinance Passed

NEW MADRID — In a brief Independence Day Eve meeting Monday night, the city Council passed two ordinances, heard a report on power plant construction, authorized a letter of commendation and discussed other matters.

A weed control ordinance was passed, permitting the city to assess the cost of cutting weeds as a tax bill against property owners. The ordinance provides that weeds may not be allowed to grow more than 12 inches in height and, on violation of the ordinance, property owners will be given 10-day notice of a hearing by either the city administrator or city marshal.

During the 10-day period, property owners may either cut the weeds or appear to show why they should not be cut. On failing to appear or cut the weeds, an additional five-day notice is filed with the city clerk, after which the weeds will be cut by the city and cost assessed against the property. These costs would be a tax lien against the property and will draw eight per cent interest until paid.

A second ordinance was passed to set out truck routes for commercial trucks and limit truck weight on residential streets to a gross of 12,000 pounds, except for trucks making pickups and deliveries.

A resolution of commendation for Russell Ellis, city administrator, who resigned, effective Friday, was introduced by Councilman Bob Blom and was unanimously approved by the council.

Power plant construction bills totaling $523,108.68 were ordered paid. Approved were construction payrolls for the week ending June 23 for $309,728.79 and June 30 for $237,025.27.

In a report to the council, Bill Jerome of Associated Electric Cooperative, Inc., which is in charge of construction and will manage the plants upon completion, told the board that operating tests were being made and that a trial run under load would be made during the next several days. The plant is expected to be in full operation by the end of the month.

City Administrator Russell Ellis told of a tentative proposal by Cotton Belt Railroad to close the depot at New Madrid and to handle all New Madrid traffic from the Malden office. If adopted, New Madrid customers would be allowed to sign their own bills of lading.

Ellis also told the board that construction of new streets in the northeast section of town should be placed on the construction list for next year.

Patrol To Inspect More Sikeston Sites

City officials seem to be growing increasingly confident that Sikeston will be the new home of the Troop E headquarters of the State Highway Patrol.

Col. E. I. (Mike) Hockaday of Jefferson City, superintendent of the patrol, will return to Sikeston soon to inspect additional sites. Hockaday has already looked at two 20- acre sites near the Interstate 55 and 57 interchange on which the city has options and at a third site on which the city does not.

The city offered to provide the land free complete with all utilities. It makes the same offer on the new property Hockaday will be coming to see.

"We've made the patrol an offer they can't pass up," Mayor Frank Ferrell said Monday.

Other cities, including Dexter, Poplar Bluff, Cape Girardeau and Jackson, have also made offers, although none appear to be as attractive as Sikeston's. Cape Girardeau has not even offered a specific site.

"From a practical standpoint," Ferrell said, Sikeston is a better location for the highway patrol."

Sikeston is believed to be the only location in the country outside of metropolitan areas where two interstate highways intersect. A major portion of traffic in the Bootheel already passes Sikeston and, with the opening of bridges at CAiro, Ill., and Caruthersville, traffic volume is expected to skyrocket.

Ferrell pointed out that traffic control is the patrol's major concern.

Ferrell said other pluses for Sikeston include the airport. The sites here would be only two and a half miles driving distance from the airport on four- lane highway. The Poplar Bluff site is much farther from the airport and troopers must travel on crowded two- lane roads.

Ferrell also said Sikeston is the communications and postal hub for the area.

In addition, the city has an excellent school system and hospital, and its recreation facilities are undergoing major expansion.

In addition, Ferrell added, Sikeston is better located geographically then Poplar Bluff for the patrol headquarters.

Car Blazes Downtown

Firemen were called to extinguish a blaze in a car at 11:45 a.m. Tuesday in front of Southwestern Bell Telephone Company offices on Center Street.

Firemen report only minor damage was done to the car owned by Mrs. Otto Hahs, 222 Dorothy. The fire was caused when the carburetor backfired.

HAYTI — Voters Monday overwhelmingly approved annexation of 120 acres east of the city by a vote of 189 for to 8 against.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

At some parties, half the evening is spent coaxing certain people to sing, and the rest of the evening listening to poor music.

THE COST OF THE FOURTH

Have you ever wondered what happened to those men who signed the Declaration of Independence? Five signers were captured by the British as traitors, and tortured before they died. Twelve had their homes ransacked and burned. Two lost their sons in the Revolutionary Army, another had two sons captured. Nine of the 56 fought and died from wounds or the hardships of the Revolutionary War.

What kind of men were they? Twenty- four were lawyers and jurists. Eleven were merchants, nine were farmers and large plantation owners; men of means, well educated. But they signed the Declaration of Independence knowing full well that the penalty would be death if they were captured. They signed and they pledged their lives, their fortunes, and their sacred honor.

Carter Braxton of Virginia, a wealthy planter and trader, saw his ships swept from the seas by the British navy. He sold his home and properties to pay his debts, and died in rags.

Thomas McKeam was so hounded by the British that he was forced to move his family almost constantly. He served in the Congress without pay, and his family was kept in hiding. His possessions were taken from him, and poverty was his reward. Vandals or soldiers looted the properties of Ellery, Clymer, Hall, Walton, Gwinnett, Hayward, Ruttledge, and Middleton.

At the battle of Yorktown, Thomas Nelson Jr., noted that the British General Cornwallis, had taken over the Nelson home for his headquarters. The owner quietly urged General Washington to open fire, which was done. The home was destroyed, and Nelson died bankrupt. Francis Lewis had his home and properties destroyed. The enemy jailed his wife, and she died within a few months.

John Hart was driven from his wife's bedside as she was dying. Their 13 children fled for their lives. His fields and his grist mill were laid waste. For more than a year he lived in forests and caves, returning home after the war to find his wife dead, his children vanished. A few weeks later he died from exhaustion and a broken heart. Norris and Livingston suffered similar fates.

Such were the stories and sacrifices of the American Revolution. These were not wild- eyed, rabble- rousing ruffians. There were soft- spoken men of means and education. They had security, but they valued liberty more. Standing tall, straight, and unwavering, they pledged: "For the support of this declaration, with a firm reliance on the protection of the Divine Providence, we mutually pledge to each other, our lives, our fortunes, and our sacred honor."

LUMPS IN THE
FEDERAL GRAVY

According to the Tax Foundation, a nonprofit research organization that keeps tabs on government spending, more money was collected in federal taxes in 21 states in the last fiscal year than was returned to them in the form of federal grants.

In a typical county in Ohio, for instance, every dollar that came from Washington for welfare, education, health, housing, highways, urban renewal, etc., actually cost the local taxpayers $1.55.

At the same time, of course, 29 other states received more in federal aid than they paid in federal taxes. In other words, money from the wealthier states is distributed to the less wealthy, which is only right. This is, after all, one country.

But would it not possibly make more sense if that Ohio county were permitted to keep its dollar and send only the 55 cents to Washington? Likewise all other counties in the same taxes vs.- benefits situation?

Think of the dollar loss due to "friction" as money is shuttled back and forth between the states and the federal government.

Ah, but then think of all the federal jobs that would be lost if things were simplified, and start dreaming about something else.

CHAVEZ: MASTER
OF DECEPTION

When labor historians take a look at the 1970's, farm union boss Cesar Chavez probably will be remembered as the union chieftain most practiced at giving the American public the touch of melodrama it seems to thrive on, the man who best realized that most Americans are push- overs for a sad- eyed con man with a fast tongue and a good song- and- dance.

A harsh judgment, Chavez fans might say, but the sad truth is that Cesar Chavez is probably the greatest flimflammer organized labor has ever known.

Take a look at what happened recently in Arizona.

A new state farm labor- relations act was passed by the legislature and signed by Gov. Jack Williams, guaranteeing Arizona agricultural workers the right to join or refuse to join a labor union and still hold their jobs. This and other provisions opposed by Chavez resulted in his going on a 24-day protest fast, which in turn resulted in his much publicized "live and in color" hospitalization via ambulance with screaming siren.

The eyes of the nation were focused on Chavez, while commentators everywhere closely scrutinized the new Arizona law from the union boss' standpoint. All the while, Chavez must have been chuckling to himself, because the very law he was dramatically protesting left the door open to Chavez' union hiring halls, the one thing above all others that he needed to put a stranglehold on Arizona's farm labor force.

So while all eyes were on Chavez, in sympathy, a law was passed that denied him the right to force union membership on farm workers by law, but at the same time gave him extra legal power to circumvent the Right to Work laws, as construction union chieftains have been doing for years.

Workers don't "have to" join the union, unless they want to work. That's the way of life in the construction industry, and every other industry (such as longshore) that has the hiring hall. The fact that the law gives non- members the same hiring rights as union members doesn't mean union bosses do.

Without the hiring hall, Chavez could not hope ever to control the farm labor force and the farm industry. With it, he will.

He may not have won all that he wanted, but he certainly got what he needed.

Author Ralph de Toledano said in his 1971 book, Little Cesar ($1 from Anthem Books, 1052 A National Press Building, Washington, D.C. 20004), that Chavez' war on California grape pickers had tremendous potential "for propaganda and obfuscation." And Chavez established himself as a master.

Now he's pulled off another fast one. And the push-over American public has been duped again.

PEOPLE CAGES,
ANIMALS ROAM

A drive-through wildlife preserve scheduled to open this summer in West Milford, N.J., is representative of a new trend in zoos.

Called Jungle Habitat, the preserve is the first of its kind in the northeastern United States and is designed to give the more than 1,500 animals and birds living there, the freedom to roam at will in a natural environment. The 1,000 -acre site consists of land features similar to those found in the wilds of Africa, the native homeland of many of the species.

"By using only natural and hidden barriers to contain the preserve's wildlife and separate predators from their prey,what we've really created here is a 'non-zoo,' " says R. Brian Hunt, president of the venture.

As in other such facilities visitors will be asked to remain within the safety of their "people cages" (their automobiles) in the extensive drive-through areas of the preserve. One of the main attractions will be the excitement of not knowing what animal will be waiting around the next curve on the trail. Eyeball - to - eyeball confrontations with lions, tigers and other beasts will not be uncommon.

People in cages and animals left free to roam. Animal lovers will agree that that's the way a zoo ought to be.

TOO NEAR
REGULAR SESSION

If, as reported, Governor Hearnes is considering calling an extra special session of the Legislature in September, we hope he reconsiders and doesn't do it.

In the first place, most of the Representatives and Senators and many others running for state office, will be in the thick of the fall campaign. This fact, together with the regular duties most have back home, will limit the time they have to devote to legislation and be a burden on them.

It is also so near the time for the regular session in January that we can't think of anything that is too urgent to wait until then.

It would be an injustice to the legislators and an unneeded extra expense for the taxpayers to call an extra session. We also doubt that any good legislation could come out of it, if it didn't get attention in the session just ended. — Paris Appeal.

DISMAYING MALAISE
OF YOUTH'S SPIRIT

Every schoolboy knows — or used to know — the story of how the Greek mathematician Archimedes calmly continued drawing figures in the sand even as Roman troops broke into the city of Syracuse, Sicily, in 212 B.C.

In a somewhat more modern setting, a scene from a work of fiction but nevertheless true to life, the beloved Mr. Chips continued instructing a class of boys in Latin even as German bombs exploded outside.

Such Archimedean or Chipsian detachment and inner calm and determination to let nothing interfere with the really important things used to be considered admirable.

Today, Mr. Chips' Latin class would hoot the old dodderer out of the room with choice Anglo-saxon expletives.

This spring a writer railed in the Daily Californian, the student newspaper at the University of California in Berkeley, about those professors:

"... who refuse to be flexible, who refuse to allow their students to reconstitute (that is, take over) their classes, who in the face of napalm and National Guard killings in Kent and Augusta, Ga., have the irresponsible self-righteousness to demand that they be allowed to continue to teach Shakespeare and calculus."

Undoubtedly, this student, assuming he has ever heard of Archimedes or Mr. Chips, would point out that the first was run through by a Roman sword and that the second deserved to be for teaching a subject even less "relevant" than Shakespeare.

Yet what time hasn't been a time of crisis, and when hasn't it been "irresponsible self-righteousness" to demand that learning go on as usual? No matter how much upheaval there is outside the ivory tower, someone has to mind the store of mankind's accumulated knowledge.

From another campus, however, the word seems to be that it is a waste of time.

In an article in the New York Times magazine on the 1970 graduating class at Harvard, several students suggest that they already know all there is to know, that there is nothing more to strive for, that society's problems are insurmountable, and that there is no alternative but to await the end, which is coming not with a bang but a whimper.

"I mean," says one, "there's this feeling that it's all over. I don't mean in the sense of an apocalypse or a revolution. But really everything is just groaning to a halt. The environment's going up in smoke. We can't deal with 200 million people. How can we deal with 300 million?"

"In the four years that we've been here," says another, "every major rule has been removed. Nobody believes in work, nobody does final drafts of papers... Everybody's bored. A professor can't keep people interested for 60 minutes if he does a song and dance act."

This year's Harvard graduating class, to hear them tell it, has been everywhere and done everything. Four of them have had books published, all dealing, of course, with various aspects of the campus revolt. They have not only slept with girls but have lived with them. They are both too soon smart and too soon old. In place of guts, they are filled with self-pity.

It was Voltaire, when asked what he would do if he knew he were going to die that afternoon, who replied that he would simply finish hoeing his garden.

A dismaying number of young people today have no gardens to hoe. Their souls are deserts.

ARE WE ABOUT TO SUFFER a terrible defeat in Southeast Asia? There has been no will to win the war, and every effort made to take our men out and leave our ally, South Vietnam, to face the enemy alone. And that enemy is backed by Russia and China. We read last week the number of South Vietnamese soldiers who were deserting and running away. They can't be blamed for the supposedly strongest, bravest, wealthiest nation in the world has 85,000 deserters and draft evaders on foreign soil, and there is great feeling here that they should be forgiven and invited home with just a minimum of penalty. We liked that incident where a group of deserters were faced by loyal troops with leveled guns and told to get back into battle of die right there. They went back. — Shelbina Democrat.

SETTING THE STAGE

Conceivably, the country is now approaching a time when a combination of circumstances could lead to extension of authority of a dictatorial nature. Such is the danger seen by noted columnist Stewart Alsop, in a recent discussion of a growing tendency to ignore or defy the law.

Writes Mr. Alsop,"...the danger is not immediate. But the disintegration of the authority of the 'established government' could produce an authoritarian regime, if it were combined with a severe economic depression. That combination could happen here. " Mr. Alsop's view is strenthened by a late public opinion poll which shows that 30 per cent of the people believe the U. S. lacks "strong leadership." All of which coincides uncomfortably with an increasing dependence on government for solutions to most problems.

WHAT A WAY TO GO

All it takes is a little will power to kick the habit, as any ex-smoker can tell you and probably has — again and again.

But other factors can help, too. For many who have stopped smoking, a change of scene or break from the daily routine was the thing which, combined with determination, helped them over the first high hurdle.

Like a Caribbean cruise, for instance?

This fall, would-be ex-smokers will participate in just such an experiment sponsored by the Institute for New Motivations. The institute, headquartered in New York City, is a unique service dedicated to the proposition that the creation of special environments can help individuals deal with a variety of personal problems. Initial emphasis will be directed to the smoking habit.

The program is built around Caribbean cruises lasting about two weeks. The first two cruises will leave New York on September 18 and November 20 of this year aboard the 20,000-ton Santa Paula, chartered from Prudential-Grace Lines by the institute, with stops in Aruba, Caracus, Port au Prince and Kingston.

Cigarettes will not be available on the ship, says Joseph A. Blasko, managing director of the institute, and all passengers and ship's personnel are pledged not to smoke during the cruises.

Self-help will be stressed, but a number of professionally developed techniques will be available to assist passengers, including lectures, group discussions and self-hypnosis. A team of psychiatrists, psychologists and other institute personnel will also be there to lean on.

Even if some of the passengers don't reach their final destination, freedom of the smoking habit, just trying to get there ought to be half the fun.

MOBILIZING FOR PROGRESS

The space effort has been even more than an epic of exploration. It has marked a turning point in the art of mobilizing knowledge and putting it to work. Many industries today operate on the same principle that put men on the moon. They draw together the skills and brains of many individuals to achieve results for the benefit of mankind that could never be achieved in any other way.

No better illustration of this scientific mobilization can be seen than in the U. S. prescription drug industry. The lifesaving drugs on the market today are a result of teamwork in the lab. A striking booklet, published by one of the largest prescription drug firms tells the story. It says, "... the process of invention in pharmaceutical science is not done as many people visualize -- with an Ehrlich or a Pasteur holding up a test tube and proclaiming a great discovery. The day is gone when the development of a modern drug is the produce of one man. Individual effort still is very important. But it takes a team of highly trained specialists to muster the technical and intellectual resources that can solve the questions posed by the different chemical and biological sciences. Pharmaceutical research today is a systematic, cooperative venture of many individuals over a period of years."

The scientific mobilizing ability of the nation's leading drug houses have paid off handsomely. Of the 70 most valuable compounds introduced to medicine in this century, 60 have been discovered and developed in industrial research laboratories. And 95 per cent of the hundreds of new drugs discovered since World War II have come from these labs. Under the impetus of this new style scientific teamwork, which is an evolutionary outgrowth of private inititative, the horizons of human advancement have become virtually limitless -- if the heavy hand of political interference and the antiscience cult can be held at bay.

A man walking his dog one evening, noticed a man get out of his car and leave the doors open. Trying to be helpful, he closed them. The owner came bounding down from the porch and opened them again. He said, politely, "You wouldn't know, but I'm trying to sell this car. I want the lights on when the family comes out to look it over. I always leave the doors open when I show a car at night."

IN RETROSPECT

Mayor Sam Yorty of Los Angeles cut through to the heart of the Vietnam matter the other day when he said that some of the leading politicians of the U.S. at the national level had changed sides on the war issue and that the whole thing could have, and should have, been ended with a victory for Freedom several years ago. The Mayor would remove the war from current campaigning for the Presidency and have the nation unite in foreign policy efforts. This makes sense. Mayor Yorty is talking like a professional statesman and the comments here are non-political since he is for all practical purposes eliminated as a contender for Presidential candidacy nomination.

The Admiral in technical command of all our operations in the Pacific theater told Mayor Yorty, he disclosed, that the war could have been won in the mid-1960s had the military been given the go-ahead to strike Haiphong and other North Vietnamese cities. The Admiral's comments were made back in those years when the U.S. was getting deeply involved in the conflict on the side of the South Vietnamese. Mayor Yorty said he talked to President Lyndon Johnson about it at the time. The President, Yorty said, listened to the politicians in the Senate instead of the military. Thus the chance to win the longest war in U.S. history slipped away, probably forever.

History will hold the timid of those years to strict accountability. When the secrecy of present-day summitry is bared by history, it may show that we were forced to go to the citadels of communism, Moscow and Peking, for a helping hand in getting out of the war, all because we lacked the courage to win it in the 1960s. We won't have to wait on history to know that we financed the war through deficit spending. HLH.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON -- It happens every four years. A national election turns into a national free-for-all

According to the old math of American politics, everything during an election is reduced to its lowest common denominator. Candidates become cartoon-like caricatures; issues become simple-minded rallying cries; the presidency is streaked with mud.

But we might remind our readers on this July Fourth holiday that the candidates are also capable of rising above campaign pettiness. We have learned that America's two veteran antagonists -- Hubert Humphrey and Richard Nixon -- on occasion have put integrity first and their political ambitions second.

As Vice President during the 1968 campaign, Humphrey read the secret diplomatic cables from Saigon. He learned from these cables that high-ranking Republican fund raisers were pressuring President Thieu in South Vietnam to boycott the proposed peace talks until after the election. This prevented the Democrats from softening the war issue, which Nixon was using against them.

Humphrey acknowledged to us that he had seen the cables, but said he had refused to use them against Nixon.

"A scandal like this would have clouded the Vietnam issue and divided the country unnecessarily," he said. "I was convinced that Richard Nixon knew nothing about what was going on in Saigon."

NIXON'S SECRET

Earlier, following the 1960 election, Richard Nixon was furnished evidence that Democrats had stuffed the ballot boxes in three crucial states -- Illinois, Missouri and Texas. This gave John Kennedy 61 electoral votes, the margin he needed to win the presidency.

Republicans uncovered numerous irregularities. In Chicago, thousands of Democrats supposedly turned out in districts wiped out by new superhighways. In St. Louis, seven Republican wards somehow turned Democratic overnight and voted heavily against Nixon. In numerous small towns in Texas, Democratic ballots outnumbered citizens two to one.

Republican leaders were pressing for a court fight that would have dragged on for months and left the country's leadership in doubt for the duration.

Ten days after the election, John Kennedy, the apparent winner, visited Nixon in Key Biscayen, Fla.

"Well, I guess we really don't know how this thing is going to be resolved," said Kennedy.

"Yes we do," said Nixon. "You won."

STORY KILLED

Meanwhile, Earl Mazo, the chief political reporter for the New York Herald Tribuen, began a 12-part series exposing Democratic election shenanigans. After the fourth story, Nixon called Mazo into his office.

As Mazo remembers the incident, "I told him that the election had been stolen out of his eyeballs. He laughed. Then he got serious. He said it was important that I stop my articles."

Then Nixon confided why he had refused to contest the election. "Our country at this time can't afford the agony of a constitutional crisis," he said, " and I am damn well will not be a party to creating one just to become President."

Such incidents emphasize that politics is not always an end in itself. Even the most ambitious men have served their country worthily.

Footnote: Senator George McGovern gave up a night's rest and went 200 miles out of his way recently so that three teen-age constituents could visit their parents in the hospital. McGovern found the youngsters late one Friday night stranded in he Minneapolis Airport after they had been bumped off the last connecting flight to their hometown of Wagner, S. D. The youngsters told the senator that their parents had been in an automobile accident. McGovern quickly offered to fly the threesome to Wagner in his chartered plane, even though McGovern's destination was Aberdeen, 235 miles to the north.

PEACE BREAKTHROUGH?

President Nixon continues to twist and pull at the knobs of the great American war machine in Indochina, trying to find the right combination to bring this endless war to a halt.

His national security aide, Henry Kissinger, has alerted congressional leaders that there may be a possible breakthrough in the peace negotiations. Kissinger has asked them privately to restrain their statements for a few days to avoid upsetting the delicate negotiations.

The President, meanwhile, has pulled all the combat units out of Vietnam.

At the same time, of course, he has quietly increased our air power in Indochina, to an all-time high.

Somehow, the enemy has managed to replenish itself. Battered, bombed and now even mined, the enemy has always seemed able to find the necessary resources to continue that conflict.

Secret intelligence reports reveal that 7,000 new North Vietnamese recruits will move South next month for combat in Vietnam and Cambodia. It was only two years ago that Nixon launched a major invasion into Cambodia to drive the enemy out of their sancturaries. Today, the enemy is back in Cambodia in full force, controlling more territory than ever before.

Intelligence sources also confirm that 100,000 new emeny soldiers have entered the war since January to replace the dead and wounded. An enemy buildup has been spotted south of Saigon in the swampy Mekong delta. American advisers, however, see no threat to the city of Saigon.

NEW YORK (AP) — Memory is man's most faithful companion.

No sultan ever had a more loyal servitor, no soldier a more helpful comrade.

Without memory to sustain and console him, man would be unable to bear the troubled midnights of the soul that every human being must confront at times.

You've come a pretty far piece down life's highway if you can look back and remember when—

Stonewall Jackson was the favorite military hero of almost every kid in America.

No matter how many glass marbles you had, you didn't amount to much in the schoolyard gang unless you owned one or two made of agate. A real "aggie," as they were called, seemed to juvenile eyes more lustrous than the Hope diamond.

There still were more outdoor than indoor toilets in the nation, and only the very rich had homes with two or more bathrooms. A man felt completely acceptable socially if he remembered simply to take the regular Saturday night bath that custom dictated.

A top restaurant was one that charged 10 cents instead of five for a cup of coffee.

Practically everyone thought that the nickel glass of beer and the two-bit haircut were U.S. institutions that would last as long as the flag flew.

A man was in the height of fashion if his wardrobe contained at least one pair of spats with pearl gray buttons. Spats became quite controversial. Realists said they were even more useless than cravats. Defenders replied that spats helped keep a man's feet warm, but eventually they went the way of the bustle.

Children's bedrooms were so cold at night that thoughtful mothers would sometimes warm the sheet with a fireheated brick.

A family's standing in the community rose considerably as soon as it could afford to install a furnace in the house and get rid of the messy coal stove in the living room.

A woman who smoked cigarettes in public was regarded as a brazen hussy.

A man who tried to swim in a public pool in a suit that didn't cover his chest would be promptly ordered out of the pool by the outraged lifeguard.

It was hard to find a large family that hadn't lost at least one of its members to tuberculosis.

A girl was ashamed to get sunburned or tanned. The ideal feminine complexion was a classic pallor from which freckles were banished by regular applications of lemon juice.

Those were the days—remember?

Objection To Soft Drink Tax Petition

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Petitions to put a constitutional amendment on the November ballot in Missouri for a broad expansion of conservation activities to be financed with a one-cent tax on soft drinks were filed with Secy. of State James C. Kirkpatrick today.

They were met with an immediate legal objection by Rep. Thomas D. Graham, D-Jefferson City, who said he was acting as an attorney for opponents of the plan. He declined to reveal the names of his clients, saying that would come out later.

Soft drink bottlers have been fighting the proposal for months.

The petitions filed by the Citizens Committee for Conservation were reported to carry 163,620 names, believed to be the largest number ever filed for an initiative proposal. They were scattered among eight of the 10 congressional districts.

Kirkpatrick said he would have his own lawyers examine the petitions for their validity and study the legal objection by Graham.

"This thing is going to wind up in the courts anyway," he said.

Ed Stegner, executive secretary of the Conservation Federation of Missouri, said the federation's lawyers had examined the petitions and concluded they met all the requirements of the law.

Graham's objections were four-fold.

He said the petitions carry no enacting clause, that they contain more than one subject — imposition of a soft drink tax and the appropriation of funds, that they seek to appropriate money imporperly and that the proposal doesn't carry any title, as required for all laws.

He asked Kirkpatrick to hold a hearing to determine whether the petitions comply with the Constitution and the statutes.

The four boxes containing the signed petitions were sealed at once and Kirkpatrick said they would be placed in his vault until the legal questions are settled.

Koepp - Steck

CAPE GIRARDEAU — The United Methodist Church at Benton was the scene of the afternoon wedding June 10 of Miss Susan Frances Steck and Keith David Koepp.

The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. J. Carl Frame before an altar adorned with gold flower stands holding arrangements of orchid gladioli, spring flowers and greenery. Miss Phyliss Fortner was the organist.

The bride's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Frank Steck, 1212 North Henderson, and Koepp is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Koepp of Jefferson City.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of ivory Dacron organza over bridal taffeta. A sheer yoke, ruffled neckline and bishop sleeves were all features of the gown. The A-line skirt ended in a chapel - length train which was outlined with a ruffle of Chanti-lace. Her shoulder-length veil was held by a wreath of silk, roses and mixed flowers in shades of purple, orchid, pink and ivory. She also carried a nosegay of pink roses, pink and purple asters, mixed spring flowers and baby's breath.

Serving as matron of honor was Mrs. Joe Hurley, who wore a formal gown of orchid dacron organza. The empire bodice was of embroidered Schiffli lace with a scooped neckline. She also wore a white lace hat with orchid satin ribbon and purple rose trim, and carried a white wicker basket of orchid and white daisies and baby's breath.

Philip M. Adams of Springfield, Ill., was the best man, and ushers were Thomas L. and Frank Steck Jr., brothers of the bride.

A buffet reception followed at the Steck home where pink and purple flower arrangements decorated the buffet table. Miss Daphne Koepp, the bridegrooms's sister, was guest book attendant.

The bride graduated in 1971 from Southeast Missouri State College, and is employed by Charmin Paper Products Co. Koepp, a 1969 graduate of the same college, is employed by the State Division of Health.

Homecoming Show Set For Sikeston Musicians

A special kind of homecoming in which two Sikeston natives, Don Stewart and Alan McClellan, will sing for their supper is planned July 15 at the American Legion Hall.

Guitarists Stewart and McClellan head an acoustical group that has appeared on national television three times and has taken a firm hold on entertainment lovers in the St. Louis area.

In addition to the network shows, "Detroit Tube Works" and CBS's "Magic People," "Cloud" has appeared on numerous radio stations.

Stewart and McClellan were launched at Louis IX, one of the most popular entertainment coffee houses in the St. Louis area. They were auditioned in December of 1971 at Louis IX and were hired.

Shortly afterward, they were asked to do an hour broadcast and a live interview on a St. Louis radio station. Their first national TV appearance came quickly--in February.

At each stop, Don and Alan express their pride in Sikeston and sing the praises, literally, of their home town.

Success has followed success and now they are in heavy demand for concert engagements. "Cloud's" future is anything but cloudy based on their acceptance thus far.

In fact, one observer, Joseph Beck, music director at Webster College in St. Louis, describes "Cloud's" close vocal harmony as being almost impossible to achieve even with years of practice.

Love Scenes Win Out Over Violence, Death

Dear Ann Landers: I have never written to a newspaper before but I am so perplexed about a matter that touches so many of us that I decided I must express myself.

I have just listened (for the 20th time) to a radio commercial for a movie which is "guaranteed to raise goosebumps, make the hair on the back of your neck stand up and upset your stomach." It promises scenes of torture, never shown before on the screen.

This movie is rated P.G. --- which means parental guidance suggested. All ages admitted. Other pictures are rated R (no one under 17 without parents) because they have some love scenes --- often tastefully done, I might add.

What is the matter with our values when we permit children unrestricted viewing of violence and death but we will not permit them to see scenes of love? I am not talking about rape scenes or homosexual activity. I refer to tender and beautiful love between a man and a woman. I would have no trouble choosing between the love scene and the murder scene for my own children. Speak out, please Ann. ---Cincinnati J.

Dear J: The movie you are referring to has been denounced by Jack Valenti, President of the Motion Picture Association of America for "deceptive advertising." It was NOT rated by the MPAA.

Mr. Valenti is now trying to marshal the film industry to shore up the voluntary rating program by being honest with the public in all advertising. He says its a tough battle but he is determined to win it.

Dear Ann Landers: This is for "Shaky Lady" --- the woman who is planning to marry a man who is so crazy about her that he is jealous of any male who gives her a second look. She was beginning to have doubts about what life will be like when she is his wife. Well --- hold the phone, Honey. I can tell you. I was married to the same kind for nearly five years, and if you think you're shaky NOW --- just wait a while.

You won't have any friends because your husband will be sure that the male number of any couple you get friendly with is trying to get you into bed. He will be suspicious of the mailman, the grocery boy, the cop on the corner, the bus driver, your doctor and minister. If you spend much time on the phone with any one woman, he'll begin to get funny ideas about HER, too.

If you are five minutes late for an appointment you'll get the third degree. If you are ten minutes late you'll get called some unprintable names. The strange part of this whole lunatic setup is that while you are breaking your neck proving you are faithful, he will be slipping around like crazy. After you crack up and go for professional help you'll learn that the reason he was treating you so rotten was because of his own miserable guilt. I know because -- I've been There

Dear I.B.T.: You aren't the only one, Lady. At least 100 women wrote to describe what life is like with an excessively suspicious man. The sad part is that most of these accusatory males are psychologically disturbed and won't admit it. Some have brain deterioration which could be diagnosed if they'd go to a doctor --but they won't go. Life with amate like that can be hell. I say "mate" because sometimes it's the wife who has the screw loose.

Discover how to be date bait without falling hook, line and sinker. Ann Landers' booklet, "Dating Do's and Don'ts, "will help you be more poised and sure of yourself on dates. Send 35 cents, in coin along with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope and your request to this newspaper.

Woody-Cazadd

CAPE GIRARDEAU — White daisies entwined in twin candelabra adorned the Baptist Student Union chapel on Southeast Missouri State College campus May 20 when Miss Barbara S. Cazadd, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. B. Cazadd of Florissant, and Kenneth Alan Woody, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Woody of Dexter, were married.

The Rev. Clinton Woodfin performed the double- ring ceremony, and Miss Sharon Quatmann of St. Louis was organist. Charles McGinty Jr. was soloist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of white organza over taffeta with a semi- high crown collar, fitted bodice and long bishop sleeves with a reembroidered Alencon lace and pearls. The skirt fell into a train, and her reembroidered Alencon lace bonnet held an attached chapel- length mantilla with a matching lace edge. She carried a bouquet of orchids, daisies, roses and chrysanthemums.

Miss Debbie Cazadd, sister of the bride, was maid of honor, and Miss Cindy Rosenthal of Edwardsville, Ill., and Miss Kathy Donahoe of Florissant were bridesmaids.

Attendants wore gowns of light pink with long sleeves and white picture hats with pink ribbons. Each carried a basket of pink and white daisies.

Joe Mike Jones of Jackson was best man, and Larry Sockey of Oklahoma and Paul Smith of St. Louis were groomsmen.

A reception followed the ceremony at the chapel, where decorations were of white and pink. The Misses Marilyn Dalton, Pat Jurcyzk and Regina Marks served guests, with Terry Meinz as guest book attendant.

Mrs. Woody is a senior at State College, majoring in social studies and minoring in Spanish. Woody, also a senior at the college, is majoring in art and industrial arts. He is employed by Southwestern Co. of Nashville, Tenn.

UMKC School Of Medicine Adds Indiana Professor To Faculty

KANSAS CITY — Dr. B. L. Martz, director of the Lilly Laboratory for Clinical Research, Indianapolis, Ind., has been named to the faculty of the School of Medicine of the University of Missouri-Kansas City as a docent.

The appointment of Dr. Martz, who also has been a professor of medicine at Indiana University School of Medicine since 1967, was effictive July 1.

The docent is the principal factor in the academic plan of the pioneering UMKC School of Medicine. He functions as a teacher, administrator, evaluator, ombudsman, counselor, program planner and "presiciption writer" for each student's curriculum needs. He also heads a docent team that includes three additional docents, a visiting docent, pharmacist, nurse, clinic and inpatient staff, psychiatrist, residents and allied health personnel.

The docent team approach enables students to understand the psychological, medical, sociological and economic problems of a patient and how a team works to solve them. Students remain with the same docent and team throughout their final four years.

The UNKC Medical School, which is completing its first academic year, offers a six-year program in which students are accepted just after graduating from high school. Studying 11 months during each calendar year, students receive combined bachelor's and medical degrees. The first two years they pursue liberal arts studies 75 per cent of the time and medical courses 25 per cent. The remaining four years students concentrate on medical studies three quarters of the time, while continuing with liberal arts the other one quarter.

SALUTES ST. PAUL

NEW YORK (AP) — Although Judaism has long considered the early Christian missionary, Paul, as an apostate from his Jewish faith, Rabbi Dr. Richard L. Rubenstein portrays him as a Jewish mystic whose insights have universal relevance.

In a new book, "My Brother Paul," (Harper & Row), Rabbi Rubenstein, of Florida State University, says that Paul's vision transcended the Christianity he helped found, paralleling the findings of 20th century psychoanalysis and other insights into human depth.

White Convicted In Marshal Slaying

JACKSON — William Roscoe White was found guilty of first- degree murder Friday night after taking the stand in his own defense and affirming most of the prosecution's testimony regarding the murder of Luteseville Marshal Clive McGee.

Following the trial, White was released by Cape County Circuit Judge W. O. Statler on $5,000 bond, pending application for a new trial. He was given 45 days to file.

White was found guilty of being involved in a robbery at the home of Dr. John J. Myers in Luteseville Oct. 6, 1971, following which Ralph Chaney — with whom he was involved — shot Marshall McGee to death.

The jury deliberated about 40 minutes before returning with its verdict of life imprisonment shortly before 8 p.m.

White was the only witness in his own defense. Chaney, who previously pleaded guilty, had been brought from the State Penitentiary to testify but was not called.

White said he, Chaney and Morse left Hammond, Ind., about noon Oct. 5 — the day before the killing — to drive Morse to Poplar Bluff. He said it was the first time he and Chaney had been in this part of the country and they arrived about 8 that night.

He said he had $835 when he left town in his car. He had until shortly before that time owned a tavern and had recently sold it.

When the trio left Hammond, he stated Chaney and Morse had been taking some kind of pills but at that point he had not. En route, he said he learned Chaney was carrying a .38- caliber revolver and Morse had a .32- caliber automatic which he sold to Chaney. White, who has a prior conviction for carrying a concealed weapon, said he was unarmed.

In Poplar Bluff, he said they got a motel room and went out to a tavern for awhile.

On the morning of the murder, White said the three of them went to a tavern where Morse knew a girl. He said Morse also arranged for a girl for Chaney.

He said several hours were spent at the tavern, during which he spent most of his time playing shuffleboard with the bartender while the others talked.

He said they left after Chaney hit a drunk over the head with his revolver. Reason for the incident was not related.

(In a statement given by Miss Sheila Wilson before she pleaded guilty to robbery she indicated that the robbery of Dr. Myers home was planned at this tavern.)

White said he was unaware of any plans for a robbery. "I don't think I said 10 words to them while we were in there."

When they left the tavern, he said they were going to a tavern in McClure, Ill., that served mixed drinks, one that Morse and the women knew about, the Why- Not Club.

They went by way of Lutesville, however, and White said Miss Wilson was let out at Dr. Myers home to get "some pills." He said he waited for her at a tavern and she returned with a prescription for "kidney pills"

The three men and two women then went to the Why- Not Club where White said they spent perhaps two or three hours.

He said he, Chaney and Morse left the club to change clothes. "I told Ralph (Chaney) we wouldn't need a motel room, that we could change at a filling station. He said we'd run over and get some pills first."

White said when they arrived at the doctor's home it was his understanding that the doctor would sell them pills, but Chaney said he intended to take the pills if the doctor wouldn't sell them.

He said Chaney was still wearing the .38-caliber revolver and took the .32- caliber automatic out of the trunk and gave it to Morse, telling him to wait outside.

He said he followed Chaney to the door, trying to pursuade him that they'd already had enough pills.

When the door was opened, he said Chaney forced his way in and ordered the doctor's granddaughter and Lonnie Brown into the bedroom of Mrs. Myers. Chaney then ordered White inside.

"He pointed the gun at me and told me to come on in and close the door."

White described the time inside the Myers residence as seeming like a week or 10 days. He said he tried to leave once and was made to come back. At one time he helped the doctor back into bed after Chaney had beaten him.

Outside, he said he offered to let Chaney take the car, but Chaney forced him to drive at gunpoint. He said Chaney was furious that Morse had not waited and cursed him and said he'd kill Morse when he found him.

When Marshal McGee flashed his red lights behind them, he said Chaney wanted to try to outrun him but he persuaded Chaney they had to stop.

He said Chaney got out of the car, as did the marshal from his patrol car, and the two talked between the cars for a moment. Then they came toward the driver's side window but for some reason the marshal returned to his car.

White said Chaney knocked on his window and he rolled it down. "It's going to be all right," White quoted Chaney.

He said Chaney then went back to the marshal's car and while he (White) was changing shirts, apparently shot the marshal.

White said he did not hear the shot and the next thing he knew Chaney was hurrying back to his car.

"Everything's fine, let's get out of here," White quoted Chaney as saying, and they left, going south on Highway 51.

White said he continued to question Chaney and Chaney finally said he'd shot the marshal. White said he asked if Chaney had killed him and Chaney said he had shot the marshal in the head.

White said he then drove at Chaney's direction and they became lost on side roads, finally coming out on Highway 34 about 15 miles west of Luteseville.

Not far from there, he said they stopped on a side road to change clothes and he told Chaney he was getting out. He said Chaney argued that they should stay together, but let him go.

He said he walked some distance to a house occupied by Denver Moyers and asked for a ride to a bus station. (Denver Moyers, who testified earlier, was on parole and could not be out late at night.)

White said Moyers took him to another house, that of Ezra Yount. After some discussion Mr. Yount agreed to take White to Fredericktown to catch a bus to St. Louis. (Mr. Yount also testified to the events.)

White said they were en route to Fredericktown when the Yount car was stopped by the highway patrol and he was placed under arrest.

White said he told neither Moyers nor Yount about the events earlier that night.

"I was scared to death. All I wanted to do was get out of there."

But the jury did not accept his account.

In his summation, Bollinger County Prosecuting Attorney Kenneth Shrum raised several discrepancies in the testimony of the trial.

He pointed out that contrary to White's statement that he was a bystander in the robbery, Miss Myers and Brown had testified to actions taken by "the small man," although they could not identify White. White is smaller than Chaney.

Shrum also questioned how White could not have heard the gunshot that killed the marshal when his car was only two car lengths ahead.

He further questioned why White did not simply drive away while Chaney was out of the car and why he did not call authorities when at last he and Chaney parted.

In his closing remarks, defense attorney Joe W. Howlett said there are always discrepancies in testimony because of human error.

Howlett called Chaney "one of the meanest men in the United States today," and described White as "the patsy," "the little man," "the only one without a girl."

"Bill White wasn't the only one who was afraid of Chaney. Morse took off the minute he got a chance," Howlett said.

Howlett also contended that the robbery had been completed before the marshal pulled in behind them with flashing red lights. He contended that for White to be an accomplice in his murder, he and Chaney would have had to talk it over.

G. M. O'Neal, an attorney from the attorney general's office assisting Shrum, said in his closing remarks that the robbery was not over — that beginning its deliberations the men had not completed about 7:15 p.m.

29 Die In Missouri Accidents Over Holiday

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

At least 29 persons died in Missouri traffic accidents over the four- day holiday weekend — five more than were killed during the three- day holiday period last year.

Four Chillicothe men were killed in two separate accidents Tuesday as the counting period drew to a close.

Five persons perished late Sunday when their car was struck from the rear by a car being pursued by a Pemiscot County sheriff's deputy. The car in which the five died was slowing down for a roadblock set up at Portageville. It burst into flames in a series of collisions set off to climax the chase.

The victims were John Edward Cooper, 34; John Henry Jackson, 2; Ann Jentte Jackson, 2, and Frank Canady, 21, all of St. Louis, and Janice Mae Thompson, 12, Shelby, Miss.

Eleven persons were killed Tuesday, including four Chillicothe men, Harry Forrest Hill, 38, and Joseph B. Roney, 19, were killed in a two-car crash on Livingston County Rt. T two miles east of Chillicothe. And Orvell Hibdon, 30, and Odean Evans, 37, were killed in a one-vehicle accident north of Meadville on Missouri 139.

Shortly before midnight, Robert Clarke Borden, 61, Independence, Mo., was struck by a car on U.S. 24 in Independence.

Center Opened To Help Rape Victims

WASHINGTON (AP) — For brutal experience of being raped may be too often from other rape victims, now is just a telephone call away.

Staffers say the month-old Rape Crisis Center is receiving about 20 calls daily from current and past rape victims and their families who seek medical and legal advice and, sometimes, just sympathy.

The dozen or so women who organized the center include several former victims of rape. To the best of their knowledge, the center offers the first such private service in the nation.

An example of the center's operation: A woman who has been embarrassed to notify police or her family is a candidate for the center in her area and information on venereal disease. But the staffers provide a list of lawyers and psychologists for victims who need them.

"We have staffers who will accompany a woman to the hospital," said one staffer.

"The staffer will explain hospital procedures to the woman so she isn't shocked or upset by them."

One piece of advice from Liz, who, like the other center staffers, declines to give her name:

A rape victim should not act calm and controlled when she enters a hospital because "if you go in hysterical, people in the emergency room will pay more attention to you."

One staffer estimated that more than 50 per cent of the women who call the center do not report to police that they were raped.

Most are looking for someone to talk with about their attack, she said.

For women who want to report an attack to police, a staffer will explain police procedures and questions, offer psychological support and accompany victims to station houses.

"We hope that by having another woman present that we can discourage the 'dressedlike-that-what-did-you-expect' attitude," Liz said, claiming that such an attitude was sometimes apparent among police.

A police spokesman said Washington had 615 forcible rapes in 1971, an increase of more than 50 per cent over 1970. He added there is no way to tell how many more go unreported.

In a recent session at the center, the question of self-defense was discussed.

"We try to encourage women to learn self-defense, to be aware of their surroundings and know how to get out of tight situations," said Karen, a fresh-faced 20-year-old from Chicago. "If a woman is trained in self-defense, she won't be afraid to walk the streets alone. Hopefully, it will give her more self-confidence and control of her body."

Across the street from the center, out of sight of passersby, the women are fixing up an area whereby say a belted karate expert will give lessons in self-defense.

Frankly Speaking by Thomas Eagleton

WATER AND SEWER FUNDS ARE VITAL TO MISSOURI

This month Missouri's 18 rural area regional planning commissions released a comprehensive study of the water and sewer needs of rural Missouri in order to call attention to their magnitude.

The study estimates that over one-half million Missourians now live in small cities and towns without water and/or sewer systems. It pointed out that there is a backlog of 75 applications for federal water program funds and 99 for sewer funds, with potential applications for a hundred more of each. The total amount of federal funds which would be needed to fill these requests exceeds $61 million.

Missourians who live in rural areas know without statistics the importance of water and sewer facilities to the life of their communities. Beyond the primary health hazard of a contaminated water supply is the growing pollution of Missouri's rivers and streams caused by the dumping of untreated sewage.

The revitalization of rural America, now hailed from all sides as a national priority of the first rank, slows to a halt when lack of an adequate water and sewer system discourages industry and developers from binging the jobs, new homes and supportive services which could add so much to the quality of rural life.

FUNDING INCREASED

The results of the study only document what my contacts with constituents on trips to Missouri and through correspondence have made clear to me for a long time — that these projects are a major priority in Missouri and other states, too.

Responding to a clear need, Congress this year voted substantial appropriations for water and sewer projects--not adequate to do the complete job, but much greater than in the past. This year's appropriation contained $300 million for insured loans and $100 million for grants.

The grant figure was $58 million above the President's budget request for the program, an increase decided on by Congress because we fully realize how difficult it is for many rural communities to undertake a project without grant assistance.

WON'T SPEND THE MONEY

The Office of Management and Budget, the President's fiscal arm, has refused to spend the additional $58 million we appropriated, and from their budget request for the fiscal year beginning July 1 it seems they will try to keep the spending at the same low and insufficient level for the coming year.

The effect of the imbalanced ratio of loan to grant funds has been a critical one for the many Missouri communities which have waited years for water and sewers. Missouri's federal share this year was $9 million for loans and $1 million for grants.

This ratio has kept some of the neediest communities from beginning projects for lack of grant assistance. Even though their need may be much greater they are forced to step aside for younger communities with larger tax bases which can build the systems without grants.

DISTORTS PROGRAM

When this happens--and it does all the time now--the whole purpose of the program is distorted.

Each week I am forced to respond to the pleas of mayors and ordinary citizens of these communities with the information that the money we appropriated is not being spent. The answer from the Office of Management and Budget to my pleas has been a flat refusal.

As the fiscal year drew to a close, I wrote OMB one last time in an effort to impress upon them the serious needs that are presented to me almost daily by Missourians who must live with unsafe or inadequate water supplies. I urged as strongly as I was able that the money be made available before the fiscal year ends so that many communities could begin work.

If we are to fulfill our promises of a better life for rural America, we must begin to deliver on those promises.

? Consumer's Question Box ?

By Margaret Dana

Q.: In buying instant coffee I have wondered if it is really all coffee, or does it have all kinds of special additives? How can I tell from the label?

A.: All the brands of instant coffee I have checked, both the regularly processed and the newer freeze-dried, have labels which say either "pure coffee" or "100 per cent coffee." The meaning is clear--the product is all coffee, with no additives. If any one of these products should prove to have an undeclared ingredient it would then be illegally labeled. Since the Food and Drug Administration checks and inspects processed foods at intervals, I think we can assume they would have checked these labels by now.

Q.: Suppose we want to report something to the Food and Drug Administration, such as finding foreign matter in food, or mislabeling, etc. How can we do it best? Do we write to the agency in Washington, or do they have branches?

A.: The FDA does have regional branches with addresses and phone numbers. Since they differ, and your area would be located within a specific region covered by a branch, I suggest you send to the Consumer Product Information, Washington, D.C. 20407, and request a copy of the free leaflet titled "How the Consumer Can Report to The Food and Drug Administration." The index number is 7700-021. This will tell you how to report suspected safety hazards, false labeling of food, drugs and cosmetics, etc.

Q.: Have you any suggestion as to a collection of recipes which would use the cheaper foods and still supply a good filling meal? I don't mean cheaper meats only, but recipes for using dried beans, eggs, and so on.

A.: I have a limited supply of a recipe booklet titled "Money-Saving Main Dishes" which the U.S. Department of Agriculture prepared several years ago. This edition was 20 cents. For a copy, send your request to me with 20 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope. For the newer edition, up-dated in 1970, which is priced at 30 cents, send your request to Consumer Product Information, Washington, D.C. 20407, including the catalog number 0100-0841, and the 30 cents. This booklet includes such recipes as "sausage with sweet potato and apple" (using only ½ pound of sausage), "fish-cheeseburgers," "Mexican scrambled eggs," "savory bean stew," (using ½ pound ground beef), etc.

Q.: Please indicate if anything is being done about all the camera and movie equipment being imported here from abroad. Whenever my cameras need service or new parts I am told, "sorry, not available." When I need more information than is supplied in the directions with the camera, I am told the same thing. My camera outfit cost me $1,000, yet when I asked for specific information on its wide-angle and telephoto lens, my supplier just said none could be had from the maker. What can we do?

A.: More and more foreign makers of goods sold in this country are trying to provide centers for service here. This is increasingly true, of course, of automobiles. But smaller companies, and especially those without much international know-how, are still behind in dealing with this problem.

I would suggest not buying until you first make sure what service is available, and then checking to see what a domestic manufacturer offer. The service may outweigh the lower price the import may have.

Q.: We have been using gasoline to pour over our briquettes to start our barbecue grill. It works very fast. Is this harmful in any way to the food cooked over it?

A.: It would not be harmful to your food, but it could be very harmful indeed to you and your family or guests. Using gasoline to start any fire, anywhere, is highly dangerous and should never be done.

Many people are not fully aware of the hazards of gasoline, both as a fluid and a gas, and although many people have used the same technique you are using to start all kinds of fires, including logs in a fireplace, it is strongly opposed by experts in fire prevention. Using rolled sticks of newspaper to get your briquettes going is much safer and need not take too long.

Q. I have a complaint that I share with countless others. The turkey necks inside a turkey! How many times I have cut, bruised and scratched my hands trying to get that neck out of a turkey when getting it ready to roast. Who eats or needs the neck anyway?

A.: The poultry industry must wonder if all of us are capable of seeing only one side of a problem. Along with your letter come others complaining just as loudly that too often they can't find the turkey or chicken neck which should be inside the fowl with the giblets.

They value the neck, which makes ecvellent soup or gravy, and resent not getting it. As for it being inside the turkey or chicken, I understand this is to make sure the giblets and neck don't get mislaid, as can happen, when they are paced seperately. But some poultry packers do put the neck, liver and gizzard in a small separate bag, sometimes within the turkey cavity, sometimes outside. When the turkey is fully thawed the small parts can be easily removed from the cavity.

Gentlemen:

The article in tonight's paper regarding possible legal action against the showing of "Clockwork Orange" has prompted me to write this letter.

Granted, the movie is full of sex and violence -- I haven't seen it, but I read the novel. But it also speaks for our time. And beyond that, it is a movie masterpiece. The acting and filming technique alone is worth seeing, if you can believe the reviews of it. And I really think there must be something there— after all, it didn't win those awards for nothing.

And, may I also point out that no one is being forced to see the movie? And it is certainly not going to affect the impressionable minds -- the movie IS rated "X". I'm sorry if the film violates someone's sense of good taste -- things violate my sense of good taste, too, but I stay away from them.

I hope Mr. Alley sticks to his guns about showing the film. I think it very unfair if 50 phone calls could prevent this film from being shown in Sikeston. "Tobacco Rudy" I could understand -- at least a little better than this -- but "Clockwork Orange"?

Sincerely,
Laretha Harris

SEATTLE— James A. Cunningham, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Cunningham of Tieton, Wash., Route One has been commissioned a second lieutenant in the U.S. Air Force upon completion of the Air Force Reserve Officers Training Corps program at the University of Washington in Seattle.

Cunningham's parents are former Sikeston, Mo. residents.

Lt. Cunningham received his bachelor of arts degree in psychology and was named in AFROTC as a distinguished military graduate.

He also received the Daughters of the American Revolution Award for outstanding leadership ability, academic achievement and military excellence.

He is being assigned to Vandenberg AFB, Calif., for training as a missile officer.

Lt. Cunningham graduated in 1968 from Highland High School in Cowiche, Wash., where he was a member of National Honor Society.

Admission Forms Urged For Collegians

CAPE GIRARDEAU -- A call was issued today for area students who plan to enter Southeast Missouri State College for the first time this fall to get their admission forms right away.

"We feel, from past experience, that there are at least 120 recent high school graduates right here in this vicinity who plan to enter college in the fall, but who have not yet submitted their admission forms," said Lyman Evans, director of admissions at Southeast Missouri State.

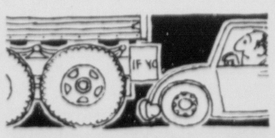
Evans noted that, while the deadline for submitting application forms for admission is still several months away, there are advantages to getting them in now.

One of these advantages was pointed out by Darrel Hollinger, assistant dean of students and the administrator in charge of the college.s summer orientation program.

Admission applications submitted now can be processed in time for the student and his parents to be scheduled to attend the orientation program, Hollinger said. He said one of the main sessions of orientation, from the student point- of- view, is the period during which he pre-enrolls.

Students who do not submit their applications until the last minute run the risk of not getting into courses they want to take, Hollinger, said, since they will not enroll until Aug. 28.

By then, many courses freshmen normally take may be filled by students who have participated in orientation. The orientation program runs through July 21.



Best bumper sticker of the month: "If you can read this, you're driving too ?&$#* close."

NONCONFORMIST?—This soldier is a nonconformist or maybe he just didn't get the message at Long Bien, South Vietnam. He's a medical corpsman catching a few winks at the helicopter pad while waiting to aid wounded unloaded from the choppers.

WAR IS AN EVERY DAY affair for both the young and the old among South Vietnam's Montagnard tribesmen. The tough mountain people have managed to survive and preserve much of their traditional way of life despite seeing outsiders fight over their lands for more than 10 years.

Fighting Fire at Battle Flats

Army Task Forces Fight Arizona Fire

FT. HUACHUCA, Ariz. (ANF) — Two Army task forces provided U.S. Forest Service officials with some valuable assistance as Arizona suffered its worst forest fire damage this year, near Prescott.

A total of 185 men and 75 vehicles provided support for special Forest Service fire fighting personnel during the huge fire in the area called Battle Flats.

Vehicles sent to Battle Flats from Ft. Huachuca, 282 miles away, included large trucks, a wrecker, an ambulance and water tankers.

The soldiers were sent May 15 when a request came from the Forest Service for more help. Two task forces working in different areas helped to prevent the blaze from spreading even further.

The blaze eventually consumed more than 26,000 acres of forest. Total damage is estimated by Forest Service officials at more than $29 million.

Men and equipment dispatched came primarily from the 11th Signal Group. Also sent were personnel from the post medical activity and Headquarters, Ft. Huachuca. The Army Electronic Proving Ground and the Army Security Agency also furnished vehicles.

Army support to domestic disasters such as the Battle Flats fire is provided for through continuing agreements between the Army and the responsible agencies.

The troops were supplied with mechanical parts and equipment, while on the scene, from Forest Service planes which flew over daily.

"Negligence," says George T. Keene, a photographic engineer, "will result in almost certain damage to the retina of the eye. It is possible that only one second of carelessness can result in permanent blindness." So, beware, all you would-be-viewers of the eclipse.

The safest method of viewing is indirect: look at the reflection in a pool of water, or stand with one's back to the sun and project the suns image though a tiny hole in a cardboard onto a screen 10 feet away, or point the large end of a telescope or binoculars toward the sun and focus the image onto a sheet of white paper or cloth held a foot or two from the eyepiece.

An eclipse of the sun occurs when the moon moves between the sun and the earth. The moon, casting a cone-shape shadow 232,000 miles onto the earth, travels at 2,100 miles per hour.

Subtracting the 1,040 mile per hour rotation of the earth, at the equator and traveling in the same direction, the apparent speed of the shadow is 1,060 miles per hour, which increases as the eclipse path moves away from the equator.

Ford Recalls 4 Million Cars

DETROIT (AP) — Ford Motor Co., in its biggest safety recall campaign to date, has called back 4.04 million vehicles to replace two shoulder belt grommets that cost only pennies apiece.

According to P.E. Benton Jr., Ford's customer service division general manager, a small percentage of the grommets, which fit on the stud that attaches the shoulder harness to the lap belt, have broken with repeated usage.

Breakage prevents the user from clicking the harness into a locked position, but the company said Thursday that no reports have been received of injuries because of this problem.

Rain Saves McLain

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It rained all over Denny McLain's parade but the moisture left Leo Durocher a lot more upset than it did Atlanta's newest resident.

McLain, making his National League debut, was tied 3-3 in the eighth inning Tuesday night as the Braves tried to sweep a baseball doubleheader from the Durocher's Cubs. Atlanta had taken the opener 5-1.

Jose Cardenal, who had homered off McLain earlier, and Don Kessinger opened the Chicago eighth with singles and suddenly, Denny had runners on first and third with none out.

Just as suddenly, the Atlanta skies opened up with an enormous downpour. The rain hit so swiftly that the ground crew was unable to get the tarps down over the infield. Soon, it was a swamp and the game had to be called, rescuing McLain from a precarious situation and leaving Durocher rather agitated.

Leo decided that the Braves' ground crew didn't move quite as fast as it might have if the two runners on base were wearing Atlanta uniforms and formally protested the rainout.

National League President Chub Feeney said he would give careful consideration to the protest and ruled that the game could not be rescheduled until he ruled on it.

Elsewhere in the NL Tuesday, New York split a doubleheader with San Diego, winning the opener 2-0 on Tom Seaver's one-hitter, but dropping the nightcap 4-2, Cincinnati dropped St. Louis 6-1, Philadelphia edged San Francisco 21, Montreal slugged Los Angeles 7-3 and Houston shut out Pittsburgh 6-0.

In the American League, Boston shut out Minnesota 2-0, Cleveland blanked Texas 2-0, Kansas City shut out Detroit 10, Baltimore nipped Chicago 21, Milwaukee dropped California 4-2 and Oakland took New York 4-2.

A crowd of 50,597 showed at Atlanta Stadium for a gigantic July 4 fireworks display and McLain's debut. They gave Denny an ear-shattering standing ovation as he walked out to the mound to start the second game.

"I've never experienced anything like that," said McLain, "not even in Detroit. This tonight was unbelievable. I could have got the saints in heaven in that first inning after that."

All he had to do was get the Cubs of Chicago and for three innings, he did that easily.

The Cubs started nibbling away at McLain in the middle three innings and by the eighth, he had given up nine hits, the last two to Cardenal and Kessinger.

The Braves won the first game of the doubleheader, scoring four runs in the seventh inning on homers by Paul Casanova and Mike Lum to crack a 1-1 tie.

Casanova opened the inning with his first NL homer and Lum added a three-run shot as Ron Reed picked up the victory, scattering seven hits.

Seaver took a no-hitter into the ninth inning and retired the first San Diego batter before Leron Lee cracked a broken bat single for the Padres' only hit.

"It was a good pitch," said Seaver, "down and in, but it came back over the plate a little bit. I was certainly disappointed. No doubt about that. But my immediate thoughts were that Nate Colbert was coming up."

Seaver got Colbert on a game-ending double play but the Padres' slugger did hit one out in the eighth inning of the second game to tie it at 2-2. Then Derrell Thomas' ninth-inning single drove in two runs, giving the Padres the victory.

The Mets picked up one-half game with the split when Houston shut out Pittsburgh, shaving the Pirates National League East lead to one game over New York. Larry Dierker hurled an eight-hitter for his fifth shutout of the season. He also drove two runs in with a squeeze bunt and a single.

Cincinnati remained one-half game in front of the Astros by ending St. Louis' seven-game winning streak.

Pete Rose doubled home three runs in a five-run second inning for the Reds as Ross Grimsley, 6-3, earned the victory.

The struggling Dodgers were beaten by Montreal with Ron Woods and Ron Fairly homering for the Expos.

LA starter Tommy John surrendered three runs in the second inning, two of them on Bob Bailey's single and the third on a triple by winning pitcher Carl Morton.

Willie Davis and Duke Sims homered for the Dodgers.

Jim Barr allowed just three hits, pitching San Francisco past Philadelphia.

The Giants scored both their runs in the seventh inning when Dave Kingman opened with a double. Dave Rader's single scored Kingman and then long flies by Alan Gallagher and Tito Fuentes got Rader home with the deciding run.

Camaro Tops Peak

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — Bob Silvers ran his Camaro off the twisting mountain road twice but couldn't even remember where after winning Tuesday's running of the annual Pikes Peak Hill Climb.

The Colorado Springs racer, in his second year at the hill climb, credited the independent rear suspension on his 1972 stock car for the victory. He completed the 12.42 bumpy miles in 13:45.9, just five seconds off Bobby Unser's record 1969 pace.

Second was Bill Daniels of Colorado Springs, timed in 14:00.4 in a 1971 Chevrolet, and third in a 1969 Chevelle was Ralph Bruning of Lawton, Okla., in 14:05.4.

Silvers said he was pushing for the top so hard he really couldn't remember where his car had skidded off the gravel road to the peak.

A similar accident resulted in bruises and possible head injuries to Rickey Manka of Colorado Springs, whose motorcycle ran off the road about two miles up the mountain during a preliminary race.

Sports Briefs

HAARLEM, The Netherlands (AP) — The Grand Rapids Sullivans beat the Alaska Gold panners 8-7 Tuesday night for their third straight victory in the Haarlem Baseball Week tournament.

The team from Grand Rapids, Mich., which had only lost to unbeaten world amateur baseball champions Cuba, came from behind to win in the ninth inning. With two men out and the bases loaded, Ron Delong doubled home two runs.

WALTHAM, Mass. (AP) — Ruth White, a New York University senior from Baltimore, is the U.S. women's fencing champion for the second time.

Pitchers Muffle Bats

Three comeback pitchers, two rookies and one 20-game winner kept the July 4 fireworks to a minimum in the American league Tuesday.

—Pat Dobson, one of Baltimore's four 2-game winners last season, hurled the Orioles into sole possession of first place in the American League East with a three-hit, 11-strikeout 2-1 victory over the Chicago White Sox.

—Detroit skidded into second place when Kansas City's Roger Nelson, fighting back from two years of arm miseries, blanked the Tigers 1-0 on four its for his first complete game and first triumph as a starter since 1969.

—Rookie Lynn McGlothen notched his first major league triumph with a three-hitter that propelled Boston past Minnesota 2-0.

—Oakland's Blue Moon Odom, recuperating from a 1971 elbow operation, posted his sixth victory with eight-inning help from Darold Knowles as the A's downed the New York Yandees 4-2.

—Jim Lonborg, the AL's Cy Young Award winner with Boston in 1967 but a much-injured hurler since, won his fourth straight baseball game for Milwaukee, blanking California until the ninth when Frank Linzy came on to preserve a 4-2 triumph.

—Cleveland rookie Dick Tidrow took over for the injured Mike Kilkenny in the third inning and completed a 2-0 shutout over Texas.

In the National League, Cincinnati defeated St. Louis 6-1, Houston blanked Pittsburgh 6-0, the New York Mets shaded San Diego 2-0 but dropped the nightcap 4-2, Montreal trimmed Los Angeles 7-3, San Francisco edged Philadelphia 2-1 and Atlanta turned back the Chicago Cubs 5-1 before the second game was halted by rain in the eighth inning tied at 3-3.

Baltimore's Dobson surrendered a first-inning home run to Dick Allen and second-innings singles to Rick Reichardt and Mike Andrews but kept the White Sox hitless thereafter.

The Orioles tied the game against Stan Bahnsen in the fifth on Bobby Grich's single and Dave Johnson's triple and scored the winning run in the sixth on consecutive singles by Paul Blair, Boog Powell and Merv Rettenmund.

Kansas City got Nelson the only run he needed against Detroit in the first inning on Amos Otis' bunt single, a stolen base and John Mayberry's infield hit, which loser Bill Slayback threw wild to first base.

Boston's McGlothen, a 22year-old right-hander, held the Twins to Eric Soderholm's double in the second inning and singles by Danny Thompson in the third. Rookie shortstop Juan Beniquez accounted for one of the runs off loser Ray Corbin with his first major league homer.

About the only fireworks were in Oakland, where Sal Bando hamered a grand slam home run off New York's Mel Stottlemyre in the fourth inning and the A's put on a gaudy pyrotechnic dispiay after the game.

John Lowenstein provided the offense with a two-run homer.

Sets New World Pole Vault Mark

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — Tears streamed down Bob Seagren's face. The handsome Olympic champion sat in the light of a setting sun and simply, quietly cried.

He had just set the world record in the pole vault, something he had done four times previously. So why the emotion?

The 25-year-old Southern California Strider athlete suffered a severe knee injury in a horseback riding accident late last year and surgery was performed. He came back, however, and made what appeared to many a futile attempt to get back into shape for the 20th Olympic Games this year. His progress was slow.

"He worked so hard," said Verne Wolfe, head track coach at the University of Southern California, where Seagren was graduated and began his comeback. "He's always been dedicated, but I really didn't think he'd come back this fast."

"When I got to Eugene, I was relaxed," Seagren said. "I was happy with my progress." He had regained a share of the world mark at 18 feet 4¾ inches and was considered the old pro of the event.

"Then I started thinking, 'The guys are good. What if my pole slipped? What if I didn't qualify'? and then I got nervous.

"I couldn't sleep. I walked around my room at night. I didn't have any concentration."

The competition started last Sunday at Hayward Field and "everyone was so hot. Everyone looked so good I got nervous," he said. Then he warmed up by clearing the bar at about 18-3.

"That relaxed me for a minute," he said. "But they looked so good at 17-8¼, and then again at 18," he said.

The others who cleared 17-8¼ were Dave Roberts of Rice, Jan Johnson of Alabama and Steve Smith of Long Beach state. Then all but Roberts made 18-0½. And Seagren tightened up once again.

Seconds after celebrating his 18-5¾ leap with a whoop Seagren broke down.

"The pressure of the injury, the operation, the long comeback. And then the nervousness of this competition—just to get a trip to Munich. I guess it all just collapsed on him," said George Ambrose, a close friend of Seagren for years.

"He was carrying a lot of weight around. I guess the pressure's off now," said Ambrose.

Spinks Has Trouble

CINCINNATI (AP) — Scipio Spinks, trying hard to overcome a Cincinnati Reds waiting strategy that cost him five runs, lost all the marbles Tuesday when he bowled over Johnny Bench at homeplate in the St. Louis Cardinals 6-1 losing effort.

Reds catcher Bench, thanks to his shin guards, suffered only knee bruises in the third inning collision in which he dropped the ball. But Spinks was taken out with an apparently torn knee ligament.

Spinks was scheduled for hospital treatment in St. Louis today.

"You have to make Spinks throw strikes," said manager Sparky Anderson of the Western division leading Reds. "That's why we tried to wait him out."

In the second inning, Tony Perez singled, Joe Hague walked, Denis Menke lined a single off Spinks' leg, and with the bases loaded, Spinks walked Dave Concepsion and Joe Morgan bringing in two runs.

Then Pete Rose slammed a line drive double to left center off the glove of Lou Brock scoring three runs.

"It seemed funny coming up to bat with men on base," laughed Rose. He has been switched from leadoff to batting second in the lineup for several games.

"I'm real pleased with the 5-1 road trip," said Cards Manager Red Schoendienst. "This just simply was not our day. We hit the hell out of the ball but we couldn't put them together.

The Cards outhit Cincinnati 95 and split the two game series.

"This is as wild as Spinks has been all year," said Schoendienst, "But I'd have kept him in there if he hadn't, been injured in that collision."

Spinks, who singled in the third, came home from first on a double by Luis Melendez.

The loss snapped a seven game winning streak for the Cardinals who have won 22 of their last 27 games.

Winning pitcher Ross Grimsley, 6-2, said it was his poorest performance but "it was one of those lucky days and I'll take it.

Pros Sale Lacks Response

MEMPHIS, Tenn. — Despite a dismal proxy response, the sale of the Memphis Pros to Charles O. Finley will be brought to a stockholder vote Thursday night at 7:30 in a special meeting at the Christian Brothers College auditorium.

Officials of Memphis Area Sports, Inc., reported yesterday that proxies totaling 30,000 votes of approval have been sent to the Pros' office. However, for the sale to be finalized, about 61,000 votes will be needed by proxies and stockholders voting in person.

Fifty- one per cent of the stock must be represented in order for Memphis Area Sports to hold a legal meeting, and two-thirds of that representation must approve the sale to Finley, who signed a contract to purchase the American Basketball Association franchise June 14.

"I'm very disappointed in the lack of response of the stockholders in getting their proxies to the Pros' office," said John 'Buddy' Leake, chairman of the Pros' board. "We have to make a last-ditch effort to contact the stockholders to get these proxies in. It is all- important that we have 51 per cent of the stock represented at the meeting. If we don't, we can't even vote on the sale of the club to Finley.

"The board of directors has acted in accordance with the idea that the stockholders want to keep basketball in Memphis and receive the best possible value. We believe we have done this, and at this time we want to appeal to the stockholders to deliver their proxies to the Pros' office or attend the meeting so we can accomplish our goal."

The franchise was purchased by Memphis Area Sports in February of 1971 after 4,618 persons bought about $628,000 in stock.

"The people who purchased this team should attend the meeting and voice their opinion," said Avron Fogelman, president of the club. "This will be a completely open meeting, and we'll be there to answer any questions or allow stockholders the floor for any statements."

Finley is expected to return to Memphis in the next several days and has said he will name a coach upon his return. Bob Bass, the former Floridian coach, has been in Chicago meeting with Finley and remains the prime candidate for the position.

Meanwhile, the contest to rename the club continues. About 3,300 entries have been received. The person selecting the best name will get $2,500, and the next five top entries each will receive two season-tickets.

HOME, SWEET HOME? Not in the major leagues, where the catcher's job is to try to make sure you can't go home again. Olympic Tryouts At Field House

Preliminary tryouts for the regional Junior Olympic Wrestling to be held at Jackson Saturday will be held tonight at 6.30 p.m. in the field house. Boys in the Sikeston area 10 and under and 11 to 18 years old are eligible to enter.

Jr. Babe Ruth Tourney Planned

Sikeston will host a Junior Babe Ruth baseball tournament at VFW stadium, beginning July 28. Boys eligible must have been born between Aug. 1, 1956, and July 31, 1959.

Plans call for as many as 16 teams. Openings still are available and anyone wishing to enter a team can contact Leonard Campbell, 215 North New Madrid, or call 471-1212.

Buys Improves

Greg Buys last week continued to show improvement in his pitching performances for the Kinston, S.C., Class A farm team of the New York Yankees.

The Kennett product worked eight innings, allowing three hits and six walks and striking out five to lower his earned run mark to 5.35. He had a slow start which is reflected by his 2-7 season record. The righthander has worked 69 innings, allowed 73 hits, walked 46 and struck out 56.

Mark Littell, the headline-grabbing star from Gideon, worked only one inning last week, striking out two. His season totals are 4-3 in the won- loss column. The tall righthander has worked 65 innings, allowing 51 hits and 28 walks and fanning 80 for a 3.32 ERA with the Kansas City Royals' Class A Waterloo, Iowa, club.

Gary Owens continued to find base- hits hard to come by as he went 0 for 1 and has only six hits in 39 at bats for the Fort Lauderdale Yanks. The Vanduser native has a .154 batting averrage on the season.

Flood Sighted

MIAMI - Curt Flood, controversial former baseball star who dropped from public sight several weeks ago, now is living on the island of Majorca off the coast of Spain, a Miami sportscaster said Friday.

"I found him in a bar called the Rustic Inn," said Bob Sheridan of radio station WGBS. "That has become his daily hangout. A picture of him hangs on the wall."

Flood had not been publicly heard from since the U.S. Supreme Court turned down his plea for eradication of major league baseball's reserve clause earlier this month.

"Curt was very kind, but refused to tape an interview or talk about the case," Sheridan said. "I had searched many cities in Europe, during my vacation, looking for traces of Flood. Finally, I came to Majorca and there he was."

Sheridan said Flood told him that he is writing a second book which deals with his legal battle against major league baseball. His main objection to baseball contracts is that they allow a team to "own" a player, hampering his bargaining power.

Sheridan and Flood drives around the island in a red sports convertible and is popular among the natives.

"He seems to be loafing and doing a little writing," Sheridan said. "American tourists haven't overrun the place and he can manage to hide. It's like he was in exile."

Coaching Changes

It's back to the game of musical chairs in the high school coaching ranks. After two seasons of relatively few changes, the list of new coaches in the district has grown.

When football season gets underway this fall, Tom Telle will head the Poplar Bluff Mules, Pete Cirrintano the Sikeston Bulldogs and a new coach will be named at Charleston.

In basketball ranks, Stan Whitson will be the new coach at Risco; Randy Benson will head up Delta C-7; Harold Persful will be the new Richland coach and Larry Joplin will head up the Doniphan cagers. Matthews and Portageville also will have new coaches.

Golf Comments

By Riggs Wesley
SEMO Golf Association Secretary

The annual July Fourth Golf Tournament presented some "soggy" competition Saturday and Sunday at Poplar Bluff Country Club. Play was halted Saturday because of rain, and Sunday the scores of wet but determined golfers braved the conditions and completed the 36- hole individual contest. Contenders had been preclassified into four divisions by Riggs Wesley.

Ken Lanning of Rolla traveled south to take the win in the championship round of the competition with a low score of 138. Buddy Godwin of Poplar Bluff shot a 142 to place second in the class. A 144 by Bob Johnson also of Poplar Bluff was third best.

Dave Estes of Desloge was top man in A class after shooting a 141. Ray Ferguson of Poplar Bluff came up with a 144 to follow. Ron Whittier of Desloge had a score of 149 for third place. Gary Wilcutt of Poplar Bluff took fourth with 150. Jim Godwin, Norman Carringer and Leonard Jones, all of Poplar Bluff, had 152's to share fifth place honors.

Paul Porter of Poplar Bluff topped competition in B class with 146. Second went to Marion Parks of Poplar Bluff with a score of 148. Frank Ward of Piedmont shot 150 for third. Jim Hall of Dexter and Mike Wilcutt of Poplar Bluff tied for fourth with 152 each. Hall took the position a coin flip, handing Wilcutt fifth. Francis Carron of Festus placed sixth after a flip of the coin in which Don Lincoln of Dexter was given seventh place, after both shot 153's. John Lawson and Jack Cope, both of Poplar Bluff, shared eighth, shooting scores of 154.

The rank in C class was dominated by all Poplar Bluff golfers and went as follows: 1. Jim Wilkerson- 153. 2. Randy Livingston - 157. 3. Archie Morgan - 164. 4. Dave Fowler - 165. 5. Frank Tinsley - 166. 6. Eddie Aud - 168 7. Clyde Lasswell- 169 (flip). 8. Charles Love - 169.

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (AP) — With the temperature in the low 80s, skiers from across the country participated Sunday in the 24th annual Lake Placid Summer Ski jump, sliding on 40 tons of cracked ice saved for the occasion from winter's covering of the lake.

Jay Rand of Lake Placid and the University of Colorado jumped 108 and 113 feet to win the senior division. Joe Lamb of Lake Placid placed first in the junior division with two jumps of 95 feet each.

Meat Prices Climbing, AP Survey Indicates

Consumers warned by supermarket officials to expect higher meat prices are finding the warning all too true.

An Associated Press survey of about two dozen cities shows that grocery bills — particularly for the better cuts of beef and for pork — have increased anywhere from a dime a pound on up in the two weeks since the latest warning was issued.

Cabinet officials scheduled a meeting in Washington today with officials of food chains and called in farmers for a Thursday session to help in preparing a food prices report that President Nixon has requested by July 10.

Shoppers, meanwhile, were issuing their own reports.

"The food prices are just terrible now," said a woman in a Seattle, Wash., supermarket. "I know how much the prices have gone up because I just started shopping regularly a year and a half ago when I was married."

"Prices are out of sight," said a man in a Kansas City store. "The very first thing the government should have done in its economic program was to put controls on food prices."

Supermarket executives warned consumers on June 16 to expect a rise in prices, particularly of meat. They said that wholesale costs have been going up and the retail outlets no longer could absorb the increase.

The AP checked prices in a dozen cities on June 16, then checked again two weeks later to see if there had been any change.

Among the findings:

In Seattle, the prices of 10 items were checked. Five went up, one went down and four remained steady. Increases included veal round steak, which went from $2.25 to $2.39 a pound, and rib pork chops, up two cents to $1.09 a pound. Stable items included peanut butter crackers, fruit juices, cheese, mayonnaise, butter and milk.

In the Chicago suburb of LaGrange Park, pork loin end cut went from 79 to 85 cents a pound and jumbo eggs increased from 59 to 65 cents a dozen. Sirloin steak dropped from $1.59 to $1.39 cents a pound, but the manager said the decrease was temporary, due to a holiday special.

In Los Angeles, ground beef went from 73 to 78 cents a pound, sirloin tip steak from $1.49 to $1.67 a pound and a Swiss steak TV dinner from 63 to 67 cents. Items that were unchanged included round steak, chicken legs, russet potatoes, lettuce, onions, liquid cleaner and aluminum foil.

A store manager in Los Angeles said, "It's hard to tell what is happening to food prices because they go up and down continually. We do know that our prices are going up and our profits are going down."

Court Orders Further Credentials Proceedings

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Circuit Court here today reversed a District Court's decision to uphold the controversial Democratic Credentials Committee decisions on California and Illinois delegations to the party convention and ordered the lower court to conduct further proceedings.

The brief order of the appeals court carried no reasons for the action. The judges were expected to file opinions later in the day. The District Court ruled Monday that the federal judiciary had no place in the debate over delegates from the two states.

The Credentials Committee had issued decisions that stripped Sen. George S. McGovern of 151 California delegates and told Mayor Richard J. Daley and 58 other uncommitted Chicago delegates to stay home.

The committee decisions were likened to a "self-destruct button" by the party's lawyer Tuesday even as he fought to uphold them before the appeals court.

Party counsel Joseph A. Califano told the three judges that federal courts have no business in the party's business. His argument echoed the decision of a U.S. District Court which prompted the Fourth of July appeal.

Many of the dissents concern issues raised by the mandate from the reform commission originally headed by McGovern: that women, young people and minorities be represented at the convention in proportion to their population.

Arguing for McGovern forces in the California case, attorney Joseph L. Rauh Jr. said the party reforms recently instituted specifically do not bar winner- take- all primaries. He claimed the committee had acted arbitrarily and unconstitutionally.

GOV. WARREN E. HEARNES, seated, has proclaimed July 16, 23 as Prevention of Juvenile Delinquency Week and set July 17-18 as dates for the Governor's Conference on Prevention of Delinquency which will be held at the University of Missouri- Columbia. Witnessing the signing of the proclamation are, from left, Dean Arthur W. Nebel of the UMC school of social and community Services; Circuit Judge Alvin C. Randall of Kansas City, chairman of the Missouri Law Enforcement Assistance Council's Juvenile Delinquency Task Force; Mrs. Phyllis Hausfater of St. Louis, chairman of the Governor's Committee on Children and Youth; and William L. Culver, executive director of the Missouri Law Enforcement Council which, with UMC, will sponsor the Governor's Conference.

Hospital officials report the 88- year- old Truman has been resting comfortably and was visited Tuesday by his wife, Bess.

What's The Law?

Case Of Attack Upon Motherhood

By Jack Strauss, LL. B.

Flighty Flora, a member of the United States Air Force, was shot down by a regulation that required the immediate discharge of any gal who become pregnant. And Flora, full blown, was as pregnant as any gal could get.

Fighting her discharge in court, Flora attacked the validity of the regulation as being discriminatory against women.

"Men aren't bounced from the service when they become papas," she protested incourt. "So why should women be discharged for becoming mamas."

"Because in an emergency," was the answer, "pregnant women can become more of a hindrance than a help. What's more, caring for pregnant servicewomen just isn't in the Air Force budget. The regulation prohibiting storks from landing on our air fields, consequently, is perfectly reasonable.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you approve of FlightyFlora's discharge?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that the regulation is discriminatory in that it forces a woman to choose between motherhood and her career. A restriction upon procreation, observed the judge, must be viewed very carefully. And, in this case, it is unreasonable and invalid. When a woman is pregnant, she can be assigned to a nonsensitive area where there are no hazards and no likely emergencies. As for the cost of carrying pregnant women, concluded the judge, the additional cost is an insufficient reason for the Air Force to deprive a WAF of her personal rights And, mother-hood is a respected personal right. (Based upon a 1972 United States District Court Decision)

APPEARING NUDE causes no hangups for actress Valerie Perrine. She left confining life in Scottsdale, Ariz., as a teen-ager for Las Vegas stage and some nude appearances and now dresses the screen in movies such as "Slaughterhouse-Five."

Weynand To Command U.S. Viet Forces

SAIGON (AP) — The new commander of U.S. forces in Vietnam, Gen. Frederick C. Weyand, was pegged as a rising star in the Army long before he was first sent to Vietnam six years ago.

He proved his battle prowess as a battalion commander in the Korean war. And he demonstrated a talent for diplomacy from 1962 to 1964 in one of the most delicate Pentagon assignments — representing the Army on Capitol Hill as chief of legislative liason.

Even then Weyand's colleagues were picking him as a future chief of staff, a fine performance for an ROTC graduate who never went to West Point. On Wednesday President Nixon gave him a big push toward the Army pinnacle when the White House announced that the 56- year-old native of Arbuckle. Calif., would succeed Gen. Creighton D. Abrams in the top American military post in Saigon.

If he follows the trail blazed by Abrams and his predecessor, Gen. William C. Westmoreland, the next step for Weyand will be Chief of Staff.

Weyand has fought the Vietnamese Communists on the battlefield and sparred with them across the Paris conference table. He recently told friends that the Viet Cong "are as tough in suits and ties as they are in black pajamas."

The Viet Cong might say the same thing about the 6-foot 5-inch blond officer who steered the 25th Infantry Division into South Vietnam in 1966 and three years later turned up in Paris as the cool, articulate military adviser to the American delegation at the peace talk.

Weyand admits that he learned about Vietnam the hard way.

"When I left the 25th in 1967, I was sure the war was won," he told a reporter a few months after his promotion to commander of Field Forces 2. "But then I realized there was a war we hadn't even begun to fight — the war with the Viet Cong amongst the people."

In his new post, Weyand can be expected to work much more closely with top Vietnamese officers than any of his predecessors. As Abrams' deputy since September, 1970, he has concentrated on Vietnamization at the highest level, cutting through red tape by establishing close personal ties with Vietnamese generals who for years were suspicious of the Americans.

ONE GENERATION AFTER
by Elie Wiesel
256 pp.)

In a rare tribute to a living writer, NBC-TV assigned an eight- man camera crew to location work in Europe and the Middle East to film a full hour television special on the life of Elie Wiesel. It will be telecast March 19, 1972, to coincide with Avon's publication of ONE GENERATION AFTER.

"Twenty- five years. A quarter- century. And we pause, trying to find our bearings, trying to understand what and how much did these years mean?"

So begins ONE GENERATION AFTER, Elie Wiesel's searching look backward, probing human awareness as it has evolved in the generation since the holocaust of World War II.

Elie Wiesel was born in Hungary and deported to Auschwitz with his family when he whe was still a boy. He was also held at Buchenwald where his parents and a younger sister died.

A central concern of ONE GENERATION AFTER is the account of Wiesel's return to Sighet, the village of his European boyhood. He goes back to search for a bar mitzvah watch he buried before he was imprisoned. The watch is found, but Wiesel reburies it, leaving behind in the earth this tangible proof of his existence.

Wiesel has said, "I write in order to understand as much as to be understood." S. N. Behrman describes him as "a writer on a plane almost entirely uninhabited except by him." The New York Times wrote, "Not since Camus has there been such an eloquent spokesman for man" and Saturday Review says, "After we have listened to what Wiesel has to say, other literature seems meaningless."

SCIENCE IN YOUR LIFE

By Bob Jones

MISSOURI farmers and city dwellers with crop or garden problems can get better help now that the state has been divided into five climatic areas. These area boundaries have been adjusted so that within each area the seasonal patterns of temperature, precipitation, evapotranspiration, and water run-off are similar.

"The definition of these areas will help us to work with soil-plant-climate systems," say scientists C.L. Scrivner, department of agronomy, and J.D. McQuigg, department of atmospheric science at UMC.

Climatic area No. 1 is a triangle in the northwest corner of Missouri made by a line which starts at the Missouri River just upstream from Kansas City and runs northeast to the Iowa line. Area No. 2 includes the rest of north Missouri except for a portion lopped off by a line from Columbia to Hannibal.

Area No. 3 includes all of the area south of that to a line roughly east and west through the Lake of the Ozarks. Area No. 4 is all of the rest of Missouri except for a 10-county block in the southeast corner. That area, which includes the Bootheel, is No. 5.

Using this new map, we can quickly see that the weather of Louisiana, Mo., is more like Clinton's than Macon's. Weather in Chillicothe is more like Lexington's than St. Joseph's. Rolla's weather is closer to Neosho's than it is to Jefferson City's.

You know those smoky diesel exhausts. They are very annoying. However, Emil E. Gutwein, Purdue University, suggests that diesel smoke is more of a nuisance than a peril.

Various organiztions have suggested the addition of barium carbonate or sulfonate to the diesel fuels to reduce the smoke. Rats breathing the barium additive developed numerous illnesses, suggesting to Gutwein that the smoke is the lesser of the two evils.

The citric acid in your orange juice or in other foods looks just like NTA to most chemical testing devices. NTA is nitrilotriacetic acide, a compound that is being recommended as a replacement for the phosphates in household detergents.

Since NTA may cause serious problems in water purification it is important to be able to identify its presence and measure the concentration.

Dr. Walter A. Aue and a group of colleagues in the agricultural chemistry department at the University of Missouri in Columbia have developed a process which permits accurate analysis for NTA and citric acid. And they have pushed this detection to a sensitivity of one part per billion of either acid.

For the first time, scientists will be able to make quick, accurate measurements of the amounts of NTA passing through sewage processing plants and into our streams and rivers.

Scientists are changing. No more do scientists withdraw entirely from the world around them and concentrate their thoughts only on their specific research projects. This may be good, it may be bad.

Take the American Psychological Association, for example. The board of directors of that group of more than 34,000 psychologists has passed a resolution expressing "its profound distress with the continuation of the killing and the uprooting of the Indochinese population and the devastation of its society and countryside."

Seven other organizations representing more than 65,000 mental health and social work progessionals last month released a statement condemning the escalation of the Viet Nam war as psychologically damaging to young Americans.

These groups say the example of violence being set by the conduct of the war is being adopted by young people acting in gangs, as assassins, and in other acts of violence.

The soil in central Missouri is stingy with water. C.E. Marshall of the UMC agronomy department has been studying water use. He finds that rainfall in that area may run off, evaporate, or remain in the surface soils, but less than one inch in 20 will soak through to underground outlets.

Congress Faces Big Workload

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress will have lots of work left when it reassembles July 17 following a two-week recess.

When they adjourned Friday, the legislators had completed six months of the 1972 session. Many of President Nixon's key legislative recommendations remained pending.

Work still facing Congress included:

—Nixon's $5 billion revenue sharing bill, which has passed the House and has had a friendly reception in the Senate Finance Committee.

—Welfare reform, which Nixon has termed his most important domestic proposal. It's fate is uncertain.

—Nixon's government reorganization plans, to reshuffle several Cabinet departments. Support is lacking in Congress.

—Antibusing bills which appear to have been stalled. Republicans say they will offer them as amendments to other legislation.

—The foreign military aid bill which has been encumbered with an end-the-war amendment. Administration supporters will try to kill the amendment.

—A proposed minimum wage hike from $1.60 to $2.20 hourly. Nixon favors $2.

—Gun control legislation already approved by the Senate Judiciary Committee.

McGovern Compares Bombing Of Indochina To Hitler's Campaign

WASHINGTON (AP) — Comparing U.S. bombing of Indochina to Hitler's campaign to exterminate Jews, George McGovern says President Nixon has boxed himself in on the Vietnam war, even if he ends it by election day.

If Nixon can end the war by November he could have stopped it during his first months in the White House, the South Dakota senator said in an interview with The Associated Press. That "should be clear to every American above the level of first-grader's intelligence."

McGovern, the favorite to win the Democratic presidential nomination, also said in a wide-ranging interview: Democratic Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington is among those being left behind by the party's shifting center; McGovern's new welfare and tax-reform plan will benefit most Americans earning between $4,000 and $20,000 per year, and he is boning up on monetary and economic issues.

Here are the questions and answers:

Q. What are your chances of beating President Nixon?

A. I think defeating men like Ed Muskie, Hubert Humphrey and George Wallace for the nomination is a much more complicated and difficult task than it will be to defeat Nixon in the fall, where the issues can be more sharply drawn.

Even assuming the President ends the war by election day, it should be clear to every American above the level of a firstgrader's intelligence that he's timed that for political purposes, that he's accomplishing nothing new that he couldn't have accomplished the first few months he was in office.

Q. Is there no way then that the President can avoid those charges from you, regardless of what happens in the war?

A. There's no way. Some 20,000 Americans have died during his administration and scores of others have gone to prison.hHundreds of those who were sitting in those cells four years ago have sat there another four years under the Nixon policy. We've blown up another $75 billion.

The Nixon policy on Vietnam is worse than the Johnson policy on Vietnam because Nixon had the advantage of watching the failure of that policy under President Kennedy and President Johnson from the sidelines for eight years.

Beyond that, the slaughter of the innocents in Vietnam is a blot on American history.

Q. If Muskie or Humphrey could win the nomination, how would their chances to defeat Nixon compare to yours?

A. I think it's possible that either Muskie or Humphrey could defeat Nixon. They're both very able campaigners. I think they could address the economic issues very effectively. But I honestly believe I could do better than either one because of my long-standing differences with Nixon on the war policies.

Another sharp issue that I draw with Nixon that would not be drawn by Muskie and Humphrey is the urgent need to substantially move spending away from the military sector to building up the country.

Q. Do you foresee any danger at all of any kind of walkout during the convention or sitout during the campaign by any sizable elements of the party?

A. I don't think so.

You see, what has happened, as I said sometime ago, the old establishment center has collapsed. It's just gone ... The old bipartisan Cold War policy is dead as a doornail. The old concept of allocating most of the budget to the mi litary is dead. The notion that the rich and the powerful should be able to avoid paying taxes is gone. It's just a whole new ball game.

Q. Summarize your plan to end the war and get the prisoners back.

A. I would halt the bombing the moment I was sworn in as president.

Secondly, I would notify Saigon, Hanoi and the Provisional Revolu tionary Government and other interested parties that I was setting a definite date for withdrawal of all American forces within 90 days' time of the inaugural.

Simultaneously I would announce the termination of all military aid to the governments of Laos, Cambodia and South Vietnam. I would journey to Hanoi if necessary on behalf of the early release of those prisoners.

It's my opinion that probably the prisoners won't be released until our forces are withdrawn and all military aid to Saigon is terminated. But I'm confident I can negotiate that kind of an understanding.

Q. Under President Nixon, inflation has slowed down compared to the final months of the Johnson administration, and total employment is up. How might this affect your campaign?

A. Even if I were to accept those assumptions, the American people want economic policies that work more than once every four years.

I think the Nixon economic policies have been a failure. Inflation is entirely too high. He has not solved the problem of unemployment. He has aggravated it. He permitted the farm parity levels to skid during the time he's been in office and accentuated the trend toward big conglomerates, monopoly business, mergers and sweeping out of small businessmen.

The balance-of-payments position has worsened. We've had a trade deficit for the first time since 1888, last year.

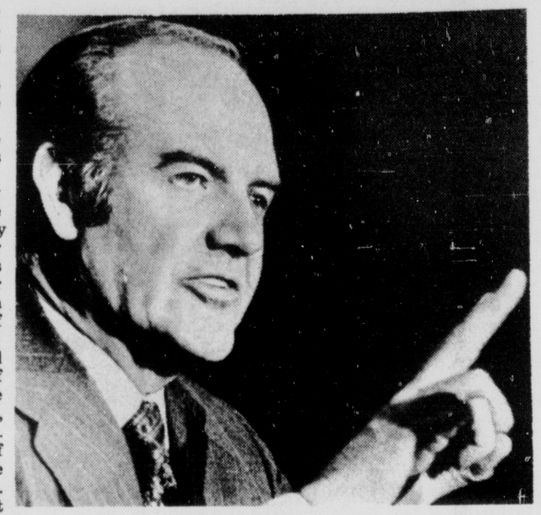
Q. Do you agree with your biographer, Robert Sam Anson, who says you are either unwilling or unable to cope with the technicalities of economic details?

A. I've spent more time trying to broaden my understanding of economics than any other field. I really feel that I know the foreign policy and national defense issues, tax-reform questions, quite well. But it is true that I find the monetary and economic issues difficult.

Q. What can you say about your soon-to-be-announced revised version of your own welfare-reform plan?

A. That's going to become a tax-credit system under which most people will benefit in the form of tax credits.

The people in an income bracket from $4,000 up to about $20,000 will benefit from the program through a combination of either cash grants or tax credit. The whole program will be administered through the Internal Revenue Service.



George McGovern

Q. Did you vote against your conscience in 1967 when you opposed repeal of Section 14b of the Taft-Hartley Labor Act?

A. Yes. I think that was a mistake.

Q. Why shouldn't right-to-work be left to the states?

A. I don't think labor laws should be left to the states at all. I think that particularly where you're dealing with interstate commerce, you can't provide for certain exemptions from labor laws by the states.

Q. But when it comes to moral decisions such as abortion, that is within the purview of the states as you see it?

A. Yes. The abortion legislation has always been state law. There has never been federal intervention in that field. I don't advocate any.

Q. Other than the Taft-Hartley vote, is there any other Senate vote or speech you wish you had not made?

A. I wish I had not voted for the Gulf of Tonkin Resolution, although I thought at the time it was the thing to do. I thought it would undercut Goldwater's efforts to brand President Johnson as a softie. I wanted to reinforce Johnson on what I thought was a policy of restraint.

I just regret having ever given the President what he later interpreted as a blank check do so what he wan ted to do in Indochina.

Q. Where would you find more money for the federal treasury besides closing tax loopholes and cutting defense spending?

A. I think a full-employment economy will generate tens of billions of dollars of additional revenue that will come from taxpayers as a whole. Not because of higher tax rates but because of higher income.

Q. What about federal cutbacks in other departments?

A. Oh, I'm sure there's waste and we'll be alert to that.

Q. As president, what would you do about Cuban relations?

A. I would hope that we could open up relations with Cuba with some of the same kinds of things the President's now doing with Peking. I really can't believe that it's more important to isolate Cuba than it is Peking.

You could begin either by invit ing Castro or some designated person to Washington, or vice versa. Whether they would permit an American embassy there I have no idea. But at least we ought to keep that door open. I've never understood the theory that you're safer by not maintaining relations with a country than you are when you maintain diplomatic contact.

Q. Senator, you refer specifically to "hard drugs" when you speak of drugs. What about marijuana? Would you legalize it?

A. No. I would not legalize marijuana in the light of what we now know about it. But neither would I send anybody to the penitentiary. I think that does more damage to the person than any possible damage that could come from the use of marijuana. I would treat it as a misdemeanor rather than a felony.

But on the hard drugs I think there ought to be a dramatic increase in our efforts to put these people behind bars. And I think drug addicts ought to be apprehended and forced to undergo treatment. It ought to be compulsory to undergo treatment. We shouldn't let drug addicts run around loose.

Nixon Still Favored Over Demo Rivals

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP)— President Nixon continues to be favored by voters over his possible Democratic rivals, according to a recent Gallup Poll.

The results of the survey released Sunday indicate Nixon would gain 53 per cent of the popular vote if his opponent in the presidential election were South Dakota Sen. George McGovern. The survey showed McGovern receiving 37 per cent of the ballots with 10 per cent of the voters undecided.

Against Minnesota Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, the poll showed the President with 55 per cent of the vote, compared with 33 per cent for Humphrey and 12 per cent undecided.

According to the spokesman, the statistics were based on interviews June 16-19 with 1,159 registered voters in 300 communities.

Bond Lists 1,544 Donors To Campaign

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Names of 1,544 donors who gave $129,172 to the Republican governorship campaign of State Auditor Christopher "Kit" Bond were disclosed today.

Alfred C. Sikes, Bond's campaign director, said the average contribution las about $83. The list contained the names of 932 persons who gave $50 or less.

Sikes said he was pleased with the response to the "Bucks for Bond" appeal to broaden the base of the campaign funding.

Sikes said the names of additional contributors will be made public five to 10 days before the Aug. 8 primary election.

SENATE ACTS TO INCREASE FEDERAL PROBATION MANPOWER

WASHINGTON, D.C.--In an effort to increase the number of Federal probation officers to more nearly meet the needs of parole and probation supervision, the Senate has voted increased funds for the Division of Probation through passage of the appropriations bill for the Departments of State, Justice and Commerce.

The Senate bill, as recommended by the Senate Appropriations Committee, permits an increase of 236 Federal probation positions on a nationwide basis. While it does not meet the full request of the Division for an increase of $7 million to provide for 348 additional probation officers and supporting staff, it is well beyond the House provision of only 100 additional officers and staff.

The bill now goes to a Senate-House conference.

Currently there are 640 Federal probation officers supervising over 45,000 persons on probation or parole in the United States. In Missouri alone, 12 Federal officers were charged with 1,128 cases during the past month of May.

The central responsibility of the probation officer is to provide control, guidance and assistance to released offenders to readapt to society and to prevent their return to crime.

Originally the probation system was designed to give young and new offenders a second chance in order to eliminate their association with veteran criminals in a prison environment. Probation officers soon were given the additional responsibility of supervising all persons on parole from Federal prisons.

The Division of Probation now also makes presentencing investigations for the Courts.

New statutes to the law have further increased the workload of the probation officer. For example, the Narcotic Addict Rehabilitation Act of 1966, charges the probation officer with community supervision of convicted narcotic addicts who have been released following an extensive rehabilitation treatment program.

Chief Federal Probation Officer for the Eastern District of Missouri, J. Alan McDoniels, has written this office:

"Our probation offices are finding that supervision caseloads are increasing at a rapid rate, as are our presentence investigations for the courts. Less and less time is available for adequate supervision and treatment of problems that are very much apparent. Our officers are frustrated, realizing that areas needing their attention are having to be ignored in order to handle emergency situations, that if they had time, would not have occurred."

"Probation officers can make the biggest contribution to stemming the increase of law violations if we have adequate staff with reasonable caseloads."

Probation is also beneficial to the taxpayer; per capita probation costs have consistently been 1/10 of the cost for imprisonment.

Missouri faces a comparable shortage of State probation officers as well.

Charged with similar responsibilities as the Federal probation officer but at the State level, Missouri's 87 probation officers handled 6,873 cases, or approximately 75 cases per probation officer, in May.

State probation officers are funded primarily through the State legislatures, but Federal assistance has been provided through the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, Department of Justice.

During the past year LEAA provided for 31 probation officers in addition to the 87 probation officers funded through the State, and approved all of Missouri's 18 probation grant applications totaling funds of $438,568.

Fiscal year 1973 LEAA funds, also included in the Senate-passed appropriations bill, total $850 million, an increase of $151 million over last year's appropriation.

Hopefully this increase will show up in assistance to the State probation program as well.

Navy Gets Woman Instructor

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — The U.S. Naval Academy at Annapolis has decided to change with the times.

This September, Lt. Cmdr. Georgia Clark will become the first full-time woman instructor at the 600-man academy. Her students will all be male.

"I anticipate no disciplinary problems," the 31-year-old officer said Monday during an interview at the home of her parents here.

Miss Clark said she doesn't know if any other women have applied at the academy, although four other women hold lower administrative positions there.

Academically, she has a master's degree in public administration from the University of Washington and bachelor of science in education and physical education from Drury College, Springfield, Mo.

After attending summer school at Arizona State University here in 1962, she "ran out of money and enthusiasm and remembered the literature a Navy recruiter gave me in college.

"I always was interested in international relations and decided the Navy would give me the opportunity to pursue that and learn other skills," she said.

Within eight years, Miss Clark was made lieutenant commander. During her 10 years with the Navy, she has had two tours in Washington, D.C., and spent two years in Hawaii as a personnel officer and administrative assistant to the fleet air commander.

Activities Of Patrol Outlined

JEFFERSON CITY — E. I.(Mike) Hocaday, the superintendent of the Missouri State Highway Patrol, today released the following information on the activities on motor vehicle inspection for the 1971 calendar year:

Defective vehicles - A sampling by the patrol of 333,070 inspection records revealed that 49,479 or 15 per cent of all types of vehicles which are inspected during 1971 were mechanically unsafe. A total of 84,114 items of defective equipment was discovered on these vehicles. This indicates that 1.7 items of vehicular equipment were defective on each vehicle which failed an imspection. If this data were projected to the approximately three million vehicles which were inspected during 1971, 765,000 items of defective equipment would have been found and subsequently corrected.

Defective items - An examination of the sampled 1971 inspection records also disclosed that of those vehicles which were reported to be defective, 31 per cent were rejected because of inoperative lights, 17 per cent for inadequate brakes, 16 per cent for defective exhaust systems, 14 per cent for unsafe steering, and 22 per cent because of faulty tires, glass, and other safety equipment.

Warnings and arrests - There was a decrease in the number of warnings and arrests made by Patrol officers for vehicle defects during 1971 as compared to the previous year. A total of 38,017 warnings and 2,842 arrests were made for vehicle defects last year. This represents a decrease of 13 per cent in warnings and 11.4 per cent in arrests from the number made in 1970. Defects by category for 1971 indicate that warnings for defective mufflers increased 3.5 per cent; however, arrests for the same violation decreased 13.8 per cent. Warnings and arrests for defective lights each decreased 16.5 per cent. Warnings for defective brakes decreased 17.7 per cent and arrests 7.2 per cent, while warnings for other safety equipment decreased 38 per cent and arrests 16.5 per cent.

Inspection stations and mechanics - Highway Patrol officers made 1,557 arrests for violation of the safety inspection laws and regulations during 1971. The majority of these arrests were for failure to display a certificate of inspection and approval. Last year, 207 mechanic permits and 145 station permits were revoked. During this same period, an additional 1,034 inspection stations were qualified and issued permits while 739 stations discontinued operation for various reasons. The total number of stations in operation at the end of the 1971 calendar year was 4,241. Nearly 18,500 mechanics have been qualifed and issued permits to inspect vehicles since implementation of the inspection program.

COOKING-UP with judy gazette

Some days my pace is slow, and I've come to accept that ... however, of late I tend to lose ground, I think!

Following find a bundle of recipes which were destined to go into our Spring & Summer cookbook. Space was a premium item this year, but these rules are courtesy of many good area cooks and should be shared. Pardon my tardiness, please, in printing them ... .

... and I hope your holiday was just perfectly memorable!

MOUSSAKA (Greek Party Dish)

4 medium eggplants (about 1 pound each)
2 pounds lean beef, ground
3 medium onions, chopped
½ cup butter or margarine, divided
½ cup dry red wine
2 tsp. salt
¼ tsp. coarse black pepper
1 tsp. oregano
2 eggs, lightly beaten
1 cup grated sharp Cheddar cheese, divided
½ cup soft bread crumbs, divided
vegetable oil
2 cans (1 pound 1 ounce each) plum tomatoes, drained
6 T. flour
3 cups milk
nutmeg
4 egg yolks, lightly beaten

Peel eggplant, cut crosswise in ¼-inch slices. Sprinkle lightly with salt; arrange in stacks; place heavy plate on top, let stand to drain. Cook beef and onions in 2 tablespoons butter until beef is browned. Add wine, 2 teaspoons salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper and oregano. Simmer until liquid is absorbed. Stir in 2 beaten eggs, 3/4 cup grated cheese, and ¼ cup bread crumbs. Brown eggplant slices quickly on both sides in vegetable oil. Grease large casserole or baking dish (3½ - 4 quart). Sprinkle bottom of casserole with remaining crumbs. Fill with alternate layers of eggplant, meat mixture and tomatoes, ending with eggplant, leaving 1-inch head space. Melt remaining butter; blend in flour; add milk slowly, stirring constantly. Season to taste with salt, pepper, and nutmeg. Pour a little hot milk mixture on egg yolks; return to remaining hot milk mixture. Cook about 2 minutes over low heat, stirring constantly until thickened. Pour sauce into casserole. Sprinkle with remaining cheese. Bake at 350 degrees for 45 to 60 minutes or until top is golden brown and eggplant is tender. Makes 10 to 12 servings.

This dish makes a perfect casserole for a very special buffet for a crowd. Greek women spend a whole day preparing it, but our American version includes some short cuts. You can slice, press, and fry the eggplant, grate the cheese, and make bread crumbs the day before. Or, if you wish, prepare the entire casserole, except for the topping, and store in refrigerator. Be sure to allow a little extra time in the oven, if you do this.

Round out the meal with a tossed green salad. French bread, a light dessert, and lots of strong black coffee.

FRIED APPLE PIES

Basic Dough Recipe
½ cup water
2 cups all purpose flour
1¼ tablespoon double acting baking powder
¼ cup nonfat dry milk
1 tsp. salt
6 T. vegetable shortening

Stir baking powder, dry milk and salt into the sifted flour. Sift all dry ingredients together until well mixed.

Cut fat into flour mixture until all particles of fat are thoroughly coated and mixed until it resembles coarse cornmeal.

Stir water into the dry fat mixture. Stir 20-25 strokes. Turn onto lightly floured board and knead about 15 times. Break into balls slightly larger than a walnut. Roll each ball to pastry thickness. (should be round in shape. This you can guide somewhat as you roll it out). Place 2 tablespoons thickened, sweetened, cooked fruit on one half of the cirlce. Keep fruit from outer edge of the circle. Fold over and seal edges firmly with a fork dipped in flour. Filling should be thick and cold. Canned prepared pie filling can be used. Fry in deep hot fat (350 degrees) for about 3 minutes or until browned, turn once and brown the other side.

I use home canned apples seasoned with a bit of cinnamon. When you prepare this recipe be prepared to repeat it often, as it is a constant favorite at our house.

ICEBOX QUICKIE

1 can Eaglebrand
1 small can frozen lemonade mix ..thawed
1 quart size container of Cool Whip

Mix these three items together and four into a graham cracker crust ... Presto in about three minutes you have a quick dessert. Other frozen juices may be used instead of the lemonade mix.

This is a nice dessert that can be whipped up when unexpected guests suddenly appear. It can be served in individual dessert dishes sprinkled over with cookie crumbs or cracker crumbs.

Coffee Corner by Cherie

My oldest just left for boy scout camp this week and I thought you might be interested in the different lists a boy and a mom make out—I mean after all he is suppose to be roughing it!

Mothers List for 6 Days at Camp
6 pr. of underwear
soap
2 towels and wash cloths
comb and brush
toothpaste and brush
pen, stationery and stamps
flashlight
2 pr. of shoes
sleeping bag and pillow
eating kit
2 full scout uniforms
4 pr. of shorts
5 shirts
raincoat
coat
swimming suit and towel
scout manual and medical report
Noxema
4 pr. of socks
hat
book to read

I gave much thought to this list and decided although those were only the barest of essentials he could make out with that if he really wished to rough it a little.

What Lee Took for 6 Days at Camp:
2 pr. underwear
soap, 1 towel and cloth (which I stuffed in amid much protest)
comb
flashlight
2 pr. shoes
sleeping bag and pillow
15 pieces of beef jerky
eating kit
2 scout uniforms
2 pr. shorts
3 shirts
1 swimming suit jacket and hat
scout manual and report
Noxema
1 ton of firecrackers
1 empty jar (I presume tor bugs)

The rest of my list he ignored as being unworthy of a young man in the wilderness. All I can say is I sure hope he spends a lot of time in the water and preferably with his much used clothes on!

SENSING THE NEWS!

U.S.-MEXICO RELATIONS

A little-known feature of the visit of President Luis Echeverria of Mexico to the United States bodes ill for harmonious relations between the two countries. In an extraordinary breach of diplomatic etiquette, President Echeverria held a private meeting in New York City with a group of intellectuals of leftist views and joined them in condemning the United States.

This meeting came after the president of Mexico had been received with pomp in Washington and appeared before a special joint session of Congress. Unfortunately, the New York meeting apparently wasn't reported outside the Washington press.

Two days after concluding his state visit to the nation's capital, President Echeverria took part in a meeting of American writers, actors and journalists. This meeting according to The Washington Post, was arranged by the Mexicans. Present were radical writers as I.F. Stone and Michael Harrington. According to the Post, the President of Mexico told the assembly of American leftists that "conservative" U.S. interests were responsible for organization, has produced a rebellious and ignorant and commonsense view of relations depriving them of technical with the United States. He criticized U.S. to a more ideological position, corporations doing business in as indicated also by President Mexico and said President Echeverria's attitude at the Nixon was indifferent to the U.S. Trade and Development problems of Mexican migrant Conference in Chile, will prove farm workers. The meeting in New York City suggests, at the very least, that Mexico has a national leader who is indiscreet and contemptuous of diplomatic usages. This is unfortunate, for U.S. relations with Mexico have steadily improved since the 1930s. Recent presidents of Mexico have been warmly received in the United States, American tourists and investors have been welcomed in Mexico, and both countries have benefited from closer association.

Mexico is still a very poor nation, and economic partnership with U.S. companies is the best way for the land south of the border to make rapid economic progress. Where the countries have problems, as in the case of water quality in the Colorado River, solutions can be found through quiet negotiation.

President Echeverria's government worked out with stir trouble. According to some observers, he is interested in giving a new nationalist direction to Mexico's foreign policy. Mexicans would do well to consider the content of Echeverria's new nationalism. The new trade agreement his
